PREFACE

In 1974, Rays From the Capstone was published by the University of the Trees Press after years of research by its author, Christopher Hills. This new book, Secrets of the Life Force, includes material from that original text, plus new illustrations and information on much of the Egyptian source material. It also contains new research material and is the first publication to announce the Pi-ray Supersensor and the Psychotronic Extractor Sink, tools developed by the author about which we have received numerous inquiries. Recent research done with the Sink has been included in this volume.

A WORD OF ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

There are a number of people, all students of consciousness and "life force" at the University of the Trees, who have contributed greatly to the creation of this book. Double thanks go to Ary King for organizing, combining and editing the new and original material, and for typesetting along with Pam Osborn. I also thank Michael Hammer for locating many of the illustrations and Egyptian art used in the book, Joanne Jonas for her creative work in mock-up, and Stephanie Herzog who greatly improved some of the original drawings, while Bruce Cryer coordinated the proofing and overall production of the book. And finally I am grateful to my son John for the wonderful cover artwork.

THE INCREDIBLE BOX

If someone told you that there was a secret box invented by a seer and sage, very similar in its powers to the ancient Hebrew Ark of the Covenant with the magic property of enhancing whatever you put into it, you would probably be one of the many thousands who would laugh it to scorn. Just imagine in this scientific age a box without any mechanical parts, without any electronic circuits, but incorporating just the simple understanding of the way cosmic energy works and how it can be accumulated. Who would ever give it the slightest consideration? Those who did not understand it would swap it for a chromium-plated computer in the same way that Aladdin's mother swapped his old lamp for a new one.

The story of Aladdin's lamp and the incredible Jihnn or genie is an allegory for the lamp of the body and its consciousness which can bring us anything if only we know how to arouse it. A reading of this Arabian wisdom story with this key in mind reveals a host of subtle analogies, even to the way it was found and lost.

"What is this, the next fictional 'Star Trek' program on the TV?" you might say. But this box is serious and for real. Thousands are finding out that you can actually place a sample of your own blood or hair in it and be vitally charged with life force and enhanced consciousness. Did the fathers of the USA know of this energy or were they merely unwitting agents of this mysterious cosmic intelligence which is at the back of all evolution? From the simple tools of early man, such as the hammer and stone axe, to the complex tools of today like the computer and its stored artificial intelligence, so well-portrayed in the movie "2001", is a 500,000 year stride. We are being required to stretch our minds in a million year leap. Is this same evolutionary force now thrusting us forward into evolutionary development beyond the human imagination?

To understand how such a leap might be possible, let's take a look at what's happening now in science.

For the convenience of the reader, the instruments referred to in this book are catalogued in the section "Paths to Further Knowledge" beginning on page 181

SUPERSENSONICS— THE NEW SCIENCE THAT REPLICATES ANCIENT TRUTHS

In recent years the scientific community and general public have developed an increased interest in the interactions between living organisms and their internal and external environments. The energetic processes which underlie the manifestation of psychic and biophysical interconnections are dependent on consciousness. The subtle structural organization of the interpenetrating fields of matter, energy and consciousness have led to the new sciences of psychotronics, radionics, radiesthesia and parapsychology. All of these new sciences are covered by the term Supersensonics*, coined by the author, which attempts to link them together in a wholistic interpretation through the development of special tools.

Breakthrough research at the frontiers of modern science in the study of human potentials covers the study of consciousness and its energies, quantum theory, electromagnetic fields, bio-gravity, psi phenomena, Kirlian photography of the radiation field, dowsing, dermotropic perception, psychotronic generators, acupuncture, measurement of the chakras, biofeedback signals, imagery, medicine, holograms, bioenergetic healing, psychokinesis, and many others. Supersensonics, covering all these fields, provides a coherent theory as well as experimental proofs for everyone to practice for himself.

HOW IT WORKS—FOCUSING HUMAN CONSCIOUSNESS ON THE ONE

Everything in the universe is interconnected and joined, held together by radiation and light. By continuously interchanging energies and reproducing that light throughout the entire universe, all entities are omnipresent in consciousness and nothing in creation is separate in time, position, or place.

We live in a reproducing universe and production of all manifestations is achieved by reproduction of the ONE Being in all things. There is no other cause which cannot be traced back to this one cause from which all effects flow sequentially in time and place.

The apple tree blooming in your garden is as much a part of the sun as its fruit will be one day part of you. The entire universe sways in its branches as it sways in the trees and branches of your nervous system. Every particle of matter is connected radio-magnetically with the magnetic property of every pole in each piece of matter in the universe. The universe is a wave-field of light in equilibrium in continuous motion and vibrates in tune with every other interacting particle.

All is ONE, and the ONE is experiencing in ALL.

The ONE is Light and Light is all.

Light and Consciousness are ONE and ONE is all.

The ONE is simple Pure Consciousness but the creation is complex. The sublime is simple and ONE and everything that is, is that ONE. He who knows this law knows the supreme origin of Love.

Love is the realization of the ONE in all the universe.

Love is the fuel of inspiration and inspiration is the ecstasy and the agony of deep love.

Supersensonics' first law of the mind is the oneness of all consciousness which leads to limitless love. The indivisible soul of man vibrates like a well-tuned string with all other well-tuned strings which sing in unison. Without this tuning the resonant singing of an untuned string does not know the meaning of Love.

The radiation of Love is the radiation of the inner light. The inner light of consciousness vibrates the consciousness of the outer mind. The inner mind is the pure consciousness of the Divine. The divinization of one is the divinization of all mankind. Only the heart can think in the pure light of consciousness and the outer mind cannot know the divine perfection of the universal ONE.

There is no imperfection. What we call evil and imperfect is our ignorance of Truth. Imperfection is the effect of our limitation of Self within. Thinking in the pure light of consciousness gives limitless power and love. We then become universal man with the divine knowledge shining upon our brow. We become the super-thinker who travels beyond thought and beyond the human imagination until he reaches a state of consciousness where everything we know as form and material creation becomes merely a spiritual aspect of our own soul. The divine spark which is our own soul wakes up to an enormous and incredible realization that it is not separated from the whole.

THE DIVINE LAW OF SOUL

Everything that exists is of everything else that exists. Nothing can be separated from the whole. Nothing stands totally alone. All things great and small are already united.

This is the law and the essence of Divine Consciousness. It is the substance of the soul of all things. It is the law of oneness of all the universes. All that is, is One. "Hear O Israel, the Lord thy God is ONE," say the prophets of Israel. "Not a sparrow falls to the ground unless the Heavenly ONE knows it," says Christ. And what do I say unto you who crave far more? Everything that is, is part of everything else that is. This is the greatest law. This is the origin of Love because Love is nothing but the desire to be ONE.

Individuals are in Truth nonexistent. Nothing exists independently separate in the entire wholeness of the universe. No one can say, "I am totally alone," for in Truth the I AM is ONE with all created things and without it nothing would be experienced separately as divisible. The light of consciousness is the living light of God. God manifests in Light.

God manifests in Light.

Light and Consciousness are ONE.

Light is all that is.

Light is the life of the world and universe.

Light is holy spirit, Father Mother of consciousness and consciousness is Father of Nature and man.

Light is Father of the stars in heaven and the babbling brook on earth.

Light is the blade of grass and mighty mountain.

All things are dependent and cannot be experienced without the Light.

Through the light of consciousness all things are interdependent.

Let us now see how this law of the ONE was observed in the building of the pyramids in ancient Egypt.

THE CHEOPS PYRAMID AND THE LAW OF THE ONE

Pyramids are common in Egypt; several hundred of them rise up as funeral homes for many of the kings and nobility of the ruling classes. To understand why anyone would spend so much energy, money and time on building something which to our culture would have no utility, we must first understand the Egyptian religion.

Just as Christians use a cross as a symbol for Christ, the Egyptians used a pyramid for Osiris, who was their equivalent. Just as we have our myth of Christ as a savior of our soul, the Egyptians and their priesthood believed that the soul could be saved under certain conditions. Christ himself did not teach this religion of the personality cult but instead referred us to the ONE in all his words. It was

The Enthronement of Osiris

The picture shows the resurrection of Osiris. The mummy seen under the throne below the stairs under the eye of Horus and the sun's disk symbolizes the death from which springs the next life. only later, when the metaphysics of Paul created a different belief around Christ as a personal intervener, that the religion we know today was born. This changing of Christ's teachings caused much bad feeling among the disciples of Christ who formed the council at Antioch and it was only fifty years later that the disciples acknowledged Paul as a Christian because he established so many churches everywhere. In the same way the common Egyptians had their myths and personalities while the priests worshipped the ONE God Aton symbolized by the sun's rays.

A leader in the Gurdjieff movement in England told me in 1960 that to harness the Pi-ray (the mysterious life force discovered in the Great Pyramid) was to capture the same "Ray of Creation" that Ouspensky had said begins its octave in the sun. No wonder the ancient Egyptians worshipped the sun's light rays as "life"!

The common myth taught at that time was that the first king of Egypt was a God called Osiris. His wife was Isis, corresponding to the Hindu Aryan belief in Shiva and Shakti. This god supplied all knowledge and skills such as laws, cultivation, astronomy, mathematics, etc. But Seth, the brother of King Osiris, desired to usurp this power and sit on the throne instead of God. So he killed Osiris and separated his body into parts while Isis fled. Later Isis recovered the parts of his body and put them together again through divine knowledge or magic. Out of this magic a son was born called Horus who had an all-seeing eye. But Osiris was no longer king of the living because his life force was gone from the dissected body and so he became King of Heaven where the dead spirits lived in another realm of consciousness. Horus, the son, avenged his father and became victorious over the usurper and sat on the throne in his father's name. From then on the links of this myth with Egyptian royal power became complicated. Essentially the story up to this point can be seen to be similar to the teaching of Christ concerning the usurper Satan who sits as the Ego (the selfish sense) on the throne of God the Father and thereby separates man from the wholeness of the one universal spirit.

However, to maintain power, the Pharaohs, like our

Birth of Horus From Osiris

Sometimes Horus the son of Osiris is depicted as Re, the god of light (represented as a disk or sun). Horus, Re, becomes god of the living and sits again on the Throne of Osiris. At dusk Osiris comes to life again as god of the Netherworld, where dead spirits live in another realm.

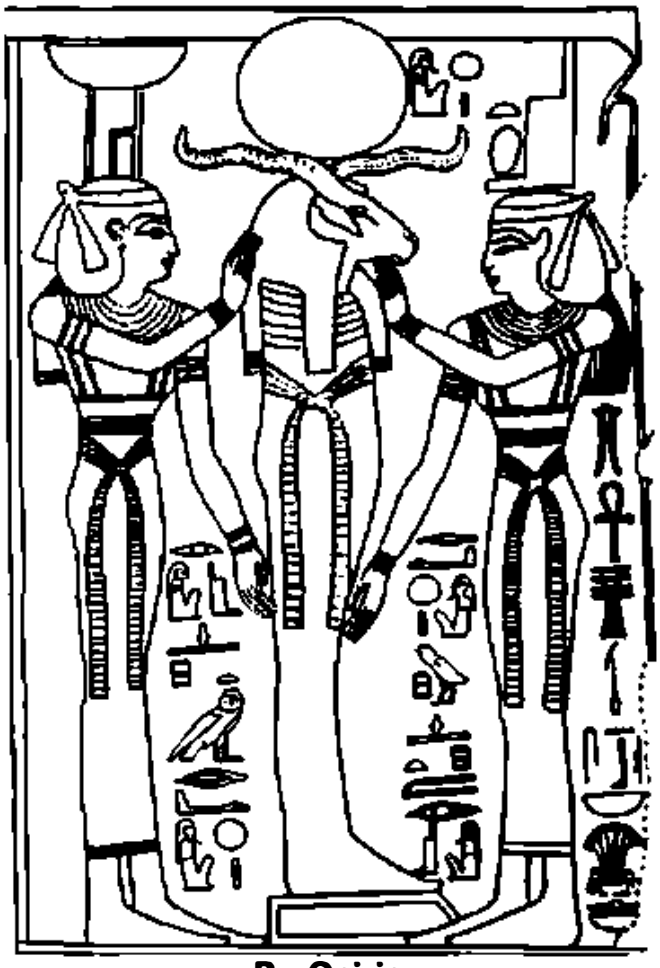
own long succession of Popes, made the religion suit the politics of the day.

THE SYMBOL OF OSIRIS

Every Egyptian king therefore became a Horus on ascending to the throne, reliving his victory over the separative one. Every pharaoh who died reenacted the death passion play of Osiris, putting all the parts of his separated being together, and thus became an Osiris.



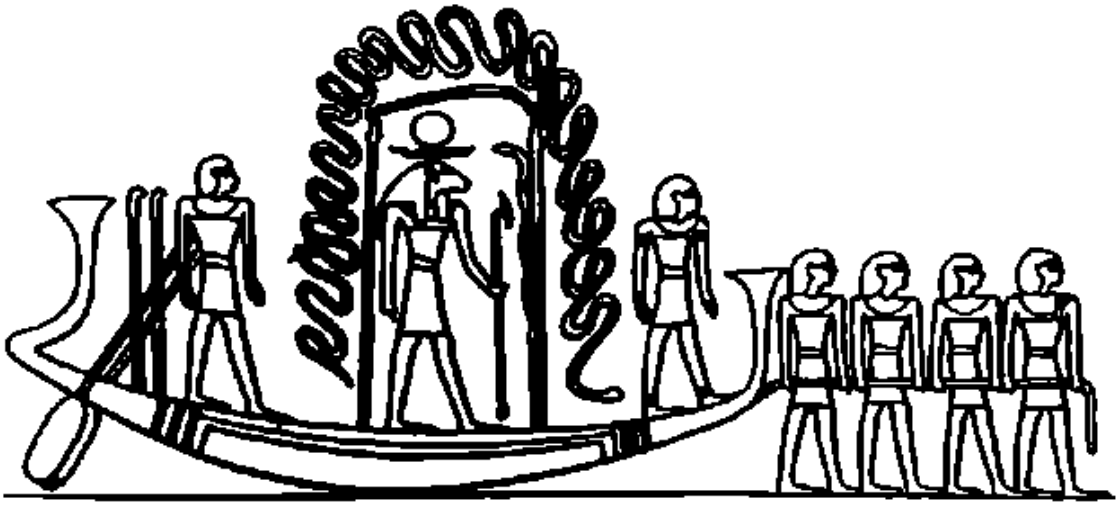
Re Osiris

Life after death is personified by the god Re, the living god who descends into death, and the god of the dead, Osiris, who dies and comes to life. The Egyptians believed that life and death are a continuous process, that life engenders death and death life. (From the tomb of Queen Nefertiti.)

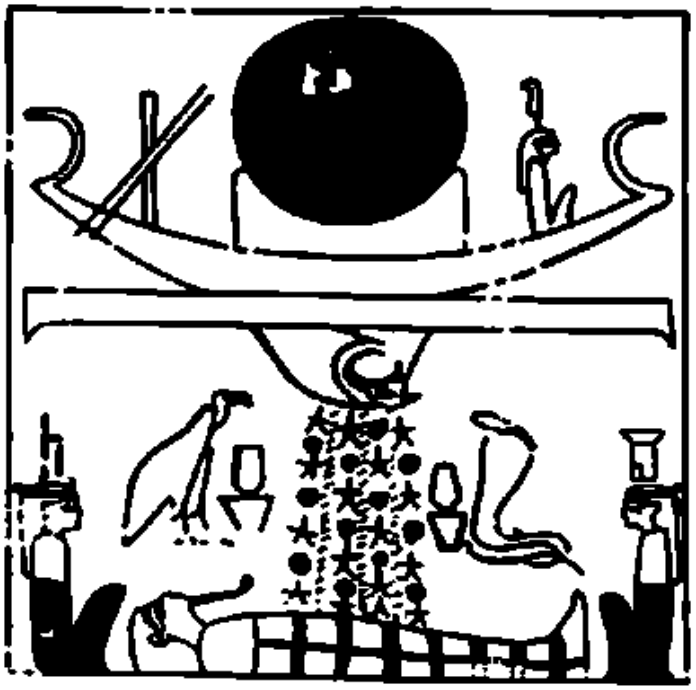
In order to keep the soul of Osiris powerful in the next realm in which it would be resurrected, the "Ka" or spirit body would need the channeling of life force as a support system from this world. This meant that the physical body and its parts had to be preserved as a "witness" of the spirit which had inhabited it and also had to be fed by the energies generated by the pyramid form. In order to make the dead body last as long as possible it was pickled and the heart and entrails were taken out and preserved in an airtight jar. The body was sealed in waterproof bandages and pitch in order to keep its moisture. Up to the Fourth Dynasty when the Cheops pyramid was built, around 2590 B.C., the ancient Egyptians had already had several thousand years of experience with the cosmic energies of the pyramid form and they already worshipped the life force known as Prana in Sanskrit. They revered the primal life force as the source of the self-created energy of light or the first cause. From the time of the Fifth Dynasty the pharaoh was also called "Son of Re" or son of the sun's rays, which illustrated different manifestations of the same life force concept between the King and God.

For what obscure reason did those intelligent and skilled people spend so many thousand years researching subtle energies?

Because they had discovered this energy through divination in the name of Osiris and Thoth and used it for healing, navigation and growing crops, they ultimately decided to use its amazing growth factor for the continuous feeding of the dead spirit of the king, since after thousands of years all their culture was then centered around the idea of rebirth in the next realm of consciousness.



The solar barge of Re depicts the journey of the sun around the dark side of the earth, towed by four energies symbolized as gods. The Egyptians did not believe naively that the sun went around the earth in a boat but only used the barge as a symbol of its travel through space. The four levels of energy of the life force are today known by science as gravity, light (electromagnetism), weak interactions and strong nuclear force. They were only interested in enhancing the first two and arresting the last two forces of disintegration.



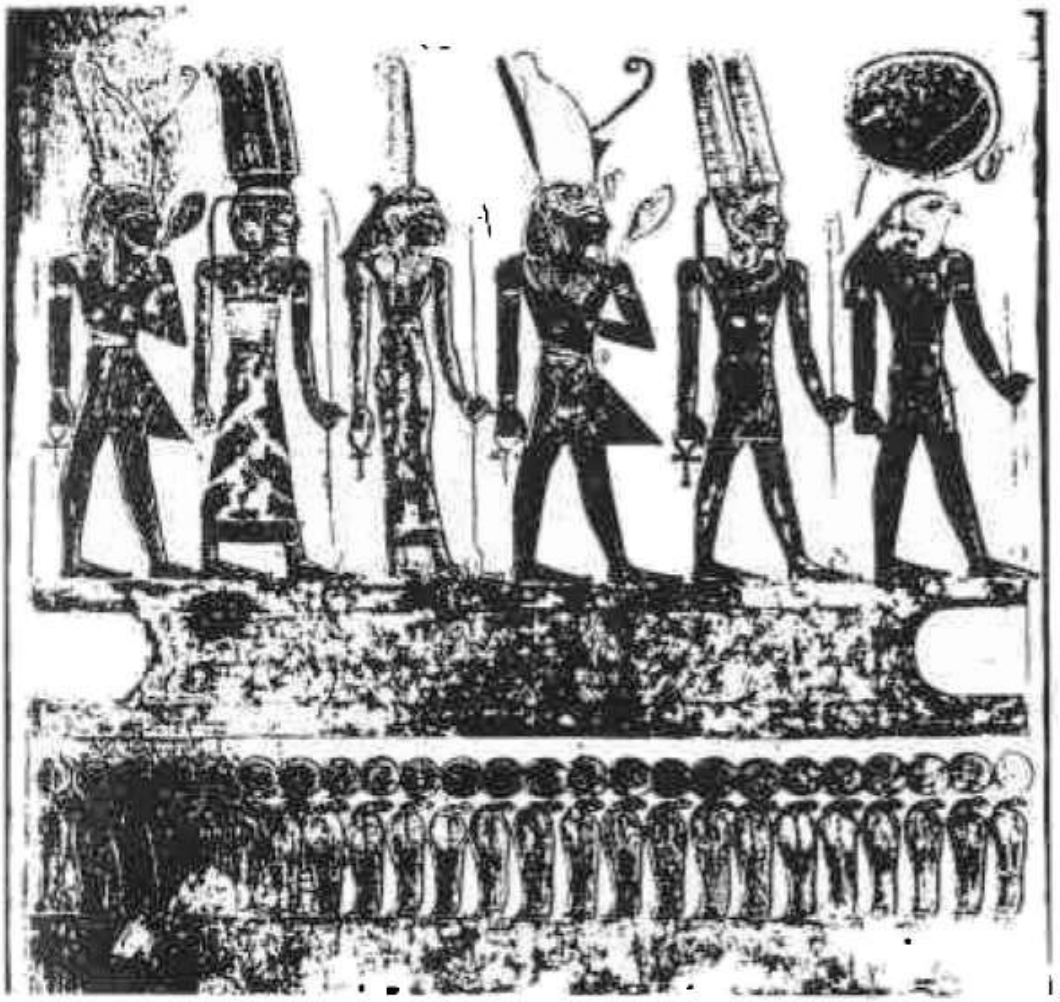
The travel of the sun through space on the other side of the earth was a cosmic principle (symbolized by the figure with a feather on head) which sent life force in the form of rays (symbolized as ★ and ●) which penetrated the mummy and helped to bring the dead back to life again in another incarnation.

To have a powerful rebirth and apply this cosmic energy for selfish purposes became the dominant purpose which eventually destroyed the original understanding of the priesthood.

A temporary monotheistic campaign was mounted a thousand years later against these magical concepts by Akhenaten who saw that the priests of Amon had perverted the original Imhotep's worship of the sun's rays as the source of life and consciousness. But he was too gentle with these power brokers and so his power was undermined by the separative faction among the mystery schools and temple priests. A great polarization took place during this undermining of the king's power. During the process, some of those who loved the king were prompted by the priests to rebel against his authority as Horus. Many had to be put to death to preserve the integrity of the state. Because Akhenaten was not ruthless enough with the separative power cliques who administered his power, the unity and the religious life in the kingdom were vastly diluted.

The pharaoh was a symbol for a hot line to cosmic forces and the Key of Life in his hand represents communication with unseen worlds of being.

The ancient Egyptians of the Old Kingdom prior to 2000 B.C. knew that the creation of a representation of something in concept form could evoke that pattern again in consciousness. Just as we use $E=MC^2$, so were their artistic representations symbolic and did not aim at reproducing an object as it was in reality but as it functioned ideally. Hence the depictions of various instruments and gods were highly stylized representations of consciousness.



A depiction of Egyptian headress of gods and goddesses. Note Horus at right with symbol of the sun, the source of life, surrounded by a snake, symbol of kundalini or aroused consciousness. The feather on the head symbolized cosmic truth because it weighed lightest against the heart. The light heart was considered a mark of saintliness.

They saw clearly that the heart symbolized the real being of man and the tongue represented the thoughts in the head. The priests believed that the word spoken or written in symbol had the same reality as other works created by the hands of men. They were convinced that divine order came when the heart and tongue represented and commanded the same thoughts. To speak what was in the heart was a purity of soul for which each king as Horus had to strive in order to offer up to Osiris a completeness, a purity of consciousness in the heart. The ancient ceremony of weighing the heart on a balance at death was actually a radiesthesia balance.*

The scene of the weighing of the heart. The jackal-headed Anubis tests the tongue of the balance with his right hand and steadies the scale bearing the small seated figure of Cosmic Truth with his left. On the other scale the heart of the deceased is shown in perfect balance with the image of Truth. On top of the balance post is seated the baboon of Thoth. Two truth goddesses holding a scepter in their right hand and the sign of life in left stand behind Anubis. The scepter is a divining rod which tilts like a waterdiviner's forked twig when the weighing is balanced. (From the Greenfield papyrus, British Museum).

* Radiesthesia—the sensing of vibrations through the nervous system by means of amplification devices such as pendulums or divining rods.

Gradually, through ceremony and loss of original meanings, the power of the pharaohs declined and the oral tradition perished, leaving only the shell of the original religion for the later dynasties in the Middle and New Kingdoms.

The rise of the priesthood during the Middle Kingdom (2200-1786 B.C.) weakened the king's power even more and the real meaning of the pyramids and the divining instruments was lost. Like our own "Order of the Garter" and other symbolic pageantry, the original purpose was soon forgotten. Thus the energy of the Pi-ray which was isolated from the sun's rays and cosmic forces, symbolized by the Ankh or "Key of Life", was no longer of great importance and politics took its place.

INITIATION

During the early period when Imhotep was the sage in charge of the oral teachings and design of divining instruments, it was customary to train students to become pure by testing them in the amplified rays of life force that were concentrated by the pyramid form. If they were spiritually clear there was no harm, but if they were phony and their hearts were not in tune with their minds, the life ray would help to amplify the conflict within three days and eliminate them from the position of priestly power. It was then said that they had been "weighed in the balance and found wanting." This balance was a divining instrument similar to the balances described in detail in *Supersensonics. It links with Christ's teaching: "As a man thinketh, so in his heart is he."

There are more than four hundred pyramids in Egypt, all containing royal resting places in accordance with the Egyptian philosophy that not only was the soul born again but it could also maintain contact with the energies of creation until its resurrection. The Py-ramid was a representation of the first form of life which rose out of the waters at the time of creation and hence the meaning of the hieroglyph PR-MS is "to go towards rebirth". All these pyramids and those of South America are constructed as funeral chambers, except the Great Pyramid of Cheops at Giza. The ceremonial rites celebrated in this particular pyramid of Khufu consisted of the last initiation, when the neophyte became an adept by being placed in the King's Chamber in the sarcophagus and there being subjected to the radiation of the Pi-ray. After many years of training and spiritual tests, the ray of life and death was used to test the initiate's detachment from worldly vibrations.

Revivification by the solar rays

The interplay of life and death is personified by the complementary figures Re and Osiris. The reclining mummy is revivified by rays from the head of the solar hawk (upside down) of the netherworld. Above, the result of revivification is shown with the face of Osiris wearing a plumed solar crown of the four levels of life energies. (From the papyrus of Pa-di-Amon, 21st dynasty.)

The earth's rays reflected from soils and water tables and some forms of crystals produce the harmful effects of negative green energy caused by the decay of cosmic rays in the earth's crust, but the pyramid generates this downward flow of negative green much more intensely, hence the length of time one could withstand the effects of Telluric* rays was an indication of purity of consciousness. The religious symbol for this ceremony is the weighing of the heart on a balance with a feather on the other end. The feather was a symbol for "Maat" or "Mayet" meaning universal Truth or cosmic order.

Portion of Egyptian Book of the Dead. To the left a soul is being weighed, one of the tests to be passed before the soul entered into fellowship with Osiris and the other gods. Note the Ankh Divining Rod, symbol of contact with life force.

These "earth rays" of negative green can be overcome by the tuning to the life ray of continuous creation which gives birth to consciousness itself. This philosophy of the "life ray" again is symbolized by the Ankh, a ceremonial form of an early divining rod. It is obvious that Christ was an initiate of this school, not only because of his philosophy of life which pointed in all his allegories to the "life force", but because of his powers of transferring this life force to others or withdrawing it, as he did from the barren fig tree. His ability to determine the direction and location of an object or even a person or a thought was also common in the school of adepts.

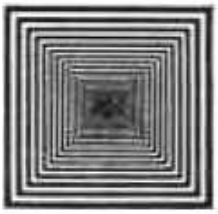
THE SECRET OF THE PYRAMID SARCOPHAGUS

The picture of the Pi-ray Coffer lid below shows a design which represents the shape of the pyramid when looked at from above. It has been found that this symbol actually produces the same energy as the pyramid form, making the physical pyramid quite unnecessary. With the addition of magnets, spirals and a special powdered element the coffer exactly duplicates the forces playing upon the sarcophagus which the ancient Egyptians placed in the King's Chamber in the Great Pyramid.

Many people have proved that there is some kind of energy from the form of a pyramid, flowing upwards from the top of the point. Some people even constructed pyramid forms so that plants, people, milk and foods could be put inside them. It did not seem to matter whether the pyramid was made of paper, copper, plastic or anything else since this mysterious energy was entirely due to the form, or so they thought.

Yet now we are finding, through deeper research over the last fifty years, that it is not the three-dimensional form which makes the energy radiate upwards from the capstone and spiral downwards like a lefthand corkscrew. The form of the pyramid is not necessary, only the symbol of a pyramid looking down from the top is necessary. The representation on paper produces the same effect on our human consciousness.



When we place a magnet below the hole in the paper at the center, a pendulum correctly tuned will detect a subtle biophysical energy coming from the top of this symbol. If we test below it the dowser finds another type of energy spiraling in the opposite phase. How can this energy be harnessed for practical usage and what is its secret? Is it harmful and was the great physical pyramid which was built by Pharaoh at enormous cost of life and money intended to enshrine the knowledge of this energy? The answer is yes to both questions.

There are three pyramid energies in any pyramid, regardless of size, which come from the wave-field of the pyramid shape itself. The positive green life-giving energy comes off the top of the capstone of a pyramid, while flowing downward from the top is negative green energy which dehydrates both organic and inorganic objects, including the human body. Also present beneath the pyramid is the Pi-ray, which flows from the top at a particular angle that was known to the ancient Egyptians. The Pi-ray is the life-preserving energy that was used to keep mummies moist for centuries. The ancient Egyptians, who understood these spiraling psycho-physical forces, placed the mummy coffer in the Great Pyramid directly in the path of this mysterious ray at a certain angle from the capstone.

HOW THE EGYPTIANS USED POSITIVE PYRAMID ENERGY

When the Egyptian initiates discovered that they could isolate the Pi-ray from the negative green battery and that it was equivalent to the life force and consciousness, they spent several thousand years developing different uses for it, through the metaphysical schools. Their knowledge developed in the same way that modern knowledge will expand as people find new uses for atomic energy for millennia to come. Unless there is some selfish misuse of this knowledge, it will also be so with the powers of our consciousness revealed so scantily in this book.

The first practical use that the Egyptian priests thought of was to preserve the soul against death. They knew that the human body is mortal and that it will inevitably die, but they found that this strange force of life and death we call the Pi-ray could help to prevent decay. By giving the energy of the life force to the physical they believed that the body would act as a witness and broadcast the energy to the soul. The negative green energy promotes the cessation of cell life and activates what is called the mummification process. If the dead body is encased in pitch and bandages to stop evaporation of water, then the dessication is halted, but the Pi-ray does not allow bacterial decay.

After pickling the body in saltpeter and spices they found that the Pi-ray would keep the cell structure fresh by preventing further organic life.

The moisture-proof bandages prevented dessication or drying out of the flesh and the Pi-ray arrested the normal disintegration which follows as soon as consciousness leaves the body. Between 1960 and 1965 the writer visited all the major museums in the world which possessed an Egyptian mummy, to find out if the theories of their chemical treatment advanced by various scholars who had scientifically examined the mummy wrappings and flesh had ever been tested by carrying out the mummification process as they explained it. Not one had any more than the explanation, and the facts were that not one of them could prove by any duplication that any such actual tests of mummification had been done.

Inside the case lies the mummy. Endless strips of linen cloth, daubed with gum, were wrapped around the body. The body itself was first treated so that it would not decay. Embalmers emptied and washed out the body cavities and then put the corpse into a bath of saltpeter for 70 days.

This led to the writer's carrying out his own experiments with negative green energy based on some observations by M. A. Bovis who had found the dessicated remains of several animals such as a dead cat and some mummified rats which had strayed into the King's Chamber and dried up. Another fact which mystified the writer until he stayed overnight in the Pyramid and became familiar with Super-sensonic methods, was the curious practice of the ancient initiate priests of deliberately sprinkling antimony powder on the floor of all their sarcophagus chambers. It was not until the writer discovered a diviner's reaction of antimony in the presence of light and bismuth that he realized that the ancients knew its properties, not only as we do today in the use of thermocouples, but also as a generator of a static field force for creating ionization of air molecules.

This led to the far greater discovery that any human being has the capacity to arrest life or give life through the Pi-ray. At one point the author was told in 1960 in France that by using the Chaumery and Belizal pendulum, Enel had been able to rotate the life energy of the Pi-ray in a counterclockwise direction and thereby withdraw the life force from several snails until they either died or went into suspended animation. By rotating the pendulum clockwise, those snails whose life force was suspended were restored to life.

The late John Brown of Middleboro, Massachusetts, claimed in the May 1957 issue of The Pendulum that he had invented the "B-cell". In the article called "I Have Discovered the Immortal Cell", he claimed that the B-cell had exceptional qualities, that it rejuvenated the cells of the body, that it was the key to curing the most serious human diseases and that it could eliminate world famine by increasing agricultural production of foodstuffs. He would not sell his product, but specimens of the cell could be obtained for experimental purposes. I was able to get one from a friend in the form of a small white cement pellet about the size of a disk, 25 mm in diameter and 8 mm high, said to contain the secret crystals of the "B-cell". All that was needed was to leave the disk in a gallon of water for twenty-four hours to impregnate it with the "B-cell" qualities and then use the water for watering plants and for feeding stock.

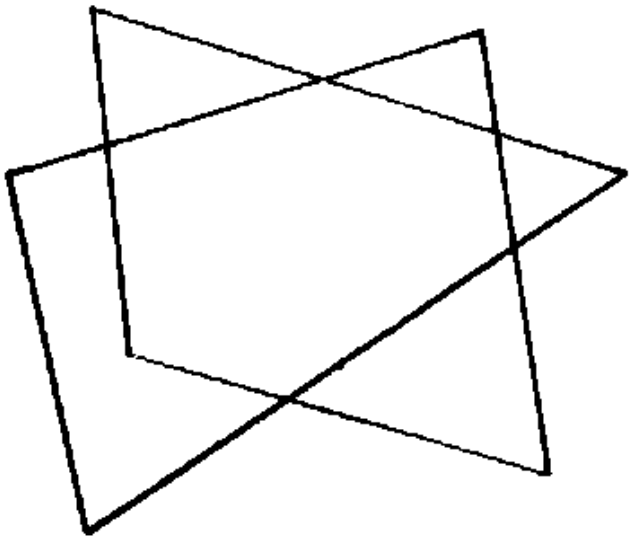
Many radiesthesists tested these cells and found no radiations or diviners' reactions which could detect any trace of living cells. The only radiations which could be found were negative green, and these disappeared when placed in a special radiesthesia "faraday cage" which indicated that the disk had merely been charged with negative green but did not generate any radiations on its own. The "B-cell" water was identical to that which has been vitalized by a pyramid and produced an increase in growth over control plants. Experiments by Noel MacBeth and L. Poblin in England also indicated that there was a marked difference in growth the following year between plants placed in the soil which had not been treated the previous year and the site where the "negative green" water was used. The pendulum showed that the soil on the site was still charged with negative green. Placing the water for four minutes in a nonmetallic container in a pyramid aligned North produces a vitalizing effect, the plants cropping heavily without any fertilizer.

Enel experimented by using forms which separated a single vibration of the growth factor from the negative green band which he called the "Omega vibration". This

Omega wave we now call the Pi-ray, after the Egyptian "PY-RAMUS" which means to "rise again at birth". Enel noticed that every organic substance subjected to this wave form remained fresh indefinitely and without disintegration. He surmised that this wave must be the ray of "the eternal force radiating from the source of life." It seems that John Brown, without realizing it, used in his "B-cell" the Omega wave in the negative green band. Poblin devised a form which gave this vibration radiesthesically as follows:



By placing water in a receptacle on top of this form drawn on paper laid between two pieces of nylon fabric, he claimed that the water received the pyramid vibration in four minutes and that plants get more vitality from this water than they do from an actual pyramid charging procedure. So we are dealing here with the power of symbols and forms at another level altogether than the material forms. By experimenting, Poblin found that charging a pebble with the Pi-ray or Omega vibration and placing it beside the root and stems of the plants gave the same effects with ordinary watering as the negative green water had given. The impregnation of pebbles and stones of semi-precious value has been continued by many researchers since, including Wilhelm Reich who called his energy "orgone". By moving the color wave tuning ring on an aura pendulum to the ring position of infra-red, orgone can be impregnated into stones and water while rotating the pendulum in a righthand spiral over the object and can be extracted by rotating it to the left. Beneficial cosmic background radiation is tuned to (ordinary) red cursor position; human magnetism to the position of indigo; prana to green; and "negative green" (Omega wave), now called the Pi-ray, is tuned to radiesthesia grey.

Orgone energy, concentrated in a coffer, has a strong reaction with any radioactive or ionizing substance. The sun's rays are ionizing, and so are radio waves, elements such as radium or uranium, and negative ion generators. Dr. Reich believed that orgone energy circulates in the atmosphere of the planet in the same direction as the earth's rotation, and many enthusiasts believed that orgone was the force which gives the homeopathic remedies their particular energy. But all these speculations have been superseded by the research on magnets and their effects on growth of seeds and plants and by the tuning of pebbles or of semi-precious stones such as quartz crystals and gems to the Pi-ray which is generated by spiral forms, magnets and elements which amplify the life force. Thousands of French radiesthesists investigated this phenomenon, and a few researchers in Britain and America did their own research and called the force by different names, from "eloptic energy" to "mana", but there is no need to believe in orgone, omega vibrations or geometric forms because all these are merely adjuncts to the power of our own consciousness WHEN IT IS PROPERLY TUNED TO SPECIFIC CONDITIONS.

There are a lot of "superior" people who do not like gimmicks and consider the pendulum or anything else for tuning consciousness to be inferior. Just as a physicist can use a computer or work out an equation in his head, so can a person go to town in his car but will need a rocket and a computer to get to the moon. To disdain tools merely because our own consciousness is so rooted in its own ways that it cannot believe the results of others is only to indulge in a fit of egotism. We must validate everything ourself and accept nothing on authority. A master of consciousness does not need instruments to sense the invisible worlds, but this does not mean that he will not use them, any more than a good carpenter will refuse to use a power tool in preference to a hand tool. Spiritual snobbery is rife in this field, but I have noticed that the snobs never can get results that even an amateur can get by using the right tools for the job. Humble people often get results that completely mystify the intellect which rejects a psychic tool and accepts a plausible explanation instead. The very snobbery in many cases puts a negative suggestion into their consciousness so they do not get new results.

The Pi-ray can be tuned not only with a specially designed pendulum but also with a device such as the coffer with a magnetic field placed in a certain resonant cavity with a spiral form and certain particular chemical elements or by placing certain geometric forms over a magnetic field.* The Pi-ray coffer and the Pi-ray pendulum have been developed to meet the need for those who find it almost impossible to fine tune their consciousness to these subtle wave forms. No one would think of tuning their minds to a radio wave and so these detection devices are tuning devices similar to a radio receiver in that they consciously tune the mind and the nervous system to harness the unconscious mind to subtle forces.

HOW YOU CAN USE POSITIVE PYRAMID ENERGY

BIOLOGICAL USES
Accumulating Vital Life Force

Capturing the life force for proper utilization by our body, nerves and brain is what all life is doing by eating, drinking or holidaying in the sunshine. The ability to store more life force or oomph in our body and mind creates the difference between being loved as a high energy person or being depressed by lack and shortage of vitality.

The invention of tools which harness Nature's more subtle energies is a new and expanding science which you can prove for yourself. You don't need any authority or expert to tell you what to do, because your own magic genie is waiting to serve you at every moment. Your own consciousness is your jewel and genie which you can now tune in to higher being.*

The story of Aladdin's lamp is an allegory for the powers of our purified consciousness.

One such tool for this type of Supersensonic tuning is the Pi-ray Coffer, with which you can charge up your pendulum through the lefthand spiraling energies of the Pi-ray. The coffer is constructed in such a way that it isolates the positive biophysical effect from the harmful negative down-flowing energies of the pyramid form which contain both good and bad influences. By masking and focusing of a magnetic field at the center of a pyramid diagram on the lid of this coffer, the equivalent of a King's Chamber is created and the harmful portion of the rays which arrest life and dessicate matter are inhibited. Your pendulum is shielded from the surrounding vibrations of color and form and energy which influence the detection of subtle matter fields and it is also "armed" and ready for use, charged with the very life force which makes it work in the diviner's hands, nervous system and consciousness.

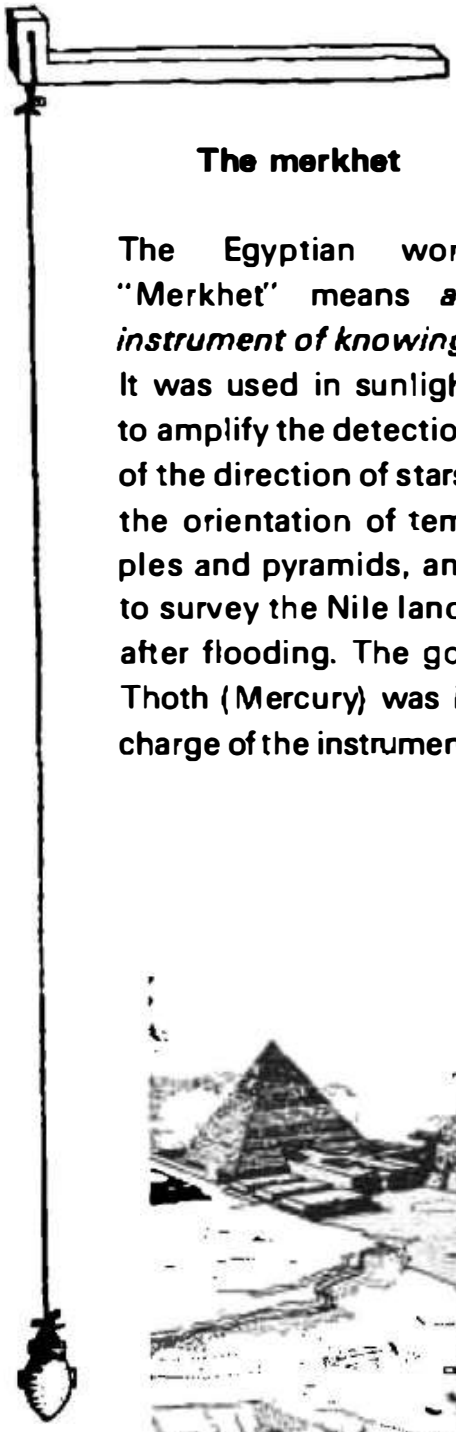
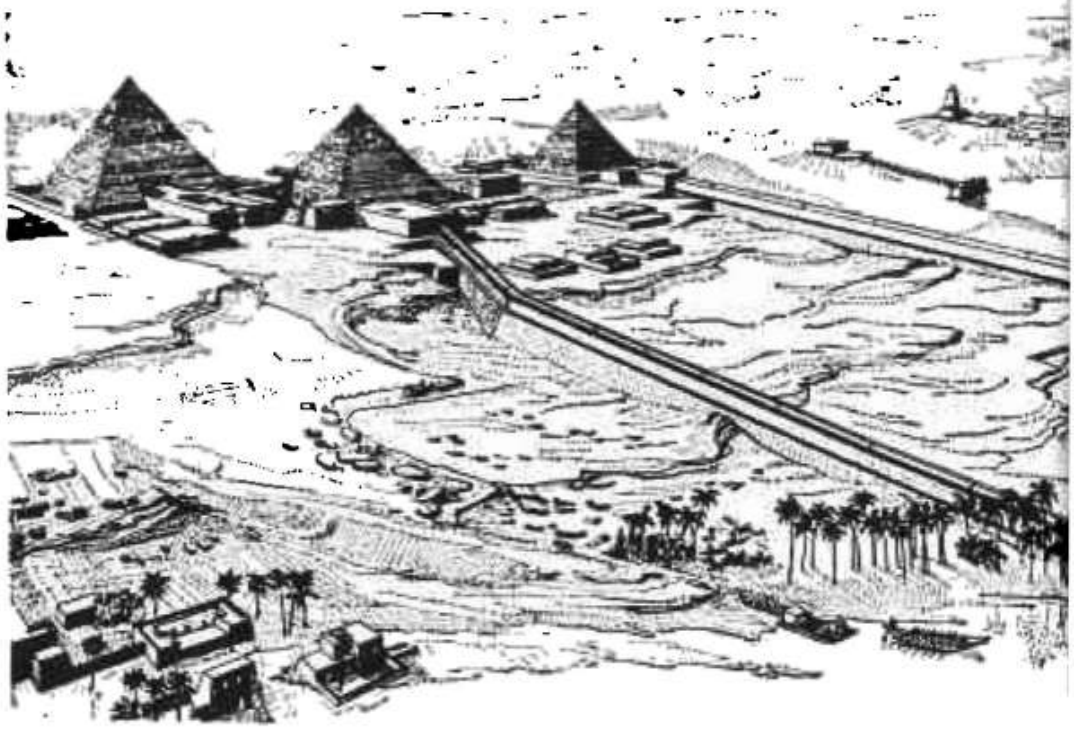
Some biophysical psychotronic instruments connected with the operation of pyramid energy and its relation to the "Ray of Creation" now called the "Pi-ray".



The merkhet

The Egyptian word "Merkhet" means an instrument of knowing. It was used in sunlight to amplify the detection of the direction of stars, the orientation of temples and pyramids, and to survey the Nile lands after flooding. The god Thoth (Mercury) was in charge of the instrument.

Drawing of a ceremonial form of Ank in gold from Egypt. Taken from author's collection.



Reconstruction of the pyramid complexes of Nefer-ir-ka-re. Ne-wes re and Sabu-re at Abusir. The pyramids were built to capture life fo and channel it to the dead.

The pyramid energy orgone box was adapted from an invention called the "Auradyne" by Servranx, Bervroux and Herrinckx who found that the combination of certain chemicals such as sulphur produced tangible effects which could be experienced. The author traced the relationship of antimony and other substances and found there were other catalysts which could focus the psychotronic forces in the box, which were then used for experiment.

Experiments with the effects of consciousness on cheese cultures as well as human life were done as follows: a common medium and culture was mixed in milk and divided into three bottles. Sample A was placed in orgone box and C was sent negative thoughts, curses, etc. Sample B was control. In testing it was found culture A took a longer time but was very sweet, culture B was of nondescript flavor and took several hours less to mature. Culture C was quick and made cheese in less than twelve hours but tasted acid and was bitter.

The above experiment led us to postulate that the time of processing to maturity in natural systems, e.g. the cheese ripening process, was conditioned by external thought fields. These results were verified after checking with manufacturers of cheese cultures, when it was determined that certain emotional/physical states inhibited cheese growth, e.g., women who were menstruating were sent home because cheese cultures would not grow in their presence in the factory.

Photographic Evidence for a Subtle Energy

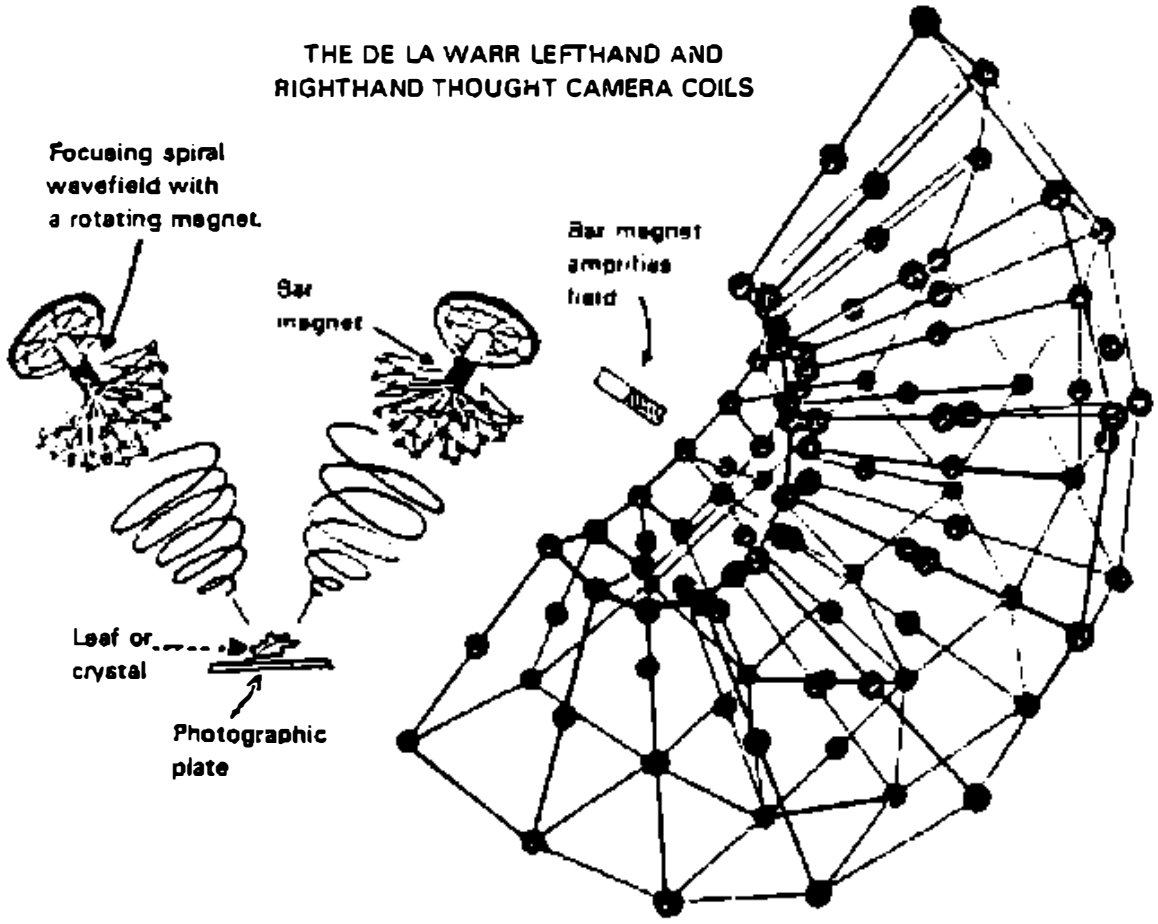
If the mind can interact with bacteria in a growing milk culture then it was reasoned that other living systems in Nature, plant life, biological cell structures, may also be influenced by thought fields.

An experiment to discover how prevalent the ability to create ionization patterns from the living cells of a plant leaf was conducted regularly with twenty people once a week at our London research center. The procedure was very simple. Some photographic plates sensitive to the blue part of the spectrum were given to us by George De La Warr of the Delawarr Laboratories in Oxford, England, in an attempt to find people who could operate his "thought camera" and at the same time, for our purposes, check the phenomenon of bioluminescence by the impregnation of psychophysical energies into a leaf of a tree. Each person would enter a dark room for a minute and place a photograpic plate over a leaf which had been taped to the table at its critical rotation angle. This angle in respect to North was determined by dowsing with a pendulum when the leaf was rotated through 360 degrees until a diviner's reaction was obtained. Then each subject would place his hand over the plate and send a burst of energy through the plate into the leaf. The plate was developed immediately in the dark room and fixed in hypo as soon as any image began to appear. This was repeated by each person. Of the twenty people, four persons consistently could produced the pattern of the leaf on the plate, suggesting that approximately 20% of all people could ionize the film. It was then tried with positive film instead of negative with the same or similar results.

Soon after I discovered that in 1935 there had been an experiment done by Louis Turenne, described in his fifth book. It showed the reproduction of photographic plates which had been sensitized by various objects such as a magnetic needle, a pearl, his radium block and various "witnesses" created by the vibration of powders. These photographs showed that an ordinary pearl produces an hexagonal pattern while a cultured pearl reveals an octagonal field.

A live chestnut was placed inside a coil together with a sensitive film in a photographic darkroom with the film covering the South opening of the coil. It was left for one week. When developed the film showed some big spots in a specific pattern, with a multitude of small spots everywhere. Another sample of a drug containing morphia produced small spots on one side only and no large spots like those produced by the chestnut. The effect was attributed to ionization and was tested with other substances; mercury produced no spots and was the same as the control film. Dialyzed cobalt produced a pattern of large flakes. It is also claimed that in France seeds treated by this method were found to produce the best vinestock.

Coupling this information with the principle of the Auradyne invented by Servranx, Bervroux and Herrinckx, the author conceived the idea of creating a device which incorporated the psychotronic phenomena of the ionizing of a tree leaf with the focusing power of the De La Warr camera coil plus the coil with a catalyst, as outlined by the inventors of the Auradyne.



A further catalyst was added made of one of the natural elements which showed by reaction of the divining rod that the phenomenon was enhanced in its presence.

HOW TO REPLICATE THESE EXPERIMENTS

To repeat these experiments make a copper spiral of 21 turns and 5 cms. diameter using wire of 2.5 mm. approx. thick. The end of the wire nearer the center of the conical coil tends to be positive and the wider end is negative in most environments. Lay the coil horizontally with the negative end or widest part of the coil pointing towards magnetic North. This orientation increases the power of the coil.

Now enter the darkroom and place the specimen of a leaf, chestnut or crystal inside the coil. Stand the photographic film at the South end of the coil with its emulsion side facing the specimen. Uncover the film in the darkroom and leave for one week in total darkness. Fix immediately and compare the spots with a control film which was left in its packet of light-proof paper. Test with mercury (no spots); test with anything containing consciousness affecting drugs; test with cobalt and other elements to establish patterns of ionization for each sample.

VERTICAL COILS

The same results were found with pancake coils each containing seven separate lengths of copper wire. Make alternately zinc and copper pancake spirals and place one on top of another but not touching. Use rubber bands to insulate the spirals from each other. All opening ends of the coil should be pointing North. This pile can then be left upright while the photographic plate is vertically stood against the openings of the coils.

The results after one week from this copper/zinc pile psychotronic wave generator will be seen as a pattern of "clouds" situated at the top half of the photographic plate. The pattern appears on the vertical plane above the level of the pile of coils when the plate is developed.

THE AURADYNE CONSTRUCTION

The Pi-ray Coffer's design as a commercial product cannot be disclosed completely. However, the box, originated by three pioneers of radiesthesia, was described in the May, 1948 issue of "Radiesthesia Pour Tout". The inventors, W. and F. Servranx, J. Bervroux and W. Herrinckx, based their design on a previous box called the "Boite Bignand". The Bignand was connected to the main house current but no current actually passes and the instrument only charges up like an electric condensor or capacitor. The box was said to radiate an orgone vibrational field which could be detected by the dowser's rod from two meters away. Some operators considered the box as a climate producer. Controlling the climate in a room was achieved by placing a medicinal remedy on top of the box. Servranx claimed that the radiation of the psycho-physical type could be coupled to a radionic broadcast unit like a De La Warr box or coupled to a radio receiver set to the phonographic pick-up leads. The transmission of inaudible radio waves emitted by the receiver set was said to be enough of a physical stimulus to energize the room with ionizing rays.

EQUIPMENT PROCEDURE FOR VERIFICATION

Inside a small wooden box of convenient size there are the following components: (A) dry battery 4.5v.; (B) fixed condenser 0.1 microfarad; (C) cylindrical metal box, about four inches in diameter and about two inches deep, containing approximately 2¾ oz. potassium dichromate in powder, extra space being packed with dry cotton; (D) air choke, homemade, 4 cms. diameter, 36 cms. copper wire 2mm. guage, to make an upright coil with the wire turns about 1 cm. apart from each other, all fixed to a cork attached to the box base; (E) "Transmission Cylinder", a tin can about 7 cms. deep like an old tobacco tin). This is suspended from the front of the box, and it is the only component visible as soon as the lid is in position. The center of this "E" is connected by thin wire to the (-) of the dry battery. Insulated copper wire is used for connecters a1, a2, a3, B, C, but coarse nylon thread (say fishing line size 50) connects the top of choke D to the bottom of cylinder E; the nylon will convey a "dielectric" force to the transmission cylinder. As soon as the lid is in place, most radiesthesists can "feel" the influence emitted from the transmission cylinder.

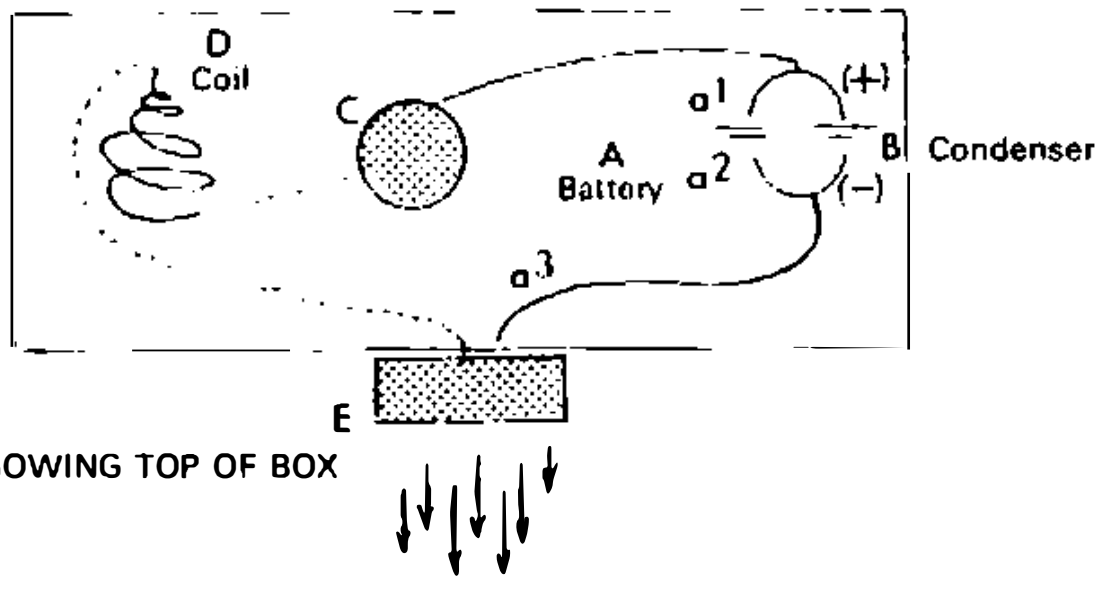
Cannisters in aluminum (+−) should preferably be used, like the kind used in camping lanterns. Rock sulphur, 1/30th oz, should be kept by a plug of cotton at the bottom of the Transmission Cylinder. Adding small pieces of gold, silver and aluminium to the container seems to strengthen the "radiation". The transmitting cylinder can be, if preferred, placed on top of the lid instead of being on one side. Let novices note that the (+) of the condenser must be connected to the (+) of the electric battery, the red wire of the electrolytic condenser being colored red. The nylon does not require any kind of insulation. The (−) of a dry battery is usually the longer of the two brass terminals, and it leads from a zinc catalyst placed in the back of the transmission cylinder E.



PLAN SHOWING TOP OF BOX

The influence coming from the Auradyne was similar to the Boite Bignand since it matched the radiations coming from a spiritual healer's hands. The Auradyne somehow filtered out radiations of the electrolitic kind which used the human body as a physical transducer. The range of the Auradyne was said to be about twelve meters with a beam of about one meter on either side of the emitting side of the box.

It was found by experimentation that other catalysts and condensers could amplify these effects in place of the rock sulphur or in combination with it. Rock sulphur absorbs radionic wave fields which are horizontally polarized and enhance the penetration of vertical fields. This may be why water diviners wear a sachet of sulphur when out in the field since vertical fields are electric, like water, while horizontal fields are magnetically orientated.

The Auradyne as described is not intended to be a substitute for medicines, but only for producing a tonic effect, which experiments show it does. The influence produced is radiesthesically in sympathy with animal magnetism and with the colors lemon and dark yellow, orange, pale violet, ultraviolet and white. The user, it seems, should be aware of the treatment taking place, but in order to benefit he does not have to believe in the efficacy of the process. The period of treatment is between three and ten minutes, repeated several times daily. An overdose may be shown by the desire for sleep or else by irritability. In no case is any real harm produced.

The Pi-ray Coffer has a long history and is the final outcome of several thousands of years' research by different civilizations. The force of consciousness and its ability to set subtle radiations going through a focused magnetic spiral has only recently been understood and is a subject of ongoing research at the University of the Trees by the students of the author. The box or coffer which simulates the King's Chamber in the ancient pyramid produces a strange force which can be put to use in a number of ways in everyday life and this can be put to the test.

Lining the inside walls of the coffer is a copper spiral with a positive end at the bottom near the center of its axis and a negative end at the top which is directed towards the north pole of a magnet in the lid; this increases the coil's power. The coil cancels the effect of negative green and allows only the Pi-ray to descend into the box, thereby isolating the life force.

There are four elements in the natural chemical world which can be used to amplify this effect and the Egyptians sprinkled one of them on the floor of the King's Chamber. The Pi-ray Coffer uses this same element to increase these polarity effects of the earth's field forces.

HEALING WITH THE PYRAMID FORM

Whereas the anticlockwise vertical negative downward flow of a large pyramid form can be dangerous over long periods to those who are out of tune with the "life force" harmonically speaking, the vertical positive energies of the visible green part of the spectrum which flow upwards from the capstone of an exact copy of the pyramid, can be beneficial, although they are usually masked by the large amount of positive green energies produced by plant life of the surface of the earth, and by ionization of the air oxygen by the sun's rays.

A photograph of a sick person positioned above the capstone of a pyramid form will subtly broadcast positive green energy to that person irrespective of distance. If one uses the healing power of the Pi-ray, it must be filtered out of the negative green band by means of a skillful tuning device such as a color pendulum which employs a spectrum marked with radiesthesia grey (or negative green which is invisible color) which lies in between infra black and infra white. To create these infras requires a deeper study of the principles which are merely outlined in this book.*

The student is warned not to play around with negative green pyramid energy as if it were some ordinary color. Even ordinary colors can be quite poisonous if they are not in harmonic resonance with the individual's radiation. Colors beneficial to one person are harmful to another if they are reflecting or being absorbed at a greater intensity than the individual's own capacitance. Harmful effects of injecting color rays, by tuning a pendulum used for treatment and curative purposes, will follow as soon as the radiation selected has restored the patient's equilibrium. Once a saturation point has been reached, what was previously curative has then become harmful. There is an alternation of effect which must also be dowsed by a divining instrument so that overbalance does not result. Life and death are forces of integration and disintegration; perfect disintegration and elimination of the unwanted energies are just as important to perfect health as ingestion.

By placing objects or even living things such as plants, seeds or cell life in the coffer, the life-giving rays are concentrated in the object. It is easy to check results. Even without a coffer the south end of a magnet will increase growth of seeds and plants. By using a magnetic field as well as a focusing device like the coffer the object inside it becomes charged with life force. Because these energies are very potent it is important not to put any biological specimen belonging to a human in the coffer unless we determine through use of the pendulum the exact maximum amount of energy that is healthful to absorb.* To go over the maximum amount desired may be harmful.

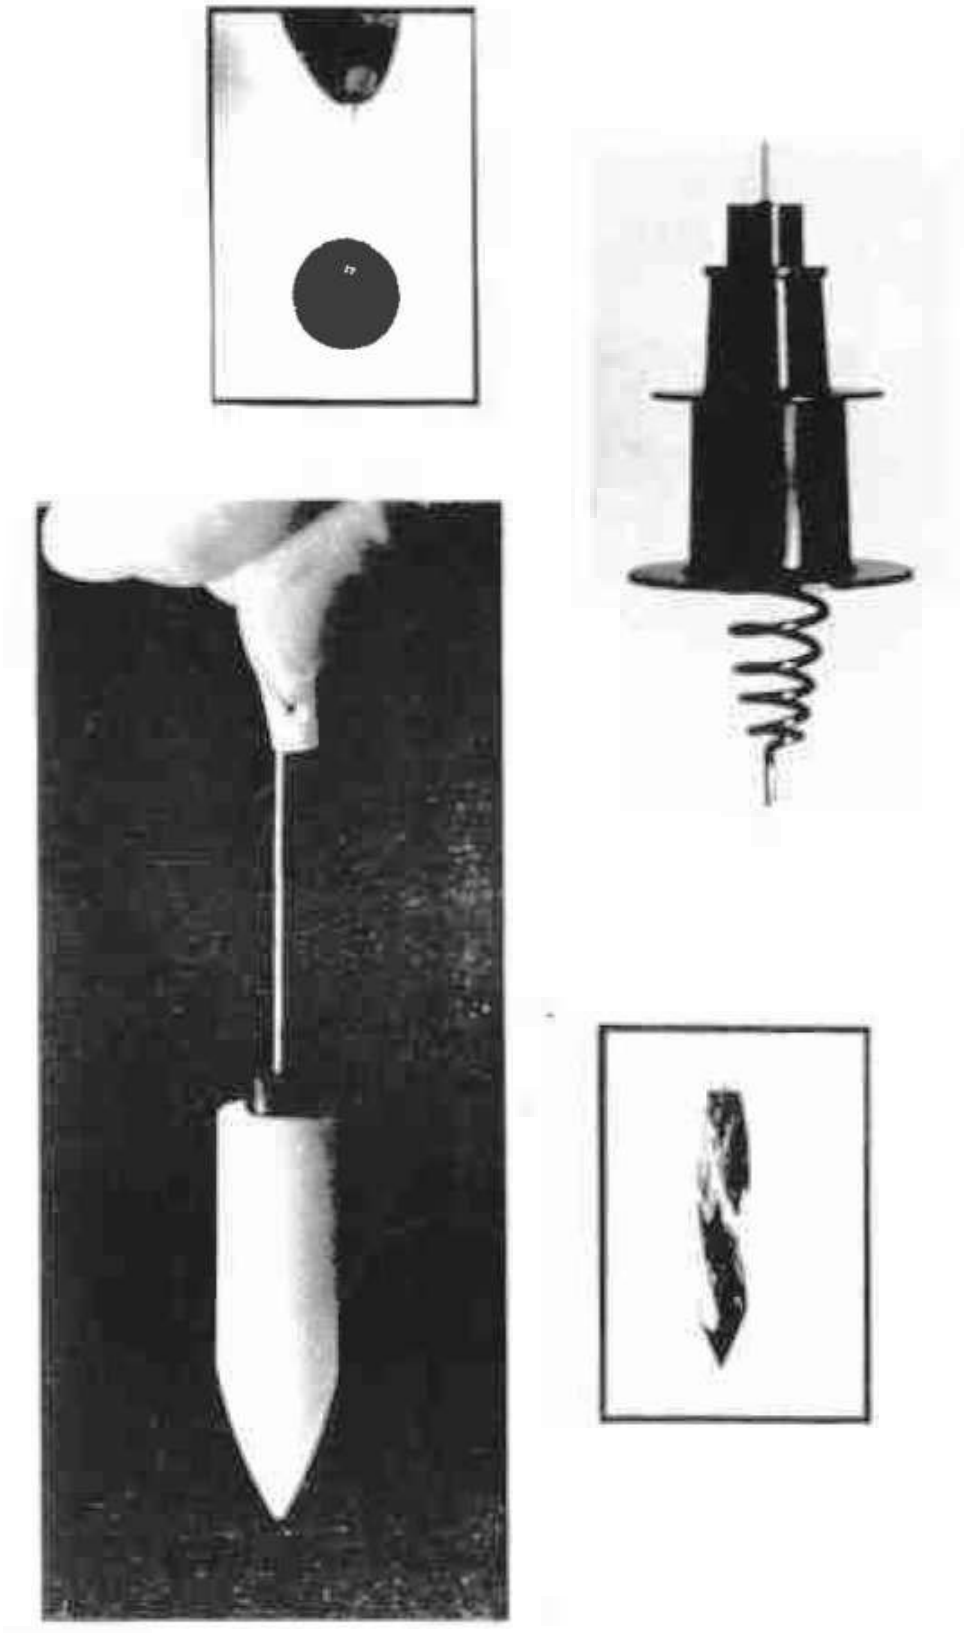
Suppose you wanted to increase the size of a certain plant in your garden. You could take one of its leaves off and place it in the coffer and leave it long enough so that the plant would pick up the life-giving forces. By treating it every day in this fashion you could watch the difference in growth of another similar control plant next to it. This should prove to you that the box does have some magical power over growth processes in Nature.

* To learn proper use of a pendulum see Supersensonics, or the layman's step-by-step how-to divining book Alive to the Universe, both available from University of the Trees Press.

Now you can extend this to your own body. Place a sample of your blood, obtained by pricking your finger, on a piece of tissue inside the box and orientate it to magnetic north exactly in line with your compass point. You can feel this energy over a period beginning to affect you and can experiment directly by observing the result on your health, your moods and your energy levels. Remember, these energies are often helping the enhancement of whatever is in your mind so if you have a deep-seated problem the expansion of your energies may increase the problem. So first be sure you have a positive attitude, for whatever you set going in your consciousness will be amplified in the result.

ARRESTING DECOMPOSITION

In all of Nature, including atoms themselves, there is disintegration going on which cannot be stopped by man completely. Even the preservation of foods by refrigeration depends on an external source of power which would not work if some human agency did not supply electric current continuously. So to find some energy or ray which arrests normal decay and breakdown of organic substance is highly improbable. Nevertheless, the Pi-ray in the Incredible Box can be tested time after time with different products for its preservation power. To prove this for yourself take some foodstuff or a liquid such as milk. Leave it in the cavity in the center of the copper spiral and it will keep fresh for much longer than normal. Try and experiment with different foods such as fruits and watch them dehydrate daily. Be sure to orientate the sides of the box with a Merkhet-type pendulum as used by the ancient Egyptians for lining up the orgone accumulator with the earth's magnetic field, or you can use a compass.



The Merkhet pendulum, lower left, and other pendulums available for research through University of the Trees Press.

NONBIOLOGICAL USES

Uses have also been discovered for pyramid energy other than for healing. The ancient Egyptians found, for example, that for the purpose of navigation the forces set up by the large mass of the pyramid generated an intensity of the Pi-ray which could be detected over several thousand miles. Thus, in the expansion of the Egyptian empire it came to be used as a navigational aid, not only for location of the royal ships at sea but also for the detection of desert caravans and as a source of direction finding. By pointing their divining rods in the direction of the pyramid they could always get a bearing as a fix in the same way that we use "Loran" or radio direction-finding equipment today. The pyramid of Giza which we call the Great Pyramid is constructed differently from all other pyramids in Egypt for generating waves of energy we call L-fields. This pyramid could not only be used as a spiritual instrument for collecting life force but also as a reference point or lighthouse for the Egyptian divining rods used in surveying the land and in measuring angles of stars.

Crystals and the Life Force

The ancient Egyptians also used the pyramid to store up life force in objects, especially crystals. They believed that, once charged, the crystals could be worn as magical talismans or healing stones. Thus they were used for such purposes as warding off "evil spirits" and increasing the fertility and vitality of their crops and herbs, as well as enhancing their personal strength and courage.

Scientifically speaking, their beliefs were founded more on fact than superstition. Many items radiate energy and ionize the air around them. Science is just rediscovering these effects through laser technology and X-ray crystallography. Certain stones have crystalline structures that readily absorb and re-radiate powerful energies. The ruby laser is a good example; properly focused, its emissions can burn a hole through solid steel. Some clairvoyants are able to see energy emanating from certain "charged" crystals. Today, through Supersensonics, one can detect the auric field of certain crystals and measure the difference between charged and uncharged ones.

Some crystals, such as varieties of quartz and some semi-precious gems, have the characteristic property of enhancing the wearer's vibrational bioenergy and, when used in conjunction with the Pi-ray Coffer, can become a powerful ring or amulet which amplifies the wave-field of its wearer.* In this way the Egyptians used to transfer the life force as healing radiations for headaches and other ailments of psycho-physical origin. Some crystals can also be charged in such a way that their power increases with use because the hidden resources come from an inexhaustible supply of cosmic energy. These must be set going by an act of pure consciousness in combination with the life ray.

Amulets or rings to be worn by a person can be charged up with healing force over a twenty-four hour period, but use your pendulum to check when the correct amount of Pi-ray has been absorbed; an overdose is harmful to your subtle energy fields. Also, do not charge during the night alone; the most powerful results are obtained in direct sunlight.

* Crystals are available from the University of the Trees Press. See back of book for details.

The Egyptian Ankh and the Life-Giving Power

The Key of Life in the shape of a T surmounted by an oval was called Crux Ansata by the ancients. It was regarded as the key to the mysteries of life and gave rise to the myth of the golden key of heaven given to St. Peter. The initiates of Egypt's mystery schools passed through many imaginary and actual dangers in order to purify their imaginations. By holding the Crux Ansata as a divining tool, the powers of darkness in the unconscious mind fell back and revealed the nature of Pure Consciousness at the heart of every human soul.

The Mayan civilization had similar representations of the key of life on the breasts of its statues and sculptures at Capan and Palenque. The symbol is always associated in these sculptures with water and also was the emblem of the water gods in Babylonia. The water divining faculty was amplified to measure the wave-fields of consciousness and thoughts. The Crux Ansata was used by the ancient Egyptians to measure the land surface inundated every year by the Nile. The symbol was carried in the right hand by the gods and pharaohs, signifying contact with the life-giving power through this instrument of knowing. The same power revealed to the author the secret of the pyramid and enabled him to build the Incredible Box which accumulates the life force in the Pi-ray.

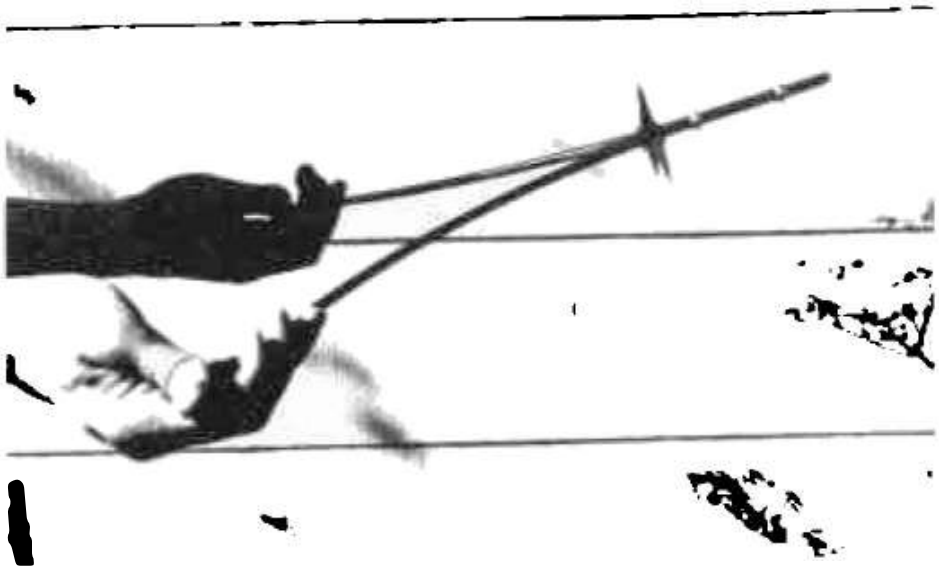
All divining rods are basically the same, whether they are made of metal, polyrod, whalebone, wood or even switches from a tree. They differ only in their selective power. However, as each person is different, different materials with differing densities and springiness affect the results. The diviner has to find what suits him or her best. The ancients used willow, peach tree, forked twigs or Egyptian type rods shown in the hands of various dieties.

At the University of the Trees we use black delrin rod exclusively because of its resilience and the fact that it is a dielectric polymer. Dielectric material helps the rod transmit and focus the subtle negative/positive energies of the diviner. The Egyptian Ankh Divining Rod is excellent for water divining and detection of positive and negative vertical fields.

The Turenne Magnet-Fitted Divining Rod is the most sensitive we have found in our research because the addition of magnets increases the selectivity and makes the rod extremely sensitive to the diviner's reaction. The Turenne Rod will detect vertical waves, horizontal waves, East-West flow, symmetry or mirror images, invisible ultra colors and sounds depending on how the magnetic needles are set.*



Rods are preferable to pendulums in walking open territory since the pendulum requires you to be stationary, while a rod can be used while walking along. For this reason the ancient Egyptians used an ankh divining rod for a host of purposes.

* For full information on these divining rods see Supersensonics or Alive to the Universe, available from the publishers.

THE AMERICAN DOLLAR AND RAYS FROM THE CAPSTONE

In later chapters we shall refer to various tools of diviners such as rules, balances, disks or wave-guides. For now, however, it is not necessary to understand these terms. What matters is this: How does the box produce the incredible results with health, growth and life? Let us begin with a brief history and go into more specifics later.

Long ago the forefathers of the great United States of America, who founded a mighty nation and brought about a revolutionary spirit of individual freedom, were trying to think of a national seal. They chose the symbol of the pyramid with a capstone floating above it radiating rays of light and with an eye looking out of it. Did they have foresight or were they impelled by some unconscious force to pick a symbol which was to herald the discovery of a new energy of human consciousness?

We believe the choice was conscious. It is known that the founders of the USA, particularly Franklin and Jefferson, were Masons, and they have a long tradition of passing down esoteric knowledge from the Druid sects which originally formed the Masonic orders in England long ago. It is not well known that Masonic rites were Druidic rites of the Bards, a section of the Druid family which specialized in the affairs of the world, while the primal researchers remained hidden.

OUR DRUID FOREBEARS

The Nordic peoples and the Druids had three grades of practitioners—the primitives, bards and ovates. The place of the latter in the healing arts and the science of divination was equivalent to the Egyptian priests and the leaders of the mystery schools of Greece. Much of the Druidic knowledge has been lost, although some famous people have held the office of Chief Druid secretly. The ancient temples such as Stonehenge were Supersensonic devices built not as mere ceremonial structures but as cosmic generators. Through testing the stones in the outer ring of red sarsen sandstones by Supersensonic means, the diviner detects a positive reaction while the inner blue stones which came from several hundred miles away in Wales give a negative reaction. Between the two circles of stones and the inner horseshoe of Trilithons there is a static wave-field which could have activated the biological balancing of the nervous system of those suffering from ill health. The activation of seeds with lodestone magnets before planting at the time of the new moon enhanced the fertility of crops. Even after planting this structure could well have acted as a Supersensonic stimulator or broadcast unit for crops in the same way that we now stimulate the growth of plants with music and thoughts. With antimony sprinkled upon the floor the interaction between the red rocks circle and the blue stone circle becomes amplified and the static field is ionized with the sun's light. Investigating the astronomical data of Stonehenge with a Supersensonic device reveals a whole book of facts which shows that the ancients not only selected their crop seeds and healing remedies by divination but investigated the higher, more subtle energies in man's vehicle. For instance, the wide outer ring of holes containing the ashes of human bones not only holds the cremated remains of a long line of Druid chiefs but is also a witness of the dead spirits which could participate in the disk's effectiveness as discarnate intelligences. The student is able to ask any question in his consciousness and get a yes or no answer from this disk which amplifies the dowser's signal at the source.

The old Druidic myths hold much symbolic knowledge which can only be revealed to those who are willing to commit themselves to a proper unfolding of the vehicle of consciousness. Having acted as presider over the annual ceremony of the Druid Order at Stonehenge at one of the summer solstices, and having had the late Chief Druid, Dr. Thomas Maughan, a medical doctor, give a three-year course in homeopathy and Druidic healing methods at our center in London once every week, the author can vouch for the authenticity of the Druid teachings. Their knowledge of the stars and their invisible cosmic vibrations and the subtle energies of Nature's plants could have only been known by secret methods of detection by divination.

What are these secret teachings of the masters of consciousness so skilled in the various arts of man? The ancient Druids were divided for functional purposes into three principal orders, the duties of which were stated in the Triads. The Primitive Druid works according to Reason, Condition and Necessity, his mission being primarily to instruct in all sciences and religion. This is the equivalent of an adept, working behind the scene.

The Bard, according to the Privileges, Rites, and Voice of the Druid Convention, has the office to supervise, regulate and to lead. The Ovate works according to Nature, Exertion and Incident, and it is his vocation to act on the principles of observation and inventive genius. All grades should enjoy perfect freedom wheresoever they may go.

The Druid's robe is white, the color of Light, Purity, Wisdom and Knowledge. The Bard's robe is sky blue, emblem of Justice and Truth. He should become the symbol of Peace and Goodwill at all times, and be worthy to pass unmolested from place to place. The Ovate's robe is green, symbol of budding life, the growth and increase of Learning and Science.

The adept was an expert diviner who could tune into the language of Nature, talk with trees and herbs and use the Supersensonics methods of dowsing Nature's finer forces. He passed on his methods of knowing Nature's finer forces to the Bards and Ovates and trained them in the skill of direct perception.

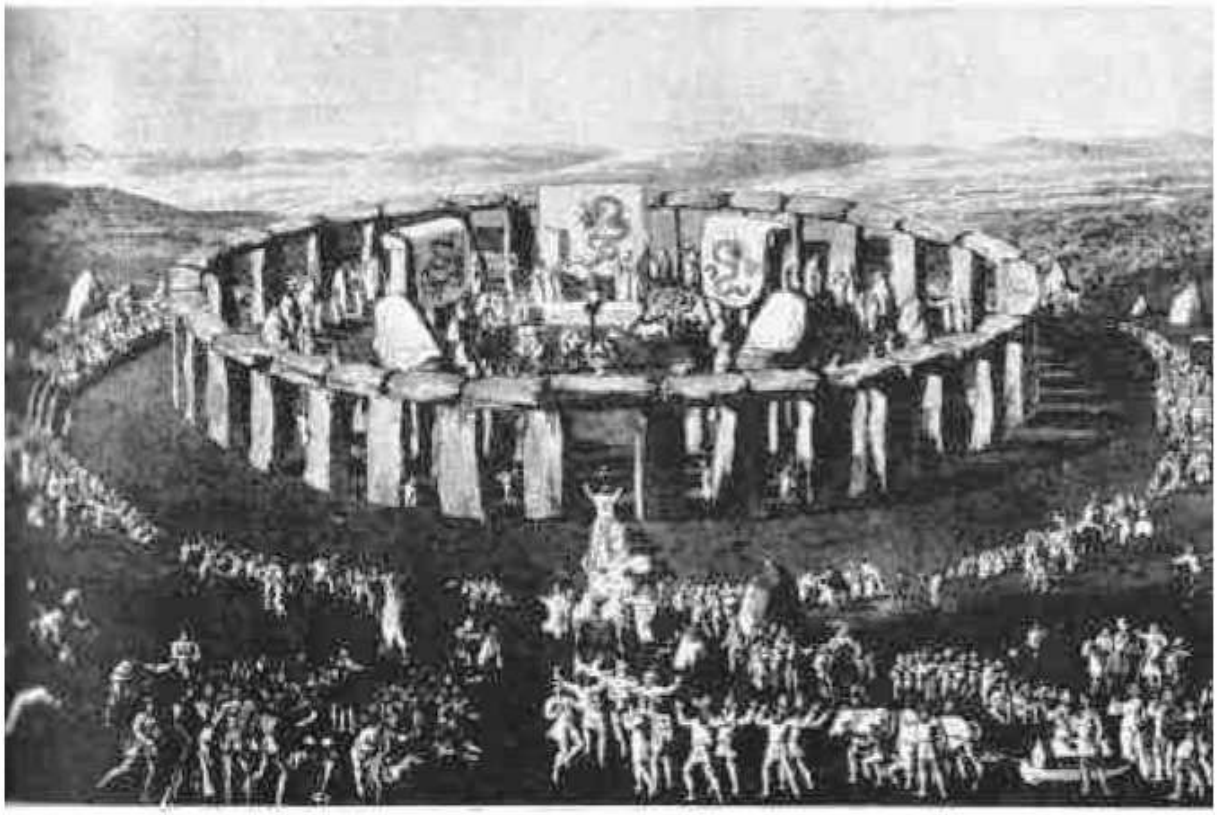
Said to be of earlier, non-Celtic, non-Aryan origin, the immigrant Celts were introduced to Druidism by the Megalithic people of Britain, and later taught the continental Celts who were sent to Britain for training.

The Megalithic people were derived from the "Power School" and the first teaching was based upon "power, perfect and supreme, within the laws of the universe". The second settlement people added the teaching of the "Wisdom School" from which they were derived, and it was from this time that Britain became the recognized headquarters of the Druid cult.



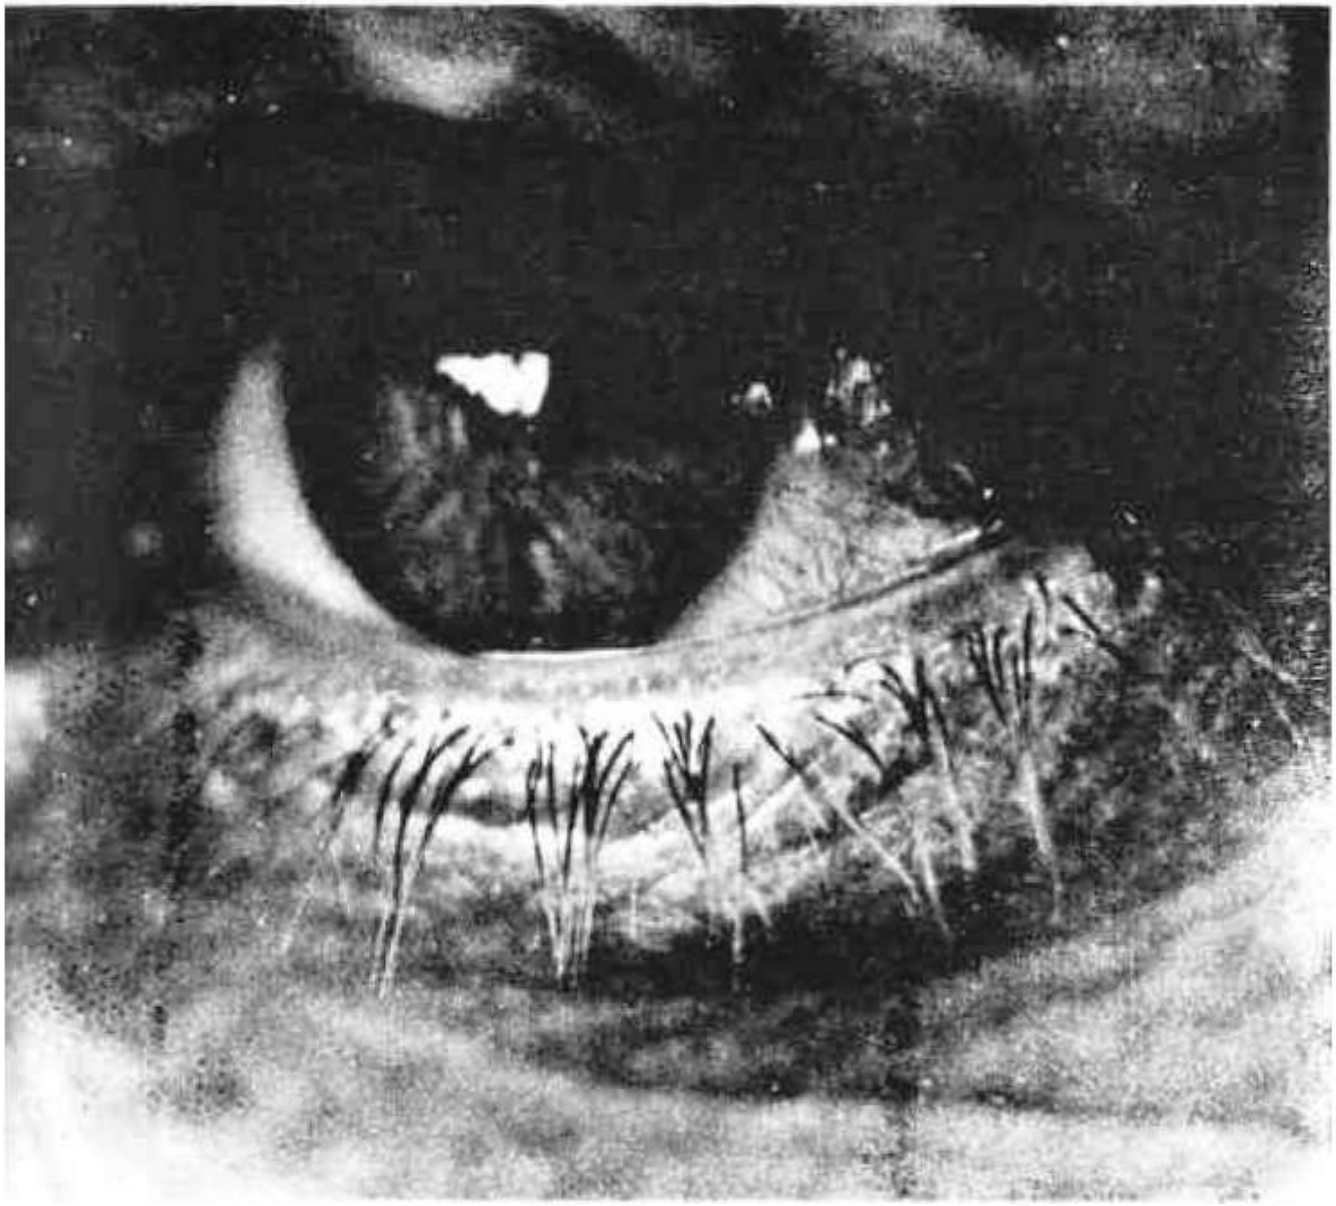
The neophyte of the Druid system is called an Ovate Og which can be translated "young twig or shoot". In the Hermetic system the first ceremony was numbered $0^{\circ}0_{\square}$ which signifies that the candidate will fulfill all obligations to the past (clear his karma) and is not yet obligated to the future.

Until he achieves this state of real freedom, he is not in a position to begin the Great Work for his next move (which involves him in a series of ten steps). The Great Work is the $1^{\circ}10_{\square}$, signifying that he is working on the first step and is karmically involved in the whole ten. $2^{\circ}9_{\square}$ means he is on the second step; one completed, nine to go. O.O. also represents Knight of the Orient and Occident—one learning to balance the East and the West.

WHY THE MASONS CHOSE THE SYMBOL OF THE CAPSTONE

The US Treasury says the eye on the capstone of the Pyramid represents the eternal eye of God. However, any student of esoteric symbolism knows that the eye depicted in the capstone is a symbol for consciousness which has become single and ONE, which has completed the Great Work. Christ said, "Make thine eye single and thy whole body shall be filled with Light." The capstone on the dollar bill is shown radiating the glory of this light of consciousness which is at the back of all human eyes and incidentally behind every human action. Without the power and light of consciousness nothing can be achieved or even thought of. Therefore the light of consciousness is the real jewel which must be understood before America can really go forward to its destiny and manifest the words under the pyramid: Novus Ordo Seclorum, "a new order of the ages."

On the dollar bill we find the words in Latin over the capstone atop the Pyramid: Annuit Coeptis, meaning "God favors our undertaking." Could they have anticipated the great discovery of the pyramid energy and the secret of its sarcophagus? A look at the relationship of the Druids to the Egyptians gives us the answer.



As explained earlier, the coffer placed at a certain angle under the capstone in the inner chamber is the clue to the ancient mystery of the Pyramid. The King's Chamber was intended by the high initiates who planned and built the Great Pyramid to be an initiation chamber for the Hermetic teachings then current at the school of Heliopolis in central Egypt and spiritual capital of the known world. The cult of highest resonance with the life force from the sun was called the "power school" and was brought to the Celtic peoples who were on the edge of the Egyptian empire by the Druids from the ancient civilization of Mycenae.

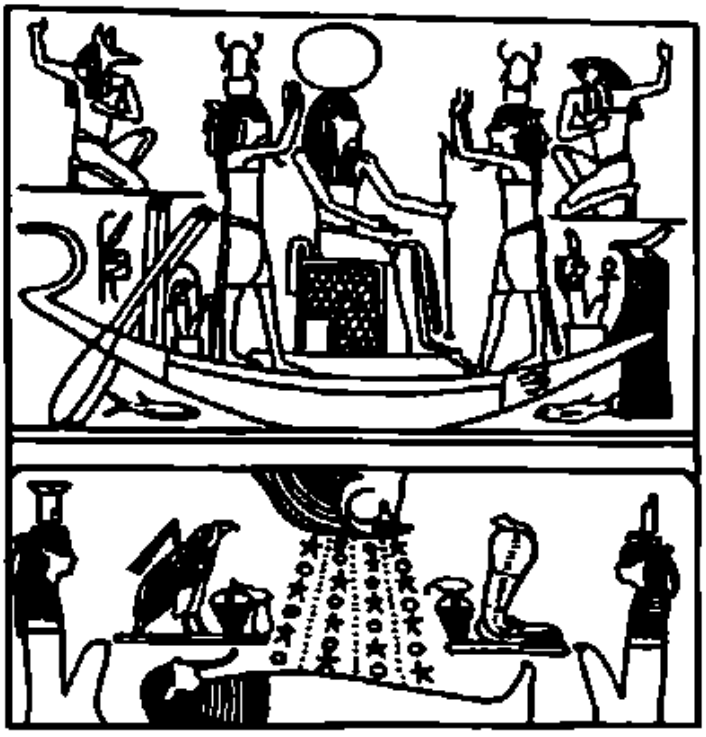
This symbol of the Triad was communicated through a long line of adepts from ancient civilizations long destroyed by their abuses of consciousness. It was transmitted to the Egyptians and Hindus several thousand years before Christ.



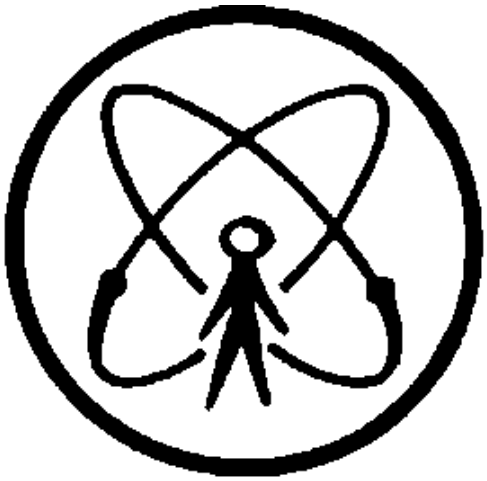
The Egyptians enthroned Horus, the resurrected son of the unified one, Osiris, as the West has done Christ. The ceremony of enthroning "Horus of the Horizon" is shown below from the papyrus of Khonsu-Renep (21 st Dynasty). Note the scarabs over the heads of the deities of yesterday and tomorrow linking the eternal life with human life force.

THE NEW SOURCE OF POWER

The forefathers of the USA knew that only the rays coming from the capstone were positively charged and green energy. (How our expression fits our dollar bills when we say "good green energy"!) And so they knew that having control of this radiating energy could bring man to the threshold of a new source of power.

One day the forefathers of this great revolutionary nation, which has been accused of being an imperialist force in the world, will stop turning in their graves and see that what they planned for and hoped for has come true. The fact is that the USA has not expanded its territory in any part of the world without a free plebiscite vote of the people concerned and owns no colonies, nor does it maintain any dominion over other states by coercion or force of arms. Yet it is falsely accused as "Imperialist". Perhaps economic imperialism could be a more valid term, where some real justification for this derogatory term is applicable, but even then this commercial expansion has taken place with the consent of the poor nations and with the government encouragement of all the nations concerned. Any exploitation of countries economically has not been deliberate and evil intending, but more from the point of helping both the big corporations and the economies of these poorer nations.

We must forgive actions taken in ignorance. The sin, if any, has been blind ignorance of the effects; it is not a deliberate ignorance of how this economic power would be viewed by the recipients in the future. Human ignorance of later developments is obvious to those with foresight. Any clairvoyance or foresight would have seen all these overseas economic investments confiscated by the very governments which attracted them to their country in the first place.



THE GREATEST DISCOVERY

The new US power and energy, however, will not belong to those multinational corporations or to the great capital-rich owners of the energy utility business. The new energy which will be gradually put to use by more and more sophisticated research will put the cosmic life force and the secret of good health within the reach of every man. Great crops will be produced using the pyramid force at the capstone and this same force could become the foundation or cornerstone of a new age.

In the long term it may be seen that more important than all the brilliant nuclear achievements and the fantastic communication systems which weave a network of micro-waves around the electromagnetic skin of the earth planet is the secret of this small but incredible box! Because its prime fuel is our own consciousness, it is only limited by our own limitations. The pyramid energy once properly and safely controlled gives man the secret of joyousness and wholeness and all that man wishes for.

The deceased spirit being taken into the spiritual worlds and rising to the source of light waves from which consciousness is derived. The soul rising from the lion couch is shown from the papyrus of Ta-shed-Khonsu.

UNDERSTANDING THE PI-RAY

It was not known by the most erudite scholars of ancient Egyptian artifacts that the Egyptian culture was centered around divining. In the time of Moses the story of his contest with the Egyptian priests and their powers of the mind was often taken literally when it was said that his rod turned into a snake and devoured the snake of the priests. The rod he used was a diviner's rod and the entire Egyptian culture was based on this method of contacting and using the powers of consciousness. It is also not often realized that the Egyptian symbol for wisdom or knowledge was the snake and that thousands of years before this the Aryans had a symbol of a snake swallowing its own tail as the symbol of supreme wisdom obtained only in the enlightened state by supersensitive means of knowing.

The supreme knowledge of Nature's forces was considered the highest state of consciousness in the Egyptian civilization and the various tools and instruments of knowing shown in the pictures of pharaohs, gods and priests are all different kinds of divining implements and rods. These spiritual instruments were always used in conjunction with the nervous system to get feedback from the gods who represented natural but subtle energies governing the control of "life force" on the planet earth. They studied the various forms on earth such as the pyramid and sphere and with these instruments discovered their spiralling energies. Similarly ancient Chinese sages carried divining implements and scepters for tuning into the nature spirits and intelligences and developed systems for understanding the cyclic energies of the cosmos. The Chinese sages studied the energies within the sphere and found that the same force rotated within its two halves in a spiral leading to a point of balance at the center. They discovered that along the leading edge of the balance point there was flowing the energy of "negative green" which caused disintegration of material forms as they reformed and changed their polarities. They symbolized this in the well known symbol of the yin yang.

Both the Egyptians and Chinese found the same energies in totally different ways of thought by divination of Nature's finer forces. The Egyptians discovered that all spherical shapes and half spheres and pyramids emitted a strange force which gave control over life energies. The force was later investigated by a team of French researchers using similar instruments who named this downward flowing force "negative green".

THE TURENNE DISK

One such researcher was Louis Turenne, an engineer and a professor of physics lecturing on the propagation of radio waves at a military academy in France. He was inventor of the Turenne Coil which figured prominently in the early days of radio transmission. He also invented a disk which would indicate the harmonic color of any object according to its vibrational field. The method was to use a pendulum which would detect the angular orientation of any particular element in Nature. Between the colors black and white existed an invisible color which represented the disintegration of matter. This spontaneous disintegration was not only measured on the disk but could also be detected coming off certain points of a sphere.

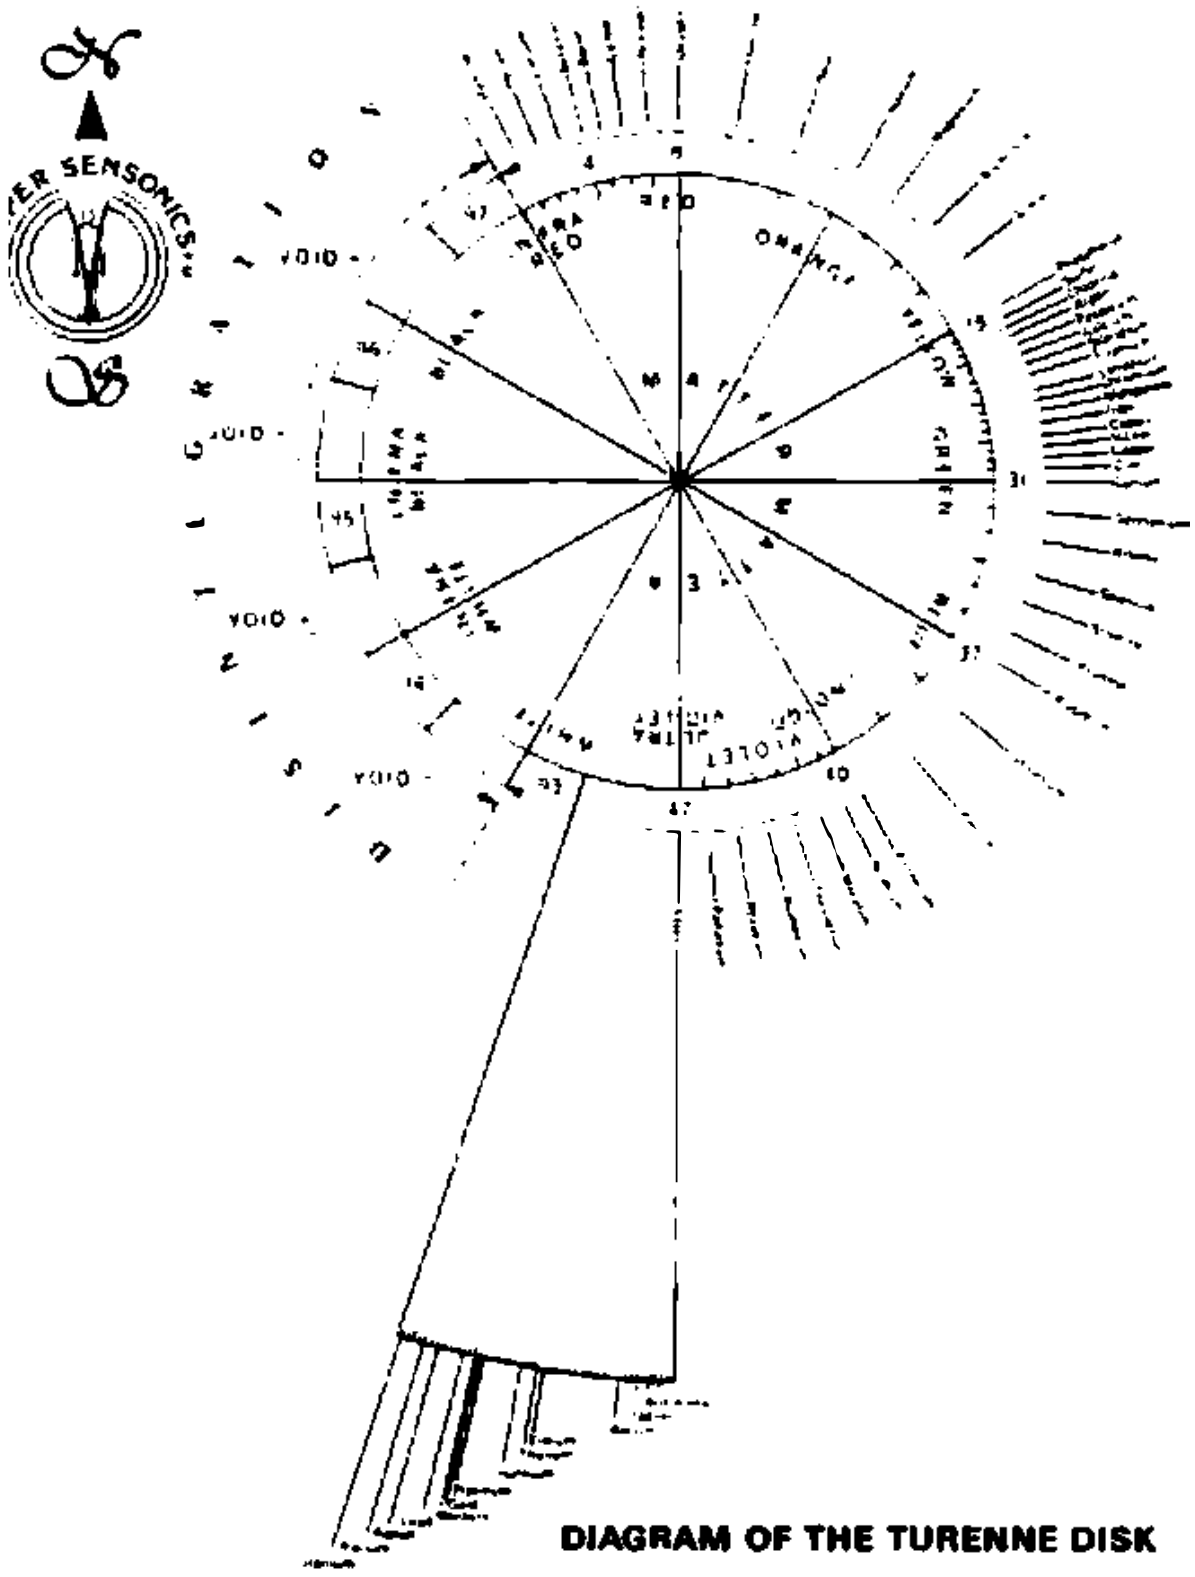

DIAGRAM OF THE TURENNE DISK

Below the surface of the wood is a witness of radio-activity orientated vertically. Angles of all the chemical elements are shown around the circumference. The pendulum reacts in the hands of the diviner and swings towards the marks for any element placed as a sample on top of the disk. In this way the subtle energies of material substances can be detected and their vibrational wave-field analyzed. The disk is a map of Nature's finer forces and acts as a tuning device for our nervous system. The human body acts as an "excited antenna" which responds to the subtle radiations experienced in our subliminal consciousness.

SPHERES AND HALF-SPHERES

This mysterious property was called "negative green" because it was detected on the surface of a sphere at a point diametrically opposed to the position of "visible green". This negative green was also discovered by the earlier radiesthesists as "Radiesthesia grey" which was the position on the color disk between the positions of black and white. Therefore it was the ray of perfect disintegration on the Turenne disk. The pendulum rotates clockwise over visible green and anticlockwise with the same tuning when suspended over any negative green source. The detection of negative green indicates disintegration or a source of radiation which rotates anticlockwise.

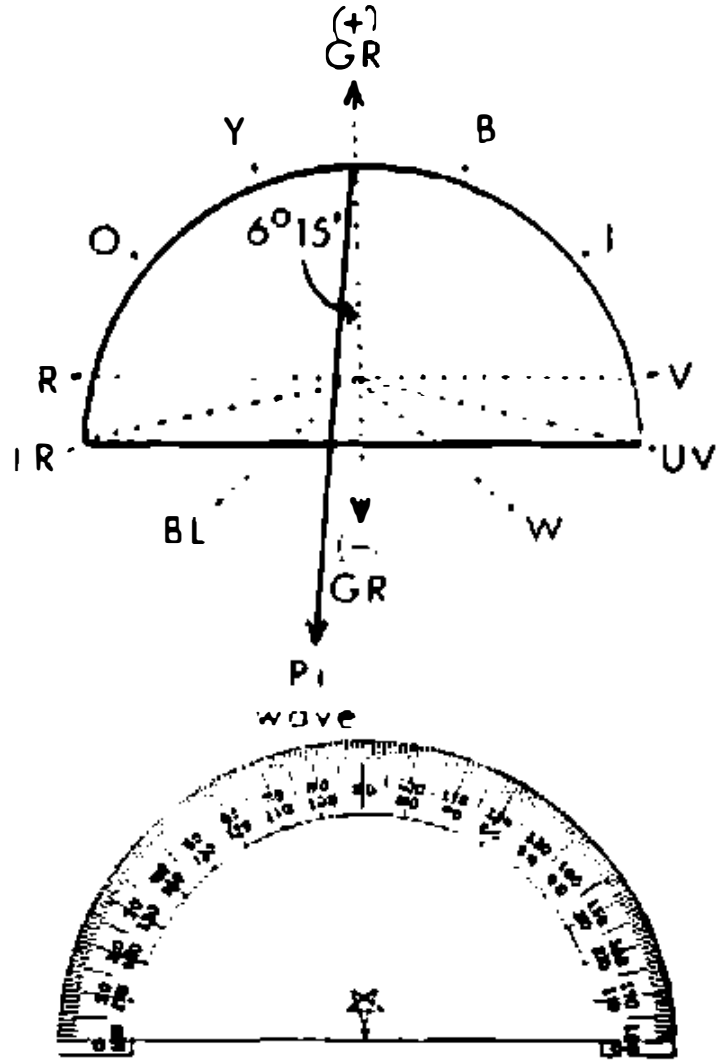
GENERATING THE PI-RAY

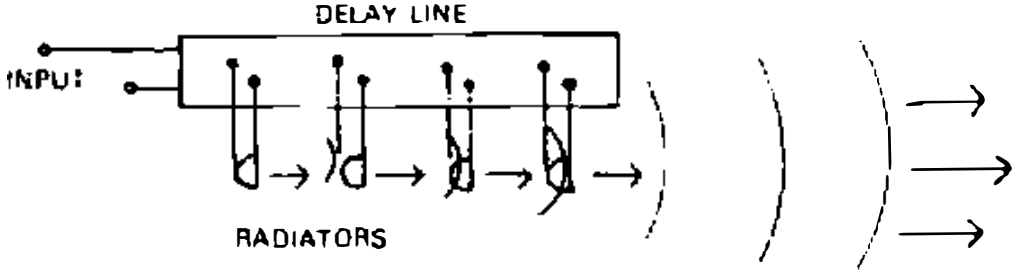
The French pioneers of radiesthesia discovered that the ancient Egyptians knew how to generate the Pi-ray by using the pyramid and half sphere forms. The illustration shows how the pendulum reacts at different points and angles, each angle representing the forces emanating from the center of the forms which corresponded to the colors. The same investigators found that a half-sphere placed upon a support with the curved side uppermost produced points upon the surface which modified the effect of color angles. This resulted in the position of a negative green band being sandwiched between the colors black and white.



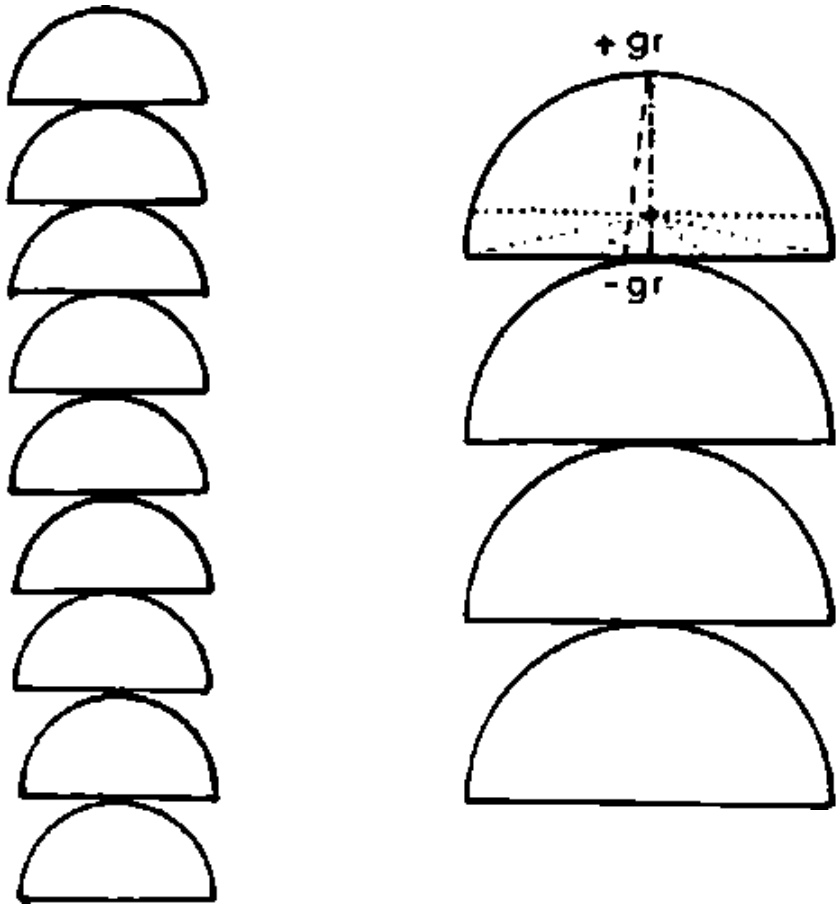
On the flat undersurface of the half-sphere the colors of the invisible spectrum were detected while the harmonics of visible colors were detected by the pendulum on the upper curved surface. This meant that at the center of the half-sphere a much purer wave-field of negative green was obtained. Next came the discovery that a pyramid form produces exactly the same results as a half-sphere, with positive green at the apex and negative green isolated at the center of the base.

By testing various other objects used by ancient civilizations for religious purposes, these researchers found that not only the pyramid but many other objects of antiquity from cultures separated by many thousands of years emitted strong radiations of negative green wave-fields. Particularly objects used for religious purposes such as the statues in the Easter Islands, the statuettes and ritual objects of ancient Egypt and the Yin Yang symbol, all showed that mankind had known how to employ this force for specific purposes. By multiplying the number of forms producing this force a wave-guide increases the intensity of the radiations by producing end-fire arrays.

An end-fire array concentrates the vibrations of electromagnetic energy so that it issues forth in the form of a beam. Many radiesthesia pioneers used this method which is now used by modern radiowave transmitters.



END-FIRE ARRAY ANALOGY WITH MODERN MICROWAVE GUIDE



The above end-fire array of nine hemispheres was arranged by Compte deBelizal for healing purposes but he found that this gave too much negative green energy. He found that four hemispheres was the maximum number that we could absorb continuously without getting an overdose.

The Great Pyramid of Giza has a sarcophagus of granite in the Royal Chamber which has four enormous stones placed over it one above the other with a triangle which describes a half-sphere as a roof over them. It is important to note that this apparatus not only intensifies a certain part of negative green but is set off from the central axis about ten meters to the south side. Isolated within this negative green band is another ray which can be filtered out; this wave-front radiates at an angle of 6°15' off the east-west plane which is perpendicular to the north-south axis of the sphere or pyramid. This is between the vertical axis and the color black which Enel called by the Greek letter Pi.

The roof of the King's Chamber of the Great Pyramid is lined with red granite resonating chambers. Their construction arrests the powerful negative effect of the downward energies but allows the Pi-ray to filter through into the chamber. The spiral coil in the Pi-ray Coffer serves exactly the same purpose.

It appears that this structure blocked much of the negative green but like a filter allowed the Pi-ray to fall on the sarcophagus.

The pendulum reveals that the whole of the King's Chamber sarcophagus is not only irradiated by negative green rays produced by the form of the pyramid but also with a Pi-ray concentration derived from this strange array of four identical elements superimposed on each other to form a battery of end-fire arrays.

ACCUMULATING LIFE FORCE

Other bodies of research have centered around the life force energy. Von Reichenback coined a word "odic force" for the rays which come off the growing tip of certain crystals. By having clairvoyants view these crystals for their etheric surrounding aura he was able to postulate that all matter had some connection with the positive and negative aspects of the earth's electromagnetic sheath. The yogic concept of prana or life force, made up of different kinds of Tatwas (essences) varying according to the angle of the solar rays, is similar to the Japanese Ki or Chinese word Chi which passes along certain channels in the body. The study of these wave-fields of energy is very complex and needs the use of the right tools which are described in my book, Instruments of Knowing.* Professor Harold Burr of Yale University called these fields L-fields probably because he had read the work of Louis Turenne who used the term L-field from the 1920s to denote the length of the wave form emanating from a source.

* See back of book for details on how to obtain this book

 See Your Electro-Vibratory Body by Victor Beasley, Ph.D. for more on the work of Dr. Harold Burr (pages 167-171).

Wilhelm Reich called his isolation of this energy "orgone" and many claims were made for it. In 1960 I visited an engineer in Imola near Bologna, Italy, who had constructed an enormous radar-like structure on his roof which could be orientated like a huge antenna. Two pipes supposedly conducted the earth's energy into an orgone box. The box is made by shielding with plates of zinc and steel wool so that when we put our arm inside it, there could be felt a distinctive cooling electrostatic effect. At that time I was very skeptical because I had visited a number of kooks throughout the world. The engineer assured me the energy could be captured from the box and sent into an ant to make it grow ten times as big. I asked him to demonstrate. He poked a long plastic tube with a needle probe at the end of it at an ant and to my eyes it stayed the same while he assured me over and over it was growing bigger. I asked if it could blow up an apple and he assured me anything organic would grow remarkably and visibly. I took an apple and measured around it with a piece of string. He poked the apple with his orgone tube and told me, "Look, look, it's growing bigger." I told him it was the same size. He said, "No, don't you see it's twice the size?" I measured its girth with my string and concluded he was another kook. What he was doing was creating a concentration of electrostatic energy in his box and the rest was in his imagination due to self-suggestion.

I had spent years trying to capture this life ray with its growth factor and I was not going to be cornered into believing something which looked so professional, chromium plated and fancy. I found that orgone or Mana, as the Kuhunas in Hawaii call it, would obey consciousness but its effect was only to enhance the growth of organisms when they were in exact resonance with it. This meant specific tuning and it was not until my friend and colleague George De La Warr brought out his thought camera that I found a way of orientating the sample or witness to a conical spiral field in order to focus it. It was this development that enabled me to isolate the Pi-ray as Enel, Chaumery and Belizal had done in their pendulums and hemispheres. Afterwards I found that concentric circles with the numbers 9999 inside them could generate the same effect without any physical coil or spiral. I was surprised that a mere pattern could have any effect on psychic forces.

THE PSYCHOTRONIC EXTRACTOR SINK

By combining the concentric circle studies by Turenne, incorporating the principle of the auradyne invented by three pioneers of radiesthesia, W. and F. Servranx, J. Bervroux and W. Herrinckx, and by adding a catalyst, I was able to create a sink which would absorb the harmful rays of negative green and isolate the Pi-ray. The healing powers of this sink can actually be felt and people report feeling better almost within minutes of holding it. Because it is not possible to make claims that it can take away toxins and dump cancerous wave-field patterns into the sink without testing the device with medical doctors, we are releasing this instrument only to those interested in researching its effects.

The Psychotronic Extractor Sink showing the human being as part of a circuit with the universal field. The wand is held in the left hand while the right hand is charged with a nine-volt current. The sink contains distilled water which is poured away after noxious energies have been eliminated through the biophysical effect.

I invented this Supersensonic instrument to meet the need for a powerful extractor of warped negative energy patterns and toxic vibratory conditions from the human aura or energy body. It is designed to remove negative energy conditions radiesthesically and bring balance to the seven primary energy centers or chakras of the auric energy field. This has a salutary effect, in turn, on the nervous system through the etheric nerve plexuses associated with the various chakras. Once these negative energy conditions are removed, the natural immunological systems of the body are free once again to help the body eliminate various poisons which have been deposited as a result of the negative thought conditions. In addition, sites of heavy deposits such as tumors, abscesses, etc. can also be eliminated with the aid of the Extractor Sink. After the negative energy is removed, the natural cleansing and elimination systems of the body then take over to dissolve and remove the deposit.

The Psychotronic Extractor Sink utilizes the Pi-ray energy. It consists of a light transmitting polymer wave-guide rod through which subtle psychotronic energies can pass, focused into a Supersensonic beam by magnets at either end. When the handle end is held near one of the chakras (or a deposit), the lefthand spiraling psycho-physical negative energies from that center are focused by the magnet and accelerated down the rod into the water-filled receptacle at the other end. These negative energies are forced out of the chakra by the action of the Pi-ray coming in.

The Extractor Sink has a special radiesthesic charge with an array of four natural minerals and a radium salt stimulator which triggers the operator's response to the Pi-ray and amplifies the effect of the charge. The Pi-ray passes down the rod into the chakra, where it forces out any negative energy conditions. This extraction process is facilitated by the consciousness of the operator who erases doubt from his or her mind (doubt being one of the greatest blocks or inhibitors of the flow of psychotronic energies, and a major cause of warped negative physical conditions as well). This whole process of using our own nervous system is amplified electronically by the addition of a nine-volt transistorized circuit, one end of which is attached to the treated person's finger, the other being attached to the copper coil which acts to extract the negative condition through the light sensitive rod. The mirrored handle together with the chemical it contains prevents noxious vibrations from the immediate surroundings from interfering with the extraction process. (This is a favorite method of diviners who often find local interference with the field from certain kinds of plant life—clover, etc.—and earth rays.)

The Psychotronic Extractor Sink is one of the most powerful tools we have developed to date which is available to the public. Although it is too early to make medical claims for this instrument at this time, we will give a preliminary report of experimentation done by a physicist student of mine, Dr. Robert Massy, who has done extensive research and teaching in this area. Robert reports on two highly significant experiments; each was a first for him in using the sink:

"While I was giving a seminar in New York a few months ago one of the participants connected themselves to the sink and held it up to a visible growth of about one-quarter inch in diameter, just under her right eye. She said that the growth protruded inside and outside the eye and was very irritating to the eyeball. About fifteen minutes later I checked back with the lady to see how she was doing. I found that the growth had flattened out and that she did not experience the irritation on the inside of the eye anymore. To say the least I was astonished since I was very skeptical at that time about any direct claims to healing power.

"I have also used the sink to great effect on the common cold. When I have had colds in the past I have tried all the instruments we produce, and vitamins with varying degrees of effect. I had a pattern that whenever I would get a sore throat it would develop into a bad cold that would last from one to two weeks. It seemed that I do not have much resistance once a cold gets started in this manner.

"One morning at 6:00 a.m. I went to yoga class with a terrible sore throat and had to discontinue after about five minutes since my nose was running and blocked up. I went back to my room, connected myself to the sink and held it to my throat. After five to ten minutes my nasal passages were completely clear and I was breathing freely as if nothing had been wrong. I kept the sink at my throat for a total of twenty minutes. After that time, although my nose was clear I still had the sore throat which did not seem to be any better.

"The next day I again held the sink at my throat for another twenty minutes. I was elated later in the day when I realized that the infection in my throat had completely gone and I was not incapacitated with a cold. This is the first total cure for the cold that I have experienced although I have searched for years, trying every nutritional or dietary approach on the market.

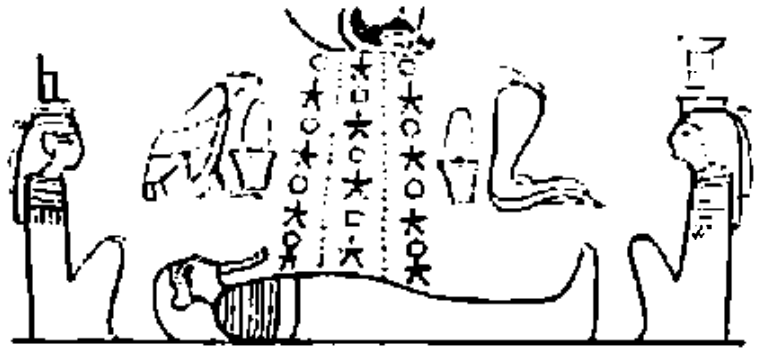
"In reporting these experiments I am attempting to show that the Psychotronic Sink has a potential that we will not fully discover until many of our readers send us their experimental results with this instrument."



The warping of human vital force and the negative patterns it assumes in a particular human body cannot, unfortunately, be measured by medical science or any other accepted science known to universities or modern institutions, but the results of this warping can be measured in case studies. By studying the patient's own reactions, feelings, bodily workings we can know when a particular method of treatment is effective or not. In spite of all the book knowledge and theories about what can be done or not done the simple proof is always in whether the patient gets better or gets worse. In all the cases where the Extractor Sink has been tried an improvement has been noticed. There have been many who have used these principles under different names.

The emanation of noxious rays from cavities and fissures, drains, and zones under a house or from alkaline and acid soils or soils infected with chemical or bacterial decay has been researched by diviners in many civilizations. Geological formations caused by cinnabar (natural sulphide of mercury) or natural sulphides of arsenic or wolfram iron or manganese are still investigated by diviners in China and Hong Kong before building a house. Even hard-nosed businessmen in Hong Kong consult experts who do "Fung Shui" which is based on the idea that every place possesses cosmic forces that influence humans for good or ill. This is particularly true around graves where decomposing bodies create a zone of harmful rays which can extend to the southwest of a cemetery or a manure heap. These zones can also be carried by underground water streams and earth rays.

ENEL AND CANCER

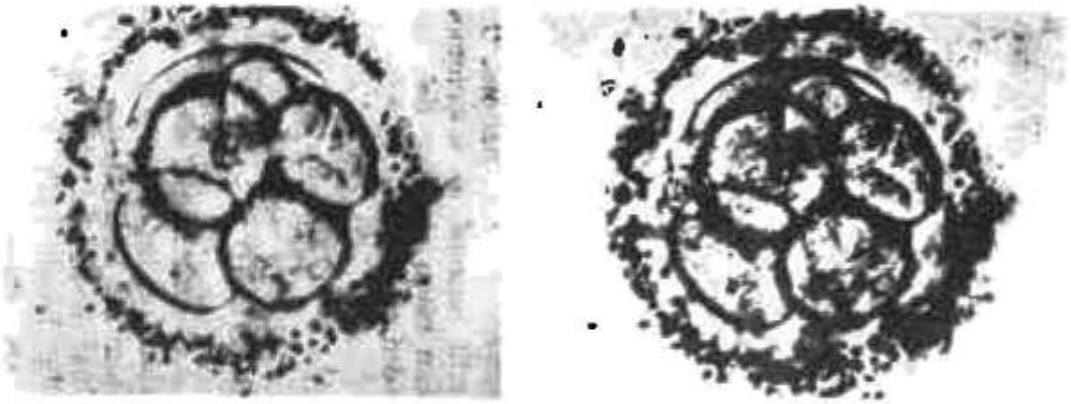
No greater researcher into pyramid energy has emerged in the last fifty years than the anonymous person who wrote under the name of Enel. Along with a host of other Frenchmen, R. Jocquet, Brard and Gorceix, P. Bories, Martial and Duborg, G. Noel, H. Mellin, F. Servranx, H. Mager, Abbe Mermet and L. Turenne, Enel investigated the nature of cancer and wrote several books in French after living in Cairo, Egypt, for some years of his life to study the actual pyramid energy involved. He was convinced that negative green, the same energy that comes downwards from the capstone and contains the Pi-ray, was responsible for cancer, and by reversing the swing of a pendulum tuned to negative green he was able to extract the cancer vibrations from his patients.

At first he did not realize that the radiesthesic vibration of cancer could travel backward into the healer. He began his work by placing a blood smear within a miniature cardboard model of the Pyramid of Giza, but found he could duplicate the energy with a pendulum tuned to negative green. He also assembled a battery of four half-spheres which he said was the limit for employment of the Pi-ray force without danger to a patient. An increase in the number of battery arrays produces a harmful radiation for a human being although Enel agreed with Belizal that up to nine hemispheres of about 10 cm in diameter could be used as limited shock treatment.

Having healed thousands of cancer cases in France throughout his life he finally discovered that his own body was riddled with every kind of cancer and he died of it. Just before he died he confided that divining tests revealed that he himself had inadvertently absorbed his patients' cancers. He then warned his students to "ground" the negative energy into a receptive substance such as water to avoid absorbing it themselves.

L. Turenne published nine volumes up to 1959 just before his death. His first volume was published in 1931. The truth of his research in negative green and other radiations was supported by his successful operation as a laboratory analyst and by finding water more than five thousand times and also oil and uranium. Many doctors were trained in his methods and he had thousands of students. He warned them against absorbing too much negative green.

Enel's book Radiations Des Formes et Cancer, published in 1951, said that the stones placed over the King's Chamber in a peculiar formation were not required architecturally and were for the purpose of shielding the coffer from the too powerful vibrations of negative green. He experimented with different strengths and found that treatment by means of the whole negative green band was harmful. A means had to be found to isolate the particular frequency for cancer and he discovered that it was possible to filter out the cancer ray to obtain a speedy recovery. He named this the Pi-ray after the pyramid. This ray gave forth the radiation of renewal of the dead cells. However, the negative radiation in which it exists gives a harmful ray because most people are out of tune with the negative green of disintegration and in tune with the life force of positive green which is representing integration in nature's processes. Negative green also comes from water tables with clay soils which reflect back cosmic rays and certain cities have higher rates of cancer based on the geodetic structures under them.



An experienced diviner can tune into living cells at different stages of growth. In the yolk of the above human egg dividing itself is written the entire pattern for the individual organism. No man can make a human egg artificially, but its course through time can be plotted by Supersensonic methods.

When the writer experimented further with this knowledge, he found that not only snails but most cell life responded to these powerful energies when correctly tuned on a C and B (Chaumery and Belizal) pendulum. Once in 1968 three specialist doctors examined a fibroid tumor growth several times before deciding on a hysterectomy operation and the writer was able to completely dissolve it within three weeks, so that the hospital bed that had been booked by the three specialists had to be cancelled because the growth had completely disappeared. The Pi-ray had not only arrested the growth but eliminated the cells of the tumor from material existence by withdrawing life from them. The tumor had taken four years to grow and had been seen and examined during that period by six doctors who all stated there was no medical alternative to its complete removal.

THE PI-RAY SUPERSENSOR

Following upon this research, I discovered that a special battery with an array of four natural elements and a radium salt stimulator triggers the diviner's response to the Pi-ray and amplifies the effect. I incorporated this array into both the Psychotronic Extractor Sink mentioned earlier and a special pendulum, the Pi-ray Supersensor.

The research for this pendulum was done over many years by French radiesthesists and improved by radionic detectors. It was further improved in 1977 by using Supersensonic detectors to find the right combination of elements which would create a field of concentrated life force antagonistic to hostile cancer organisms and other injurious patterns of disease. The instrument does not work by any medically approved methods such as harmful radiation used in "normal" cancer treatment. Several doctors are now using Supersensonic methods, utilizing the body's own defensive energies and amplifying them to rid the body of unwanted organisms.

Cancer cells use the body's own life force to live independent of the normal cell life because the natural communication system between the spiritual, mental, emotional and physical levels has broken down. To repair the cells and restore life force and to starve the cancer cells, the pendulum is used to remove the negative energy and restore the natural balance of health.

PYRAMID ENERGY AND ITS PITFALLS

Much interest has been shown in using the pyramid energy as an aid to meditation, mostly by people who know nothing about meditation or radiesthesia and are better at promoting commercial sales than research. The fact is that beginners when sitting under the apex of a pyramid do "feel" something happening inside their head and in their spine. Usually these are people who either have never practiced meditation properly under the direction of a master or who have never experienced any concentrated feelings before from sitting down to meditate. All these effects are dangerous, not only from the psychological viewpoint which is that a self-suggestion of increased spirituality by these means is of negative value and merely feeds self-righteousness, but they are also psycho-physically harmful, because of the downward rays of negative green energy.

Negative green is a powerful energy. It is the cause of most sickness and mental disturbance because it resonates with the flow of downward psychic electricity. This downward flow is the opposite of the flow which reaches up to the magnetic part of the mind. The object of all yoga is to get the magnetic force of the mind to unite with the magnetic force of the cosmic manas. The upward flow is called Radha and the cosmic magnetic force is called Krishna and these forces have been symbolized as "gods" by the credulous in the same way that Christians have personalized Christ as God. However, the intelligent yogis and researchers have always stated that such gods are creations of the magnetic power of the mind and have no real existence except as cosmic forces. To get Radha to flow upwards to Krishna requires Pratyahara which is the upward withdrawal of psychic electricity from the lower sensory vehicles of the nervous system, channeling it to the heart and then sending it on to the brain. In this way it is sublimated for higher purposes.

The diagram shows the force fields from the capstone flowing both ways. Neither is bad or good but depends on what we individually absorb and what we excrete.

This downward flow which can eventually lead to obsessive desires and abnormal sexuality or reversal of sex drive is present in everyone who allows it to function or does not attempt to eradicate it. This downward flow is known in yoga systems by the Sanskrit word "Apana" and it is the psychic centrifugal force which moves through every system of material particles, disintegrating it in the process of decay while the opposite force integrates, synthesizes and completes the unity of the system.

NEGATIVE GREEN AND MEDITATION

When applied to the forces of consciousness in meditation the downward force is the opposite of synthesis and leads to restlessness and lack of concentration. Those who feel a resonance with this force and mistake it for meditation are those who find it difficult to concentrate or meditate and need the help of gimmicks. But they could, with the same energy and desire and power of self-suggestion, sit down and give themselves a much more powerful feeling of energy moving inside their beings, which would lead to peace and stillness at the center, rather than restless expansion of centrifugal energies. Ask any person to put one of their hands at the top of your head, over the crown chakra, and the other at the back of your neck and then change over hands and alternate them in the two positions over a period of a few minutes, and you will feel much more than any pyramid meditating tent will give you. It will also mean less karma for the ignoramus who buys and markets these devices.

The immediate result of meditating under a pyramid may give the impression that you are improving and this may be true because the Pi-ray is hidden in the negative green. But absorbing negative green over longer periods may take its toll in more subtle ways. The only real test is whether it increases or diminishes our anger, our egotism, our compassion and our love.

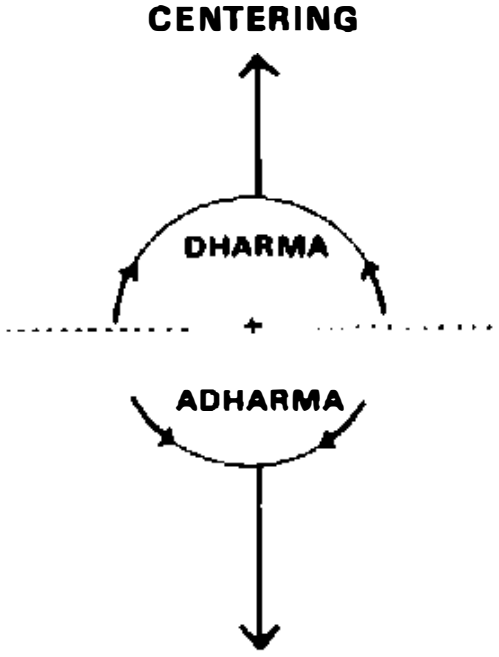
There is nothing wrong with self-hypnosis which is a branch of yogic knowledge dealing with identification of the mind and the power of self-suggestion but there is something wrong in dabbling with mental forces before we understand them. It is the psychic equivalent of a nuclear power station being run without any knowledge of nuclear wastes or nuclear physics. Many spiritual adepts fall into this downward current and become sexual aberrants because it is intensified by half-understood occult practices.



Apana Centrifugal force field is disintegrating life force in matter.

The masters of consciousness have been aware of pyramid energy for a long time. Every human is virtually a pyramid because half our spherical aura field produces life force and the other half produces the disintegration force. The balance between them is the secret of the ancient of days.

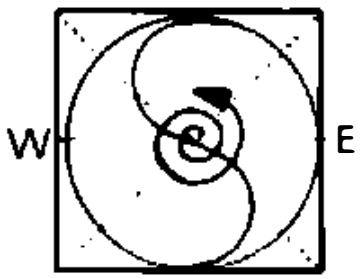
Anyone who takes a proper course of instruction in concentration and meditation and studies the nature of consciousness and ego formation would know instantly that you cannot get "high" meditations from some gimmick which merely hypnotizes you. It will wear off as soon as you stop doing it. Through your self-desire for shortcuts you can believe that this "feeling" is meditation or that you are actually getting much higher, when in fact you are actually getting lower through self-deception and "negative green" energy. The positive green energy coming from the top of the pyramid is good life force flowing upwards and if you sat on top of the pyramid it would be healthier. But experienced meditators would be able to give themselves a much stronger "feeling" merely by sitting down and doing a proper concentration exercise instead of doing some harm to their health.

The arresting of the life force can be achieved by mental practices which were learned by the great initiates of the ancient mystery schools. However, some people do this unconsciously with their own body cells and cause the life force to be inhibited, so we have the psycho-physical state we call cancer. The Pi-ray is both the cause and the cure of cancer, depending upon our attitudes.

We are safe from its effects if we resonate with the Pi-ray and understand that the energy itself is neither good nor bad but has the power to enhance whatever is put into it. Therefore it will expand our problems as well as our strengths, our faults as well as our graces. It is a double-edged sword because it manifests according to how we are in our hearts and not how we are in our heads. There is often a secret conflict between them.

The reason why a cancer cell moves freely through a living body is because it is out of tune with this life ray or Pi-ray and does not adhere to any of the normal cells. In other words if you are already good and whole and healthy physically and spiritually then you will get better still by tuning to this ray. However, if you are weak-minded and stupid enough to believe all the claims made by people who sell pyramids for meditation and who know nothing of meditation, then you will get more stupid, more self-righteous. By understanding how to isolate the Pi-ray both cancer of the imagination as well as cancer of the body can be avoided.

Drbal, the radio engineer who obtained a Czechoslovakia patent for sharpening razor blades in the pyramid, based his work on Belizal and Chaumery's investigation of negative green energies. Charles Drbal says of M. le Comte A. de Belizal: "He never ceased to repeat to me the advice to move with extreme caution with this apparatus when on the negative side of its radiation, because to stay too long in its field was dangerous for the health and would, if nothing else, cause headaches. For a little pile of 10 cm diameter of course the danger is not so great."



NEGATIVE GREEN CURRENT OF PYRAMID

The fact is that we all have the same "pyramid force" flowing through us at all times; it is either enhanced by concentration or frittered away by psychic disintegration. The results are according to the quality of our consciousness, which either identifies with the "form" or allows the form itself to affect our consciousness. It is possible for the skilled consciousness to negate the effects of form, but for the unsuspecting individual all material life is presenting itself to us and affecting us through its form. Another way of saying this is that form affects consciousness in the way that consciousness responds to it, rather than having an absolute effect on everyone alike. A pyramid to one person will give preservation of life force and to another, whose consciousness is always being pulled down into the sensational world, it will give stimulation, excitement and disintegration which increases the aging process and quickens the running down of the system. It is the way we resonate with the form and the energies absorbed by it which determines the benefits. The form is both centrifugal and centripetal and it is our consciousness which determines the results.

Sitting under the apex of a pyramid is one way to dehydrate yourself through elimination of the life-giving forces. A test of this is to take two cultures of bacteria and put one under the pyramid a little bit to the right of the vertical, say ten degrees, and leave the other outside the pyramid or over its apex. This test will show that negative green arrests life force.

The reason for this off center orientation is that negative green is not all bad. There is within it at an angle of 6°15' a narrow band in its composition, a strange life-giving and life-taking force.

Some people have said to me that they disagree with me concerning the harmful nature of the negative green energy. They say they have slept under the pyramid form with safety, that meditation has improved, that they have tested out the brain waves of people sitting under these pyramids with biofeedback, etc.

All this may be true from their position as observer. However, we have to look from many angles and see if unwittingly those who make these claims are spiritually advanced beings or merely self-righteous people who are reinforcing their own ignorance of the human mind.

It is true that if put under a pyramid things will taste better and that many things can be improved, and where taste is concerned everyone is an authority. However, in meditation, which is a great skill, there may be subjective experiences which may appear to the performer as better, but the audience, which is composed of his fellow man and the total environment around him, would observe that there was still much room for improvement in the handling of his life energies and wisdom and health.

For instance "self-suggestion" is at the back of all meditation. The union of the great yogi is the ultimate self-suggestion overruling the ego-suggestion that we are separated human entities disconnected from the total environment we live in.

The observer is not separate from the object observed.

By having a sense of conviction about the effects under a pyramid our brainwaves will become more peaceful, more relaxed into alpha rhythms. By self-hypnosis or the placebo effect we can improve our alpha without any meditation or religious beliefs and every yogi knows this. But to claim that increased alpha is better meditation is the twaddle we must avoid by greater investigation, otherwise we remain stuck in our own ignorance; which is the opposite of what the word "meditation" means. Literally "medha" means wisdom and meditation—"doing the wisdom".

It is true that increased alpha is a sign of more control over discursive thoughts which produce tension, but good pleasant thoughts and dreaminess which produce euphoria will also produce more alpha. To confuse euphoria with meditation or the ultimate bliss of union and its egolessness is another rationalization of an emotional mind.

You can be as euphoric as you like but your ego may still contain powerful attachments which stop you from reaching Medha or wisdom. It may even be an escape which prevents you from seeing yourself as you really are. Alpha can improve with an affirmation and self-suggestion from the mind, just as your health can improve and your sleep can improve, without any pyramid.

In addition to these claims for tranquilized calmness for hypertense people we are told that low energy people become charged with energy. We have found indeed that the Pi-ray does give increased energy, but after a certain period oversaturation takes place and the person gets over-stimulated, stressful and aggressive. Therefore to promote the pyramid downward energy as a cure-all which can be continuously absorbed is not correct. It ignores the fifty years of work which have already been done by the greater diviners and explorers of radiesthesia.

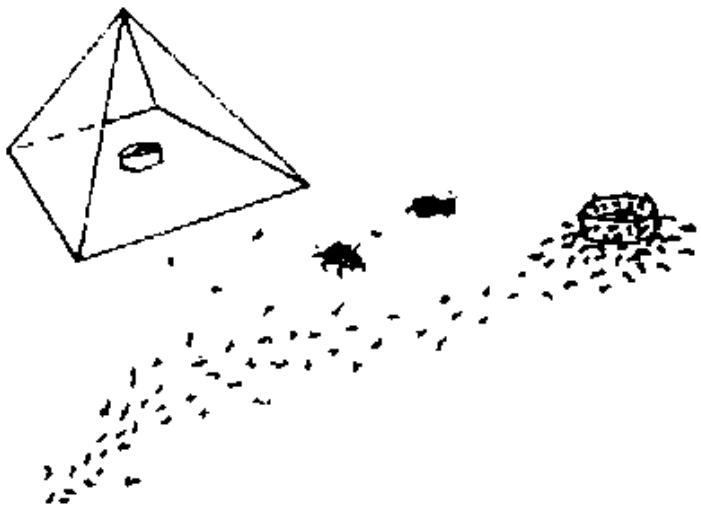
The same propagandists and purveyors of pyramids claim that flies and cockroaches and ants can sense the pyramid energy and will not go in and eat food placed within its sides. Instead of crediting the insects with better divining abilities than humans and saying, "If a cockroach doesn't like the radiation, why should man?" they plug the repellent force of the pyramid as a benefit to humans. Instead of seeing something illogical about these reports which make good reading, they interpret the facts wrongly. Negative green repels all life forces. The reason we do not feel an immediate effect is that the result is cumulative like radiation. Only when the Pi-ray is filtered out of it does it become completely detrimental.

Indeed insects do sense the downwards energy. Indeed bacterial and organic life is arrested and that is why the flies don't willingly go inside. They are such good diviners that they know their eggs will not have a supply of decomposing meat or foods to support their young and that these restless energies are inimical to their own cell life.



Also those who sleep well under a pyramid may be still imbibing radiations which may mesh well with their own vibrations but also may accumulate in their bodies. While treatment of water and foods under a pyramid for shorter periods can purify and improve them, they do much better when they are placed over the apex. This can be tested with a pendulum. Short periods under the pyramid are enough to absorb the beneficial Pi-ray. But to claim spiritual growth through sitting for prolonged periods exposed to the rays of negative green energy shows that researchers are not aware that pyramid energy only enhances what is already programmed in our unconscious minds. Hence it is dangerous to those who are unaware of what is in their unconscious. Amplification of Nature's vibrations is great when you know what you are amplifying. But to expand the mind which is full of problems is to expand the problems too.

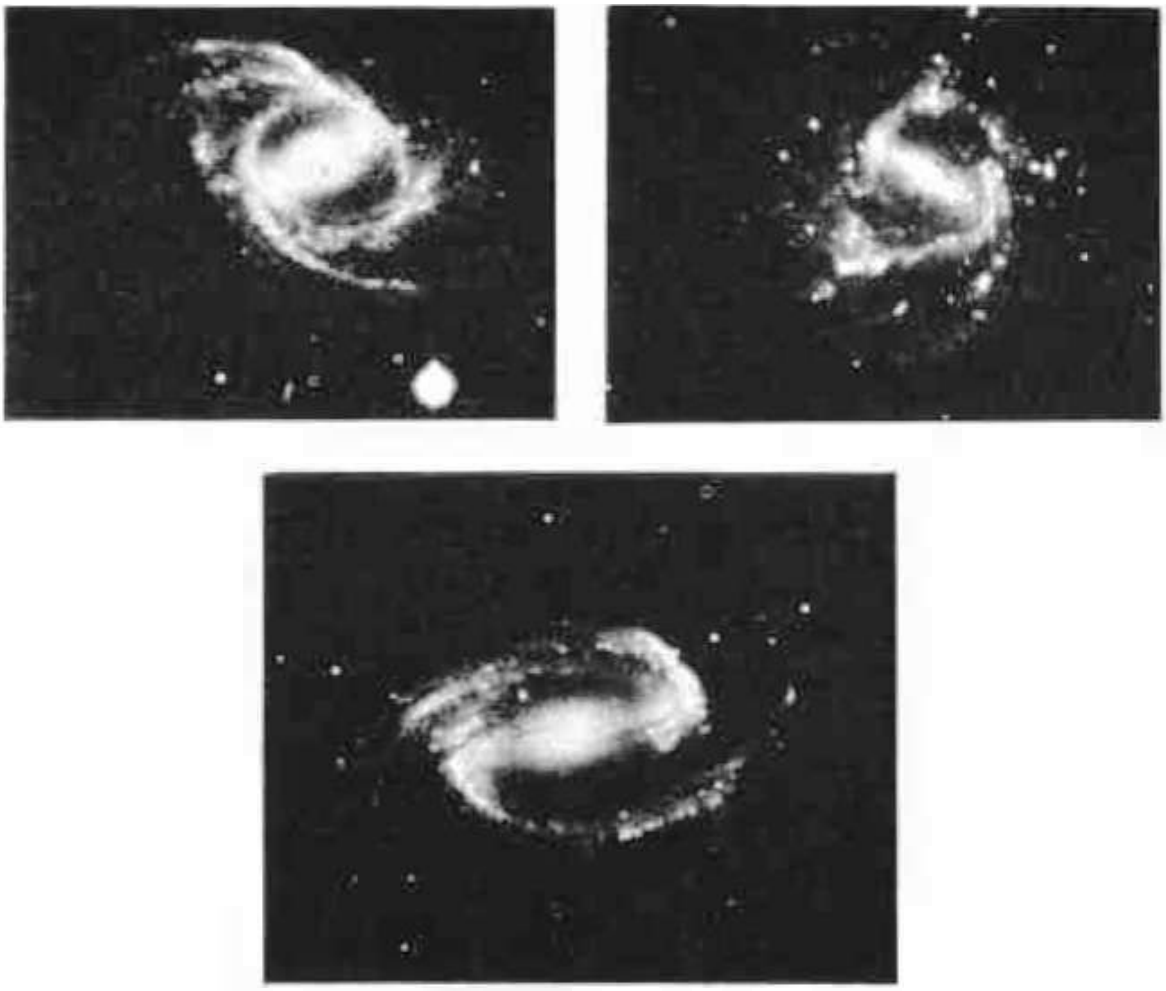
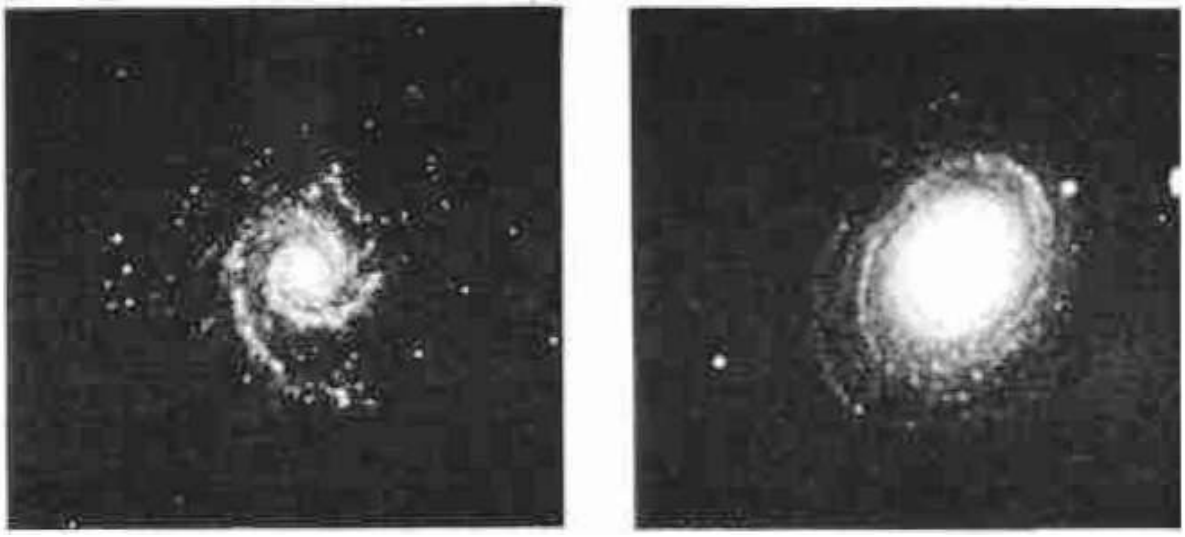
THE ONE CREATIVE CONSCIOUSNESS

SPIRALS AND THE ONE

Nature's forces disintegrate and integrate in spirals. To understand the manifestation of matter and light we must research more deeply into the angular rotations within spirals. Universes which are winding up into more dense matter are gravitational spirals moving into the center. At the same time some universes are disintegrating into radiation and are levitating rather than gravitating. Gravity and levity are two forces which interact in the same way as positive green and negative green.



Some representative barred spiral galaxies. The "bar" is the broad band of stars and gas which connects the nucleus of the galaxy with the spiral arms.



Some representative normal spiral galaxies. (Courtesy of Mt. Wilson and Palomar Observatories.)

One takes you down to the grave through gravity and the other takes you up into light through levity. You are given the free will in life to choose either way because they ultimately lead to the ONE. All great saints have known however that the way of levity is the shortest route to the ONE through expansion and light. It is possible to choose both ways at once which results in annihilation of self so as to become paradoxically expanding and contracting at the same time but on different levels of Being.

Brahman in Sanskrit comes from the root word Brim 'to expand'. This is the nonmanifest state of light, whereas the manifest state is matter. Matter is the creation made out of crystallized light energy. The crystal elements of creation are spontaneously decaying, disintegrating into light in the suns and stars, and humans are just minor parts of this process. But consciousness inside each human is the unmanifest light of the universe and has a choice to become anything it wants to be by the supreme power of self-suggestion. This is the danger of negative green since it can cause our consciousness to be drawn down into material forms and disintegration when it could create its own etheric forms out of integrating light. We must all decide for ourselves what our choice is to be.

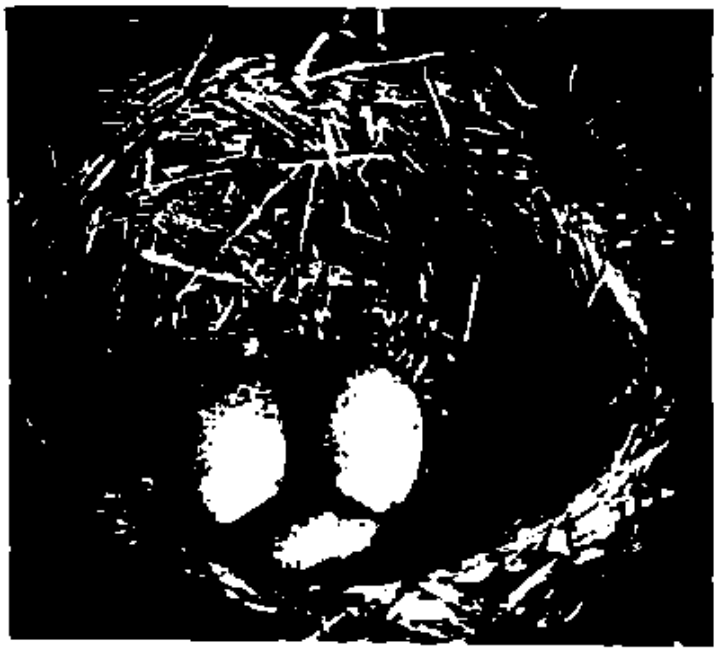
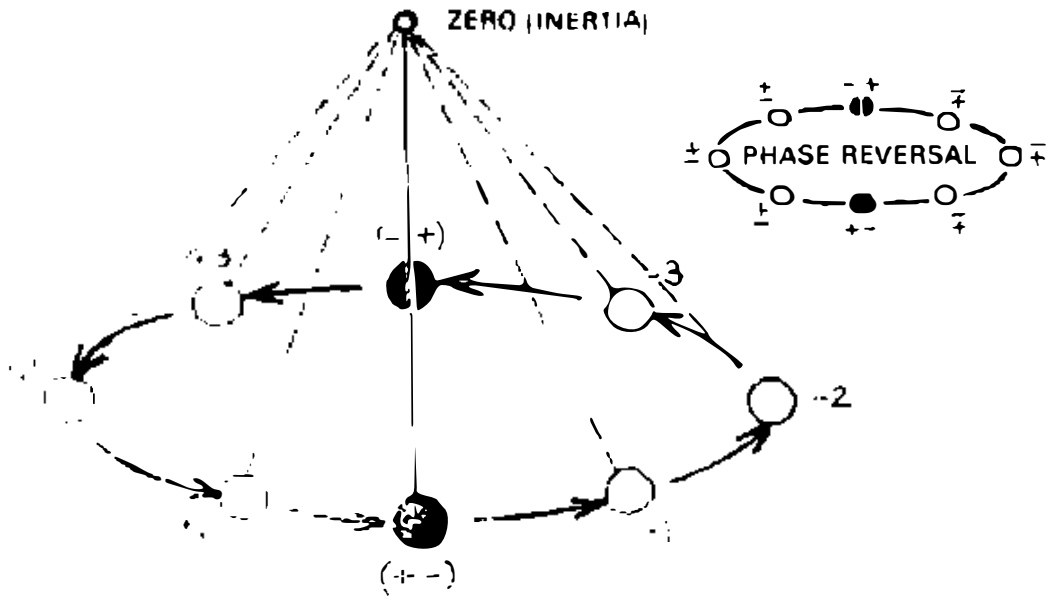
In ordinary consciousness there is in and out, spirit and matter, yin and yang, or positive and negative, but in reality there is no duality. To choose both means becoming terribly aware of who we really are and for what purpose we have come. The duality leads to the many and the other leads to the ONE, although in the ultimate state we are both the many and the ONE. Humans must have the humility to understand that although we are potentially the ultimate state we are not actually. To be THAT actually requires the power to create a star, a universe, a human being or even a simple egg. Humans do not even create their own eggs and sperms. Therefore humility before the ONE is unavoidable.





THE NUCLEAR PENDULUM OF THE ONE CREATIVE CONSCIOUSNESS

The above diagram of a pendulum dangling from a fulcrum above seven domains of polarity works with gravitational forces acting to bring the pendulum to the center at rest, while the centrifugal forces are expansive, radioactive discharging the energy from the center. This ONE force manifesting as two divided and opposed forces, electricity and magnetism, creates the wave-fields we know as three dimensional matter. The positive force of centrifugal "action" moving away from inertia and rest at the center is represented as the electrical force which moves against the force of magnetic attraction which causes resistance. The effect of this electrical action causes light to escape the pull of gravity. The negative force of "re action" moves towards the center and inertia with the magnetic attraction as assistance to the pull of gravity. They are both one and the same force but moving at right angles to each other in opposite directions. Electricity moves out from the center (◀ 0 ▶), magnetism moves into the center (▶ 0 ◀) with zero representing inertia. The result is an increasing opposition between the two components of the one the more the cosmic pendulum swings away from the center and its inertia. The increasing intensity between these opposing forces of gravity and levity, magnetism and electricity, creates the desire which binds the whole of creation. It explains why bits of matter are not spun off into outer space and why matter retains an orderly form.

THE BLACK HOLE OF ZERO

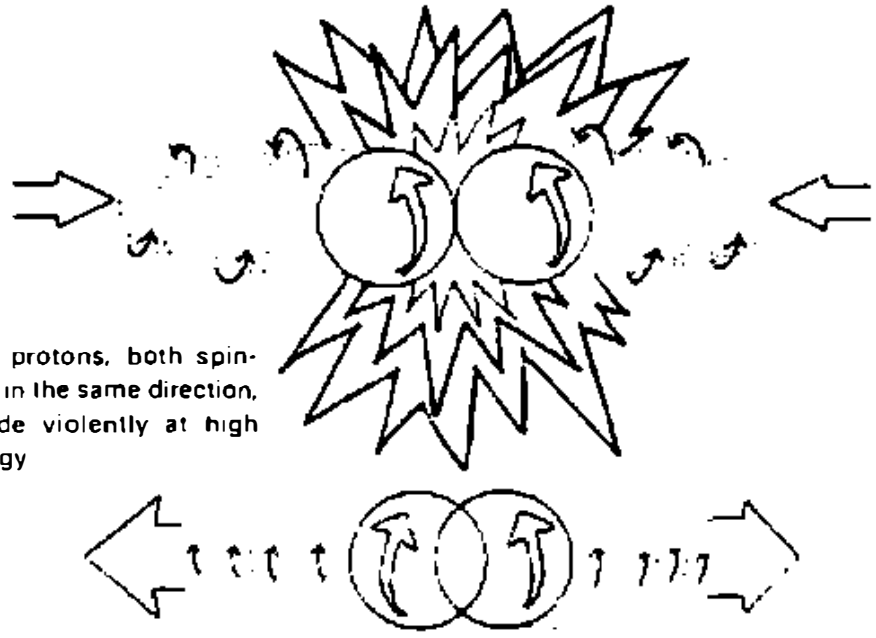
Recently scientists have discovered that the vibrations of matter when aligned in parallel make the atoms transparent to each other. When the polarity of the vibrations is antiparallel they collide and interact with each other vigorously. This means that an antiparallel universe could exist within a parallel one and we would never know since all the atoms in it do not rub together and excite each other energetically, but instead have the effect of passing through each other. Our consciousness vibrates in a parallel dimension while the created world of matter oscillates in an antiparallel universe. In a black hole the forces of gravitation are so great that they all become parallel and dimensionless since the oscillations according to polarities of opposites are annihilated. For this reason the normal forces of magnetism



Two protons, both spinning in the same direction, collide violently at high energy

The high energy protons spinning in opposite directions appear to pass through each other and electromagnetism do not interact in the dimension of consciousness. But the created universe we sense with our skin and receptors is tuned to that part of matter which is antiparallel and is therefore interacting through the forms we see around us.

The gravitative desire of magnetism assembles the universe into forms by the force of attraction. The radiative desire of electricity tends towards disorder and expansion by repulsion and thereby creates electromagnetic energy. Matter is merely the storing of this combined contraction and expansion in a stable form of inertia at the center of all systems. There are no opposites in fact but out of each action the opposite reaction is created, out of each reaction the action is again regenerated. All vibrations in the universe are the result of these swings of the cosmic energies away and towards the center of every system.

Even human consciousness is trapped in the apparent opposites of spirit and matter. The pendulum of creative energy swings eternally from nonopposition of inertia through an orderly sequence and periodicity to maximum opposition and back again for ever and ever. The desire of every action to return to the inertial state of nonopposition is the cause of reaction. Only when equally balanced between action and reaction does the pendulum stand still.

In that stillness resides the one force of the universe which is the energy of pure consciousness. All vibrations throughout the universe exist in that stillness and there is no other energy. Everything that is exists as some form of stabilized amalgamation of these two actions and reactions. Energy is merely the disturbance of this stillness in our consciousness. Just as sounds must arise out of silence in order to be heard, so the entire universe and all its outward and inward flowing energies in every system are arising in pure consciousness.

Purity of consciousness therefore becomes zero inertia in which the possibility of action/reaction as a potential state of the universe is annihilated. Gravity and levity in maximum opposition are ONE at the center of all systems which experience maximum inertia at zero. To achieve zero inertia and oneness without opposites requires the surrender of action and reaction as polarities. All thinking is the result of oscillation and vibration between equal and opposite actions and reactions in the mind stuff.

It was said of old:

> "What is action, what inaction? Even the wise are herein perplexed. It is needed to discriminate action, to discriminate what is unlawful action, and to discriminate what is inaction; mysterious is the path of action. He who seeth inaction in action, and action in inaction, he is wise among men, he is harmonious, even while performing all action."

The interwoven experience of our consciousness of dark and light, positive with negative charges and the contraries matter and spirit were symbolized in ancient times as a cosmic tissue with a warp and weft that crossed each other; the vertical threads hung on the loom as the essence and content of all things. The form which holds the content is the weft which binds the warp horizontally in alternating waves and phases. This ancient idea is the origin of Tantra which means the interwovenness of the energies of life. The Sanskrit word Tantra is so ancient its exact meaning is difficult to trace. In many ways it is the same as the Chinese word Wu Wei, meaning the woof of nothingness (wu) which is interwoven with the warp of all Nature's actions (wei).

When we look at a carpet we do not see its weft and warp threads crossing at right angles, but if we turn it over and look at the back we see clearly that the appearance of oneness is achieved by weaving them together. Hence Tantra means the interwovenness of our consciousness with the energies of life. It makes up the yin and yang of life and disappears when ONENESS is achieved because then only the absolute which annihilates positive and negative to create pure consciousness remains, and no difference between the light and our consciousness is seen.

The vibrating mind of man is like a tape recorder being programmed with the concepts, thoughts and imaged patterns of experience. The only difference between man and the animals and plants on the mental plane of consciousness where subtle matter vibrates is that man has the capacity to think in light octaves of the higher mind. The ordinary mind is concerned primarily with the maintenance of the organism, its cell life and involuntary process of ingestion, assimilation and excretion. The ordinary mind of man is no different from the mind of an elephant, chimpanzee or dolphin. The only difference is the human ability to think in the seventh octave, the imagination. All new ideas are old ideas brought to the surface of consciousness from the cosmic storage in the faculty of imagination. Inspiration flows when the super-thinker, who transcends the senses, uses the supersensitive intelligence beyond the imagination.

THE INCREDIBLE BOX AND YOUR REAL SELF

YOUR ARK OF THE CONVENANT

The Holy Ark of the covenant was just an empty box constructed in a certain way and it was the power of this emptiness that gave the power of nothingness that Christ spoke about when he said, "I am of myself nothing."

In the Bible there are many stories about this holy box that was designed by the sages with certain forms and catalysts which did exactly the same thing as the Incredible Box. The Pi-ray box has been constructed on the same principles and a complete mapping of the fields of energy around it can be found in Supersensonics. The scope of this study is vast, but we need not know any of it to work the box as the ancient prophets worked with the Ark. The only difference will be that the energy available to the trained pure mind of a sage or prophet will be that much more because the life ray is helping all the time to manifest what is in the heart of each being. The Pi-ray Coffer is your own private Ark of the Covenant. Inside its coil is the holy place in which you place your most precious jewel—your real Self. When you can do this properly you are in touch with all other selves who stand in that holy place. You are literally in telepathic contact with the ONE original mind who invented it.

Let us read Moses' vague instructions to the Israelites on how to build the sacred box known as the Ark. We will realize that without the methods of Supersensonics to probe its energy field and to ask questions about its construction, it would be almost impossible to build one. With these "instruments of knowing" we can find out what field forces emanate from the box.

Here are the instructions:

"And they shall make an ark of shit-tim wood: two cubits and a half shall be the length thereof, and a cubit and a half the breadth thereof, and a cubit and a half the height thereof.

And thou shalt overlay it with pure gold, within and without shalt thou overlay it, and shalt make upon it a crown of gold round about.

And thou shalt cast four rings of gold for it, and put them in the four corners thereof, and two rings shall be in the one side of it, and two rings in the other side of it.

And thou shalt make staves of shit-tim wood, and overlay them with gold.

And thou shalt put the staves into the rings by the sides of the ark, that the ark may be borne with them.

The staves shall be in the rings of the ark: they shall not be taken from it.

And thou shalt put into the ark the testimony which I shall give thee.

And thou shalt make a mercy seat of pure gold: two cubits and a half shall be the length thereof, and a cubit and a half the breadth thereof.

And thou shalt make two cherubims of gold, of beaten work shalt thou make them, in the two ends of the mercy seat.

And make one cherub on the one end, and the other cherub on the other end: even of the mercy seat shall ye make the cherubims on the two ends thereof.

And the cherubims shall stretch forth their wings on high, covering the mercy seat with their wings, and their faces shall look one to another; towards the mercy seat shall the faces of the cherubims be.

And thou shalt put the mercy seat above upon the ark; and in the ark thou shalt put the testimony that I shall give thee."

The ark was really a resonant cavity acting like a form to concentrate cosmic force. Just as the human form determines the contents, or the form of any organism decides its role in nature, so does the pyramid form, or the shape of a thing determine the kind of energy which focuses through its patterns.

Now, having glimpsed the tremendous cosmic field of the pyramid energies, let us challenge our understanding and our imagination to survey the vast, limitless and divine context in which all energies move. Then we may be able to see the coffer and its pyramid power against the backdrop of our own universal consciousness.

Consciousness is pure in everyone until it is adulterated by thought. The Incredible Box can create your own telepathic radio set with a hotline to an inexhaustible source of natural intelligence which is in touch with everything that exists.

MAKING TELEPATHIC CONTACT

By getting in touch with the source of life and tuning the resonant nervous system of our human vehicle we are doing the old equivalent of going to the temple. This is not to say that religious people should feel offended at such a statement, because if they are church-goers the coffer can only enhance that desire to communicate more closely with God and fellow man. To have a communion or prayer, however, once a week or so is not the same as being in communion all the time. The Incredible Box can not only become your private shrine or sacred space, but while your consciousness is tuned to the Pi-ray you are in effect in communication telepathically with all those who are putting their highest expression of their self-image—let's say the God in you—into some radiative effect. In other words whenever you are mentally projecting real selfless love towards yourself and others, all who are tuned to the rays which are invisibly spiralling into the center cone of this box, then you are receiving each other's love.

As a healing force there is no better energy than this impersonal selfless and mindless love. The energy of the box is Living Love and you are part of the circuit. You set the initial love force going by the state of consciousness in which you approach the box and it is your own God force which is set in motion by your sense of conviction that it is really happening. Don't expect anything specific, just expect something that is best for you. If you program the kind of love you think you "ought" to have from life, ten to one you are "playing God" and trying to run the universe to suit yourself, or trying to fit reality into your own private ideals. This never works as you can easily see by looking at the lives of others and the mess the world has got into by listening to people who think like that. If you want telepathic contact with other lovers of the world and lovers of this cosmic intelligence, then learn to surrender your self-sense and your own desires and tune in. You will be amazed how much more love you will feel from the moment you put your photo in the box. You will also want to share this love and bliss with others because you will have more than enough for yourself. Hence giving it back to the sacred Ark once you get it for yourself only increases its flow to yourself and others.

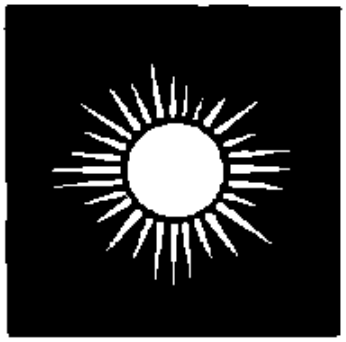
You become telepathic and transfer your love to all those on the same frequency who are tuning in. A good time is 7:30 to 8:00 a.m. Pacific time when the author is chanting to God and sharing with our group of students at University of the Trees. But you need not wait; the sacred space works in a timeless domain of consciousness so any time of day will still pick up the cosmic program deep in the heart of all Being.



DEVELOPING INTELLECT AND INTUITION

Select a small photo of yourself which you yourself are pleased with as a witness of your "image" as you like to see yourself. It is very important to have one that you like because the box itself only enhances what is in the depths of your unconscious. The laws of consciousness by which the Pi-ray works are strange but perfectly rational. Your consciousness and life force work together because basically they are the same thing. So in humans they ride piggyback together, one perfectly matching the mirror image of the other. So getting a photograph which is made by the impression of light energy on the tiny crystals of the photographic emulsion is like getting millions of tiny microscopic crystal radio sets and putting them in the box to be amplified in the same pattern that they are already arranged in—a duplicate pattern of your physical and emotional body.

The next step is just as simple. After placing the photo in the box by rolling it or cutting it to convenient size, place something in the box next to the image which you consider to be holy or wholly intelligent. It can be a representation of Christ or a guru or holy man who you are absolutely certain is pure and not just famous. It could be Saint Francis if you are Catholic or the name YAHWEY if you are a Jew. It could be SHIVA if you are Hindu or BUDDHA if you are a Buddhist. For those not religiously inclined it makes no difference. You can put the philosopher's name Lao Tzu or the mystic scientist Albert Einstein.

The last step after closing the lid is to determine the orientation to the earth's magnetic field by checking the direction of north in relation to the north arrow on the box. Those who are versed in radiesthesia or dowsing can line the box up to a pendulum swing according to the methods described in Supersensonics, or you can use a magnetic compass. Now leave the box a few days and forget about it until you feel something happening within. Go to your inner world when you wake up in the morning. Does it take you less time to come to sharp mindedness? Does it give you the feeling you want to jump out of bed and get things done? Do you feel on top of your situation rather than weighted down by it? All these feelings are indications that it is working. The important next step is to watch yourself for a few days in case of over-stimulation or some form of irritable reactiveness and take yourself off treatment immediately, so that you don't get an overdose of the life ray. If this should happen and you forget to take your photo out, phone home and have someone put the photo on top of the box so that your image can be bathed in restful energies of positive green. But again don't overdo this for more than twenty-four hours or you will be swinging all over mentally like a pendulum. This is the skill you must acquire in using the coffer.

Once you have repeated this treatment for yourself at various intervals of say once every three to five days, you can begin to tell the difference in your decision-making. The quality of your life will change because you will change. You will recognize this change only by the feedback which the world around you mirrors in your relationships with others. It is very difficult to judge your own consciousness with your own consciousness and it is not worth trying. But you can certainly judge your own feelings of inner security and how you come across to others. Others instantly notice any real change in your being. They may not comment on it the first time but you can make it easier for them to give you feedback by being more receptive to it and not getting uptight if it is negative feedback. In other words, use the negative to look into yourself and see if there is a vestige of truth in it. If not, you will not be bothered by it. If there is an element of truth in some unpleasant feedback, then you have some more work to do on yourself before going back to the Pi-ray treatment. Remember, the Pi-ray will only enhance what is there so be sure to approach it with a pure heart. A pure consciousness looks at everything in ourselves whether good or bad. It does not look only at the positive and sweep the negative under the carpet as if it were not there.

The "power of positive thinking" works sometimes if it's meant to, but five times out of ten it could be just masking the negative problems and they will come out later on. To be able to look at both and then choose the positive, while knowing they only exist because of each other is the wise man's way of regarding the universe as a mirror. If nothing is happening in your life don't blame the cosmic intelligence or the Pi-ray or the orgone box. The universe is telling you that you are too passive and more dynamism is required. You can sit still in meditation and do nothing but if you do nothing passively rather than dynamically then your nothing will be very boring. Whereas if you can actively do "nothing" you have become one with God and everything will reveal itself to you as an open book.

Nothing is created out of the union of opposites which hold the universe in perfect balance.

PROGRAMMING AGAINST AN ANTI-CHRIST

One could use one's reason and say that every good thing has been perverted and that the same thing could happen to the coffer. Churches have been used as systems of power over the lives of people, popes have staged wars, emperors have dominated with the help of state religions, and black magicians have sucked the life force from unsuspecting people through knowing these laws of consciousness.

All this is true, but this time something has been specially programmed into the design of the incredible coffer. The box has been programmed in such a way that anyone caught stealing energies for use in the clever undermining of others or hurting anyone else or even trying to sow seeds of discontent by telepathic means by deliberately placing negative ideas in the box, will immediately experience a return shock.

The laws of consciousness are immutable—we cannot mock God and live. To attempt to do so is dividing ourself from ourself. God is nothing but consciousness and God is always helping us to be what we are in our hearts. If we plant hatred that is what we shall reap. The "Choc en retour", as the French radiesthesia pioneers called it, caused the death of many able men who set out to heal others with the Pi-ray because they did not understand the return shock. They were not spiritually ready to heal others. What they healed others of flowed back into their own bodies because they absorbed whatever karma they cleared out. The box will harness the life force only for the individual who uses it, so that each person becomes self-healer and there is no return shock. But to attempt to heal others or meddle with the karma of others by means of the Pi-ray is fraught with ignorance of ourselves. You can put someone else's photo in the box with something good to help them, but if you claim any specific results for yourself or even pretend you are doing it and usurp the real power by posing as the healer, then watch out! You are only a channel and whatever your unconscious thoughts are, if it is some "ego trip" to help and heal others out of self-importance, it will bring you a "return shock".

If your motives are pure and you have first healed yourself you have nothing to fear, but make sure they are pure before thinking of becoming a healer of others. Let the Pi-ray do the healing and stay out of it personally. Otherwise you are just playing God and this is what the devil is all about. He sits on the throne, claims all the glory and power and promises you what is not his to give. Verily the ego deceives the very elect! If you need the box to heal others or make others more intelligent, sexy, or active, ask their permission first.

YOUR NERVOUS SYSTEM AS THE RECEIVER

The mind of man has many dimensions as yet unprobed by modern science. Supersensitive devices which use the body's own ability to detect invisible radiations from the environment cause our unconscious mind to react and give us some biophysical feedback signal which can be amplified by the new Supersensonic instruments. Not only can the physical radiations of matter be detected as subtle electrical sensations in the fingertips but the psychophysical reactions of our skin, eyes and other sensors can pick up the flux of psychic electricity in the internal thought world of human beings.

This supersensitive faculty of man has now been amplified by a technology that has its own means of validating the knowledge gained. Furthermore, the rational faculty so prized amongst modern scientific cultures is not offended but is used in the checking and knowing process so that instead of only one mode of man's knowing through conceptual knowledge he now has second sight or another mode of perception which penetrates nature directly. This new science, which stands upon the shoulders of the old sciences, builds up a body of knowledge which can be tested by traditional methods and found to be consistent with proven facts.

The whole secret of this new revolutionary science is in isolating the specific wave frequencies of subtle radiations which are normally masked by the environmental effects on our nervous system. The massive drenching of the human sensory equipment such as skin, eyes, ears, with cosmic radiations of incredible power to which humans have adapted over millions of years of evolution, is analogous to the massive pressure on the human skin of the atmosphere. Although no human beings feel it because their physical body is adapted, the crushing weight of the atmosphere of 14.7 pounds on every square inch of our body is quenching our sensitivity to subtle pressures and radiations in the molecules of air around us in the environment. Likewise we find gases such as helium and argon in a vacuum, and electronic events become more sensitive when this atmospheric pressure is removed.

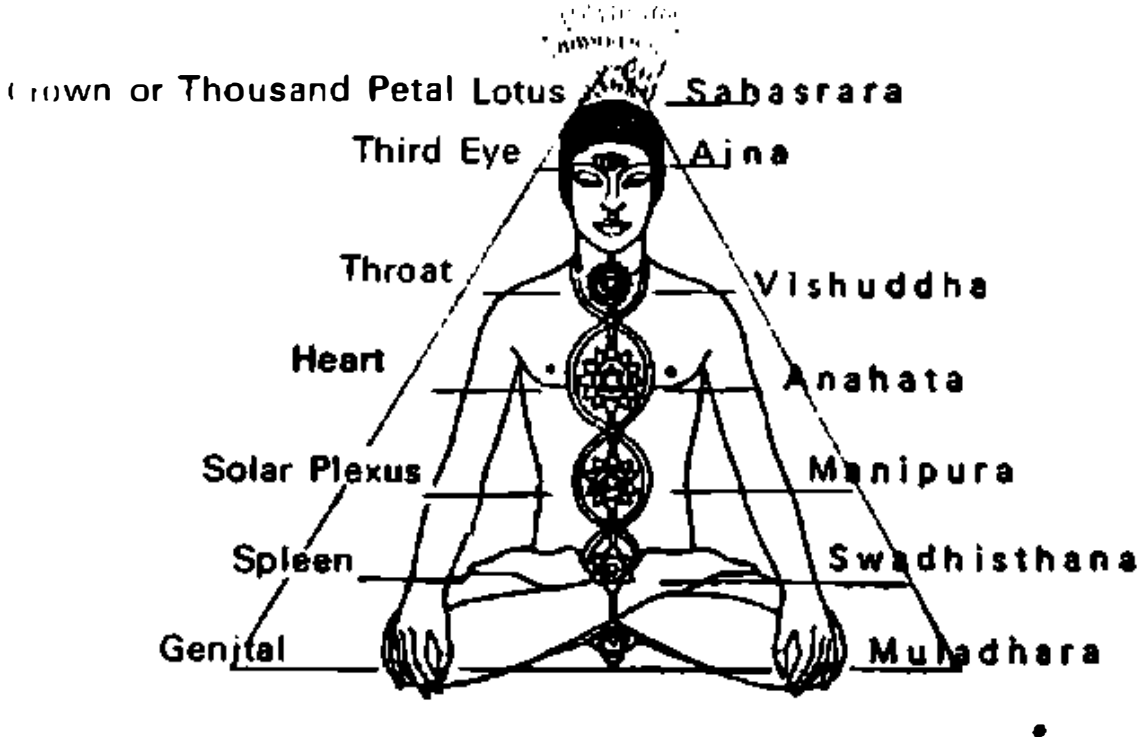
However, by isolating the exact frequencies and creating the equivalent of a laser or excitation action in the human cerebro-spinal system, the quenching effect of environmental pressures and energies is suppressed and resonance is then achieved. This resonance phenomenon is identical to the tuning of a radio set with the transmitting stations radiating waves of electromagnetic energy.

Consciousness has its own laws. Just as the laws of matter reveal its structures so does the science of Super-sensonics reveal the seven-fold nature of consciousness and human perception.



The system of energy centers researched by the ancient Rishis over 10,000 years ago was likened to wheels of energy (chakras) which revolved like spirals. This swirling current of life force is connected to the different levels of brain evolution which determine our levels of consciousness. The thresholds of consciousness vary with each individual's intake of cosmic energy absorbed by cyclic frequency of each chakra. Individuals who are unaware of these levels of vibration in themselves are unable to communicate with others in depth, even though they speak the same language. Thus all world problems can be now traced to man's inability to understand each other because most humans believe there is only one level of consciousness—their own. Even wives and husbands, parents and children who love each other do not understand each other on these other levels of consciousness.

EXPERIMENTS WITH THE INCREDIBLE BOX

OVERSIZE CABBAGES

One of the amazing and unbelievable effects of consciousness is on growth of living organisms. There has been much talk of several communities working with angels and spirits of the elemental world governing the plant kingdom, who attribute all their success in growing enlarged vegetables to the intervention of Devas or beings in other realms of existence. However, if you want to try out something with your own angelic consciousness, you will find that your own ability to work with the vegetable kingdom need not be attributed to any outside agency, but to your own powers of the mind whenever you have a deep conviction.

To succeed you only need this sense of conviction about what you are doing. This is sometimes used as another term for "Faith". What do we mean when we say a "sense of conviction"? We mean that you do not separate yourself from the whole universe or any intelligences that might be in it. Whether angels have wings or not or whether they even exist is quite irrelevant here. You can find out for yourself by carrying out certain experiments with your own consciousness. First you must know some simple rules:

1. You must not show off these powers as your own; they belong to the universe.

2. You must not doubt, but if doubts arise understand that they are in your own consciousness and must be dealt with before proceeding further; the cause of doubt is not in the instrument but within you.

3. You must use a physical stimulus at the same time as a mental or spiritual one, that is, something must act as a transmitter such as a sprinkle of water or a ray of light or an electrical stimulus.

4. The spiritual or mental stimulus which accompanies the physical energy can be in the form of prayer or an affirmation. It can be to any Being or God or just Cosmic Intelligence. It can be a first cause which you re-cognize or just plain consciousness without any names, descriptions, concepts of angels or any other formal idea.

If the above rules are followed almost anything you can visualize or imagine in your consciousness can be programmed in to set the cosmic forces working. There is only one problem and that is whatever is in your unconscious at the time of setting the action going is what will ultimately manifest. Therefore, if you are afraid it won't work or if your life is bound up with success in some emotional way, don't expect to get a clear manifestation but allow for your own subjective error in perceiving the situation as it really is.

Now if you want to get cabbages like the one shown in the picture, you begin first with the soil. You don't have to invoke the elemental spirits of the earth unless that's the way you perceive reality. At the same time you must not reject anything. Look at the soil as a living thing that will respond as all living things do to love. If you want the soil to flourish begin treating it before you put your seeds in.

HERE'S HOW

Take a pendulum such as the color pendulum sold by the publishers. (See back of book for listing of divining instruments sold by University of the Trees Press.) Tune it until you get a reaction from a color saying this color is what the soil needs to bring it to optimum health. Place a sample of that color in the Incredible Box with a sample of the earth wrapped in ordinary plain writing paper. Leave for one week and then remove color.

The tuning of the pendulum string length is important to get the diviner's reaction. We have had nine year-olds and fourteen year-olds who read Supersensonics and get instant results. Some people have too many mental blocks and cannot follow instructions properly and blame the pendulum instead of themselves. Avoid this arrogance at all costs.

Next, take the seeds of your cabbage or flowers or vegetables and place them separately in the box with the soil but be sure to keep them separate. Check with the pendulum whether these seeds are suited to this particular soil. If not try other seeds until you get a positive response. Now leave the seeds in the box for at least twenty-four hours prior to planting them in the area where the soil was taken from. When planting them spit on them first coating them with saliva and blessing them in your mind at the same time. Leave one or two of the seeds in the box so that it acts as a broadcasting station sending out life force to the similar seeds you planted. The law of similars works to impregnate the orgone growth factor in the seeds.

When the seeds germinate and sprout take out the witness seeds from the box with the soil and replace them with a small leaf from one of the sprouts. All the time you are doing this you are visualizing the box as a concentrator of life force and correctly orientating it to the earth's magnetic field. Now all you have to do is to water your plants and watch them grow and grow. There is one problem. They may shoot up so fast that they will go to seed, so take the leaf out of the box when the main growth starts and take them off treatment if you are expecting to eat them when they grow to maximum size.

The life force can kill in overdoses so it is important to watch the growth and put the plant on treatment for periods of twenty-four hours only. Otherwise, like any human being, they will become overstimulated and ill at ease with a surplus of unused energy.

ABSENT HEALING OF HUMAN BEINGS

Just as we can direct the flow of life with our consciousness to the energy fields of plants, so can we charge the vital force into the human system from a distance. A sample of a person's saliva or blood can be placed inside the box and the life force in the Pi-ray automatically enhances whatever positive patterns are present. It is important therefore to be sure that a person wants to be healed, otherwise a subconscious pattern may not only block the healing forces but even use them negatively.

THE PI-RAY FACIAL

Because the Pi-ray coffer accumulates the life force and selectively isolates it from the negative green energies of the pyramid, its use in creating beauty preparations which re-vitalize the skin is one of its most useful applications.

When people grow older and get tired the skin loses its tone and wrinkles begin to appear. This is because age normally creates less responsive cells which get habituated to certain sluggish patterns. The skin cells become less rigorous and are not able to eliminate the unwanted poisons from the body. The skin is a very important organ, not only from a beautician's point of view, but as the largest single organ of the body. It is the skin which not only senses radiations far beyond the sensitivity of modern scientific apparatus, which merely measures its reactions, but also acts as a membrane between the total environment and the internal world. All the more important to have a healthy skin and not to overload it with many of the useless vanishing creams and so forth. One of the ways you can overcome this need of your skin for extra muscle tone is to charge up your favorite cream or massage oil with life force in this incredible coffer. So try it only for a week or two and notice the difference, by leaving the jar of cream inside the coffer, preferably with an hour or two of the sun's rays amplifying the top. If the sun is not shining, try to place the coffer in some form of radiant energy such as a sun lamp or immediately in front of a TV screen.

EMOTIONAL STATES

Recently a young child who came to me with her mother had been sick for six months with a strange condition which made her angry and she could not hold any food down, suffering nausea and bilious attacks. Doctors could not figure out what was wrong as all diagnosis had been exhausted. I checked with the pendulum and it told me nothing was physically wrong with the young girl but she had an emotional imbalance. I put a witness of her sputum in the box and forgot about it. Near the end of a week I remembered and thought that I should really take the child off the experiment, but I was in the garden and again forgot. The next day the girl's mother was contacted and she said that from the time the experiment began the child began to improve until the day before she was contacted, when her little girl got very restless. I sensed an overdose and reversed the process by putting the sputum on top of the box to get the positive green vibration for a day. When I took it off the girl was fine and no more trouble has been experienced since. She had been through six months of hell and every known medical test for nothing.

Another woman came to me depressed and low on energy with an aching back. I placed a sample of hair in the box and she began to feel better right away. As she was a lecturer and had some heavy speaking engagements she was very grateful.

Passivity, timidity, etc. can be conquered by placing a witness of the person along with the appropriate remedy in the box. A passive timid person could be irradiated with a sample of adrenalin, or a person with poor memory with a sample of 6000 mg. niacinamide vitamin or a homeopathic potency of lycopodium 3x.

COSMIC INTELLIGENCE

Those persons who feel they are not very intelligent, always making mistakes or not bestowed with great intellectual, rational minds may sharpen their wits along different lines by tuning into a part of themselves that gets along better without the rational faculty. The body and nature has its own kind of intellect which can know what is best for us without working it all out step-by-step in a sequential logical progression of thoughts. This faculty called Nous by the Greeks is called common sense in our culture. Unfortunately common sense is not very common, not even amongst rational scientific and clever people. It is not common sense to spend a billion dollars photographing the surface of Mars or $100 billion for a few men to set foot on the moon when just a few million dollars could solve the earth's hunger and agriculture problem by teaching everyone who is starving how to grow edible algae from the sun's light.*

Common sense sees immediately that to spend millions on boondoggles is not intelligent, but such boondoggles and moondoggles are going on every day in front of our eyes, foisted upon us by so-called clever and rational people. Yet we do not have the common sense to boot them out of our nest because they can always give some clever explanation or reason. To tune in to ordinary common sense therefore is essential for a happy, less expensive life. To do this we first must understand that common sense is really a very special kind of plain-seeing which perceives things as they are. We cannot view life through idealistic spectacles, either scientifically or politically, but we must get in touch with natural intelligence which is always within the grasp of common man.

* Food From Sunlight, available from University of the Trees Press.

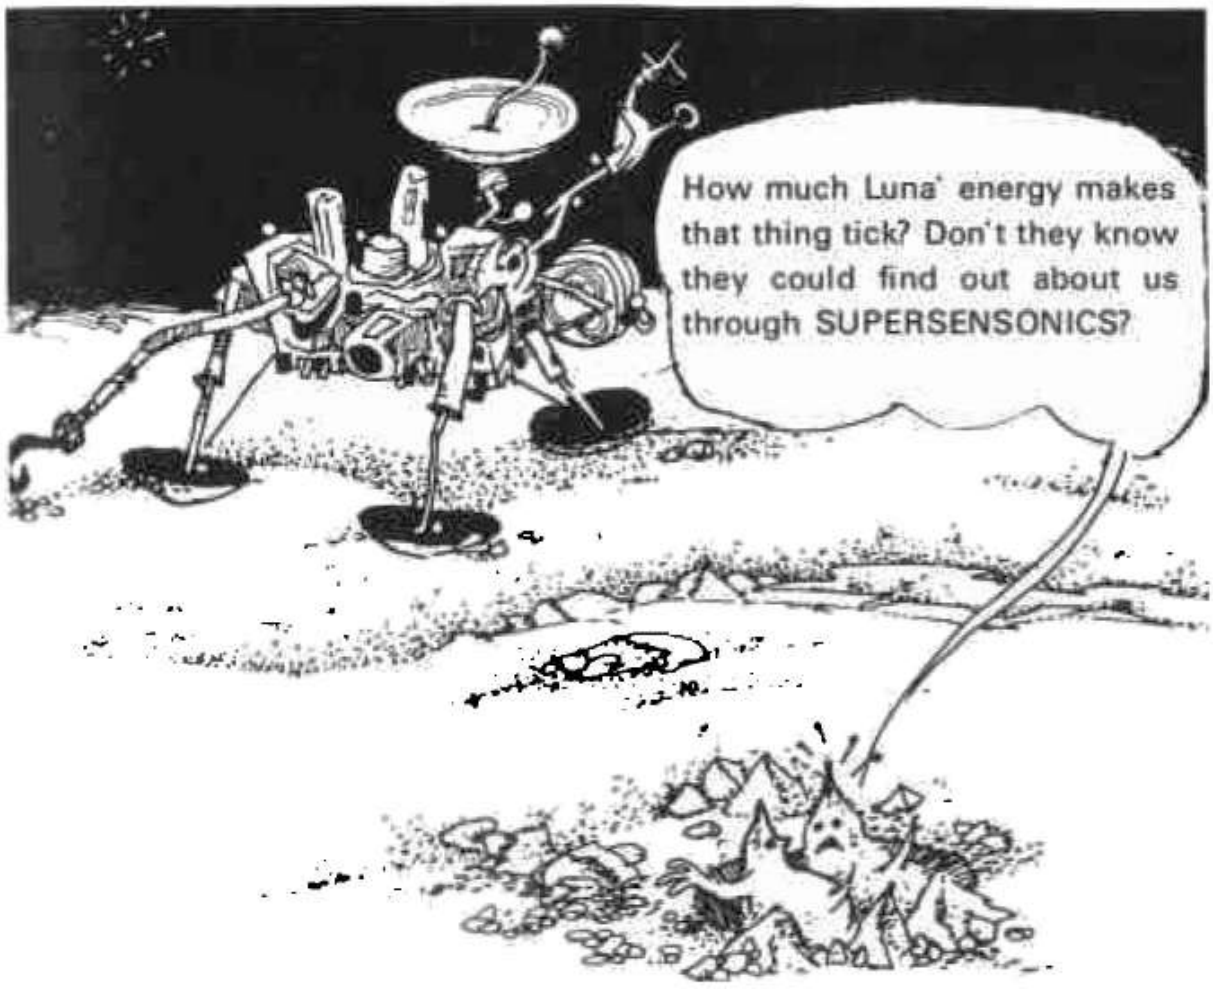
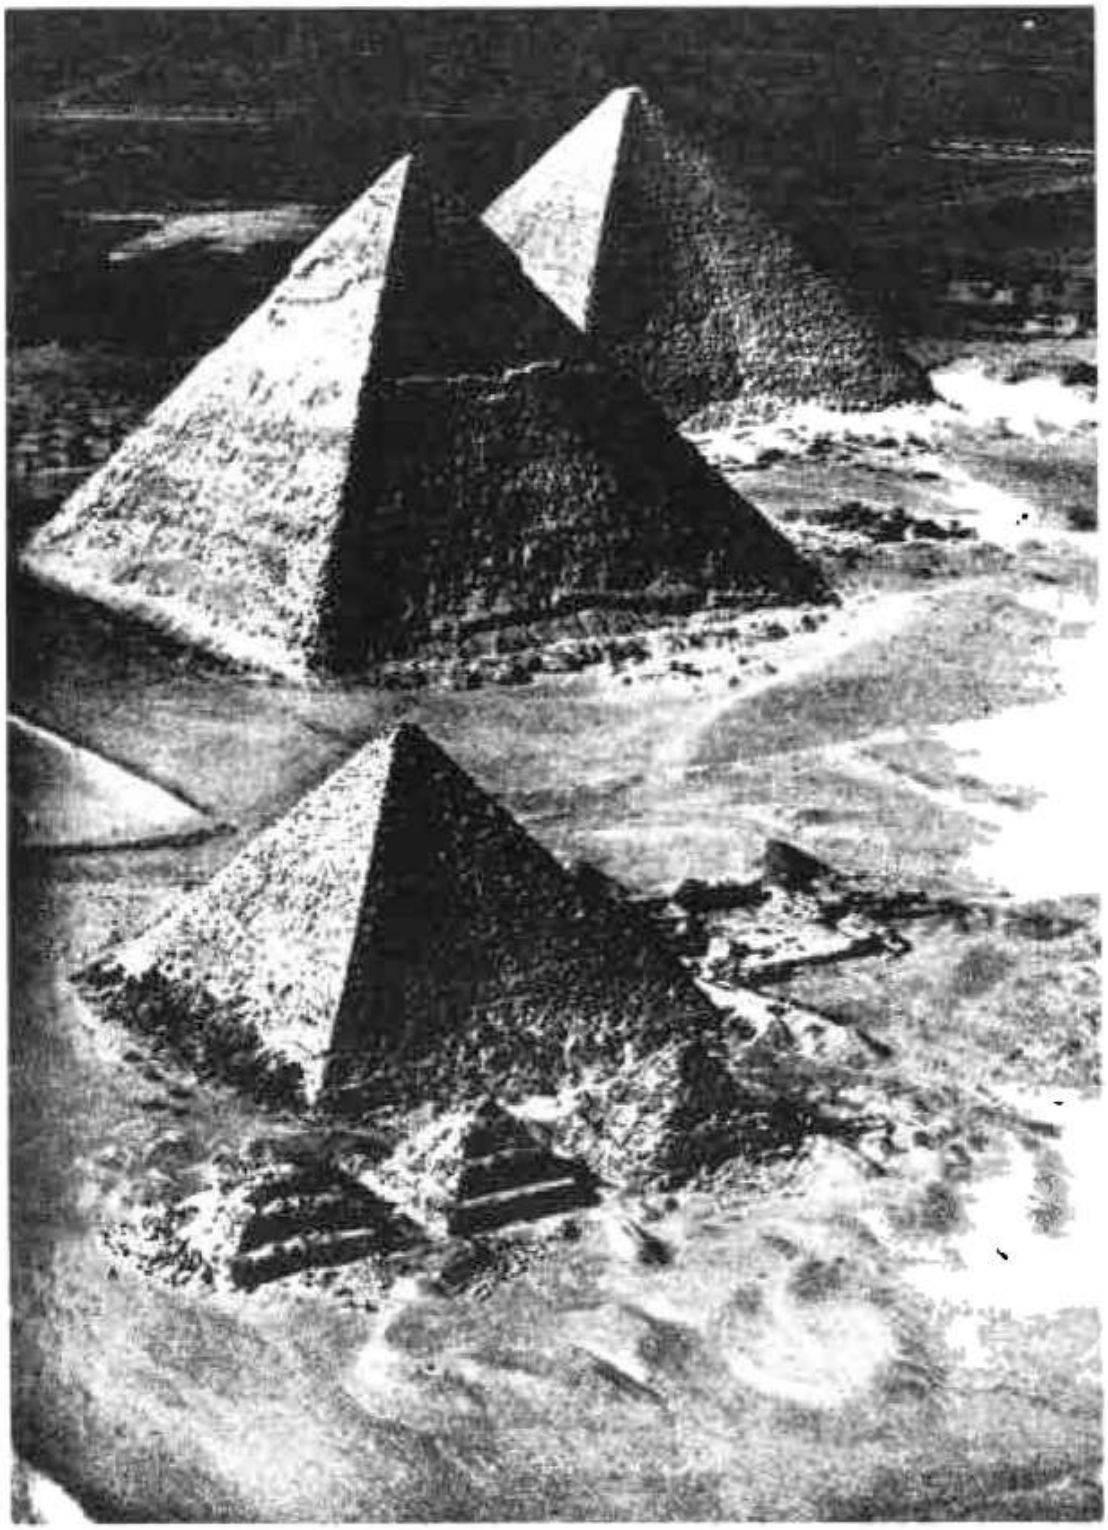
The incredible part which the box can play in this contact with the common intelligence is described here for those who feel in need of some clear guidance in life.





The three great pyramids of Giza are massive even when seen from the air. For 45 centuries they have proclaimed the wealth and power of the kings of ancient Egypt. Science and egyptologists do not know the real reason why so much energy was expended on creating these enormous pyramids although they theorize that they were burial tombs like many other pyramids. The entire culture was built on divining and its methods of contacting Nature's finer forces and their effects on the more subtle energies of life in the body and the spirit world. These subtle forces were named after animals and insects in this world because many of their qualities represented analogies and metaphors of higher faculties of divination. Their science of subtle-body healing and mental phenomena was taught to Moses from his boyhood to the age of 40 when he fled from Pharaoh's court to escape a crime of murder.

Note: the following accounts are by people who researched the energies of the Pi-ray for themselves and sent the author the results. The publishers would like to receive any other reports of success or failure for publication in later editions of this book.

"EVIDENCE" FROM FIRST-HAND WITNESSES

EXPERIMENTS WITH THE INCREDIBLE BOX

My three year-old daughter Justine was ill for three months with an intestinal disorder. She couldn't eat or eliminate and had severe abdominal pains. The doctors did exploratory surgery twice and even removed part of her intestine which was very red and sore, but could find nothing organically wrong. They did every test they could think of for all sorts of diseases. During this time, Justine experienced an incredible amount of anger. After three months in the hospital we brought her home. She was physically and mentally exhausted. I then called Debbie for her help. Debbie asked Christopher Hills if he could do something for Justine. Christopher asked for a sample of her spit and put the sample in the Pi-ray orgone box. Immediately my daughter began to improve. Her eyes became clear and sparkling again which during her illness had become very cloudy. She also had all her energy back within a week. There was an incredible change. Then a week or so after that she started becoming restless and very angry, which built up as each day came. I finally called Debbie and she informed me that Justine was getting too much energy. Christopher then reversed the energy on the box to subtract some of it. The following day after her energy was reversed, she was fine and has never since experienced that restlessness and anger. We are very thankful to the University of the Trees. It has opened our minds and hearts.

MAKING THE SALE

I conducted two experiments:

1. I had three acres of property which I needed to sell immediately so I could pay my pressing bills. I put a note saying "Sell property" in the coffer and also put some ads in the local newspapers. Three days later I got a buyer who offered me all cash. There were so many phone calls that I could not keep up with them. I am now selling my neighbor's property on commission.

2. I was feeling low energy in the morning so I put the word "Energetic" along with my name as a witness. I started picking up energy, so much so that I could not go to sleep at night. My head was buzzing and I felt very hyper. I later learned that putting myself in the coffer for too long can be harmful. Like any good thing, too much can be destructive. I see that this energy is very potent and must be used carefully.

BRIGHTER EYES AND BRIGHTER SPIRITS!

For several weeks I had been suffering from a form of conjunctivitis which made my eyes sore and watery. I had also been going through an emotional period of self-doubt and depression. Then it occurred to me that the two were connected and that the emotional bouts, which produced weeping, were putting a strain on the eyes. So I decided to "kill two birds with one stone". I put a picture of my eyes into the coffer and with it a small portrait of myself in a very positive, confident mood—eyes bright and face serene.

After one day my eyes were perfectly all right and after three days there was an almost miraculous lift in spirits. What had seemed an insoluble problem shrank to its real size and the world again was a great and joyful place to live in.

Two days after that the eye trouble suddenly started again and a few lurking doubts crept back. "Perhaps I've left myself in the box too long," I thought and went to look, only to find that my husband, needing a box for an experiment, had removed the photographs without remembering to tell me!

Now I'm back in the coffer and all is well! But I have to remember to watch developments. An overdose of anything can be harmful!

NORMAL BREASTS

About three months ago I discovered I had a type of mastitis which caused my breasts to remain swollen after my monthly period. They were sore to the touch and particularly painful during the short jog I do around the village every morning with the group here at University of the Trees. The first time I had this condition, it persisted for six weeks. The doctor said there was nothing I could do, and it only went away gradually with hot baths. The second time, I'd had it for about four days when it occurred to me to use the coffer for help. I took a picture of breasts and wrote under it "normal breasts" in my own handwriting and put this in the box along with a small photograph of myself and a tiny snip of cloth from the lining of each cup of my bra. I continued wearing this bra. In three days, my breasts had completely returned to normal and I removed the witnesses from the box.

THE DYING TOMATO VINES

OBJECT OF EXPERIMENT:
To strengthen and renew growth on tomato vines that were appearing to suffer from a fatal plant disease. Disease unknown.

Symptoms included wilt, leaf curl; leaves would turn brown and die. Branches showed evidence of yellowing and fruit would not mature, falling off long before ready. Compared to other plants the sick ones were half as large with an insufficient amount of green in the plant in general. In addition, the fruit exhibited a green-white color and a shriveling effect that could be described as hypertonic.

PROCEDURE:
In order to remedy the situation we applied a two-fold scheme that included the use of commercial fertilizer and the Hills' Pi-ray Coffer. First we applied commercial fertilizer at the rate of two cups per 100 feet of row throughout the garden. Then taking the diseased plant and removing a sickly portion, we inserted it into the coffer on the 3rd of July, placing the box in an open window at the south end of the house that would receive filtered sun's rays. We left on vacation. Upon returning home on the 10th of July we discovered the plants to have made some recovery, not only in the plant itself (leaves and stems) but in the fruit. At the time of this writing it is the 20th of July and new shoots are in evidence everyday on the plant. Let it be emphasized that the plants received as much water over the ten day period that we were gone as they had while we were at home.

CONCLUSIONS:

Conclusions are that the Pi-ray Coffer was instrumental in providing aid to the decaying plants—the required energy needed to sustain photo-synthetic life.

CONVINCING RESULTS

1. I loaned the coffer to a friend who had some marijuana that was not very potent. After keeping it in the coffer for three days he reported that it had gained in potency during that time. Even though he is somewhat of a cynic by nature, he was impressed with the results.

2. I placed my meditation beads along with a picture of Krishna in the coffer overnight. The following morning my meditation was unusually clear and focused.

3. I woke up with a headache, so promptly chewed off a few fingernails and placed them in the coffer. A few hours later I noticed that not only was my headache gone, but that I had a remarkable amount of energy and good cheer.

PI-RAY BRINGS ME A MASTER CYLINDER

The master cylinder in my VW was leaking badly and I could not afford the seventy to eighty dollars required to buy a new one. In addition, my life was at stake since the brakes could go out at any time. I made a word witness in black ink on white paper stating my need for a master cylinder for less than ten dollars. I put it in the coffer along with a sample of my hair—and promptly forgot about it. A few days later I was hauling a huge load of campus trash to the county dump. As I pulled into the dumping area my heart leaped and I felt a rush of energy fill me. There in front of me lay the twisted hulk of a discarded late model VW body. Could it be? I ran to the wreck and saw that it had been completely stripped of anything of value. The entire front end had been cut away. And yet, there in plain view was the very master cylinder I needed! I was reminded of the words, "The Master works in strange ways, His miracles to perform."

A CHARGE TO THE HEAD, A CHARGE TO THE HEART

I placed a photograph of myself into the coffer to give myself an extra boost of energy. After a day a ringing started in my head. Eventually, I realized that the coffer might be causing this so I removed my photos. Within an hour the ringing sensation was gone.

Later I put myself back in the coffer to test the head ringing sensation. The next day my head was splitting. I realized that I already had enough energy and that learning how to use it was my problem. I did not use the coffer again for a few weeks. Then I put my heart into it together with a witness of the Cosmic Heart. The two witnesses were a photo of myself and a photo of someone who had reached Oneness with the Cosmos. This time my head did not ring even though I stayed in for a week. The effect was that I could stay calm while being heavily confronted. The day after I took myself out of the coffer I felt the difference. I did not hold my center and was disturbed by thoughts of anxiety.

RESCUE FROM THE COMMON COLD

My experiment with the coffer arose out of my wanting to not get a cold and be exhausted. For several days I had been working hard and getting only a few hours sleep at night. So this one particular night I was very tired and could also feel a cold coming on. Knowing that I was only going to be able to sleep five or six hours and, from experience, knowing I would get a cold if I didn't get much rest, I placed a picture of myself in the coffer with the intention of energizing myself and preventing the oncoming cold. After orientating the coffer north I went to sleep. The next day I felt really alert and energized and by the end of the day my cold symptoms were gone.

MAKING A HERO

OBJECT OF EXPERIMENT:
To aid an individual in overcoming self-destructive tendencies which mask positive qualities and render such a being incapable of performing at his or her true capacity.

Symptoms are loss of energy, self-doubt, overactive critical faculty, anger and fear as co-partners to reactiveness which functions under duress and manifests overtly in chronic frustration. Object is to replace these and other negative expressions of the personality with their positive counterparts which are enduring and not simply products of personality but are themselves universal aspects of nature's harmony. Assumption is that every man is at heart already a part of this harmony and therefore contains within him the seeds of any quality which he feels he lacks.

PROCEDURE:
In order to overcome a constant and recurring feeling that I lack sufficient courage and capability to play a meaningful role in life I devised the following experiment whereby I tried to substitute negative qualities with positive ones. First I found pictures of ancient Greek heroes like Odysseus, Theseus, Bellerophon, Perseus, and the like, and placed them in the coffer. Then I placed a picture of myself in the same coffer and left it there all the working day. At night I would remove the picture of myself and reinsert it at the beginning of the new day.

This I did for three days. Every time I felt the urge to think of myself as anything but the hero in the box, I would remind myself that I was in the box and that any suggestion that I did not have courage or faith or love or any other heroic quality was a damn lie! In three days I could observe Olympic games without feeling that I was a great failure. For the first time in my life I began to think that I had a role in life that was valuable and needed. I began to wonder what talents I had and how could I express the things I was feeling. I began to feel more assertive on my job but not obnoxiously so. I felt more love and confidence but was conscious of the humility required to keep the confidence from turning into pride and hence back into inferiority. My study habits improved and I began writing again since writing was something that had always helped me clarify my own views on things. I got a raise on my job and felt more positive about my parents. In short, I began to like some things that I saw in myself and this helped me to get the courage to begin opening some doors long held shut.

Conclusion:

The Pi-ray Coffer seemed to me to be a unique tool in helping a person to reprogram his destructive mind tapes or destructive thoughts, the very act of putting in the box some quality that you feel you lack has the tremendous effect of hope. But beyond that it shows that the person is already getting in touch with that quality within him. By studying that aspect of his nature which he feels he lacks he already begins to master it and make it a part of himself.

SUPER-CHARGE

I did two experiments with the coffer. First I put a sample of our pet guinea pig's fur in the box. The guinea pig had been pregnant several times and her abdomen was distended and out of shape. She was very inactive and slow to move. Pendulum questioning indicated she had a tumor inside of her. Immediately after putting her sample in the box she became more active and lively. She was more lively than we had ever known her to be. The pendulum indicated the tumor had gone down but was not totally gone yet the last I checked it.

Seeing the active guinea pig, I decided to put my own hair sample in the box. I borrowed another Pi-ray accumulator from a friend. I felt a charge of energy for several days. When I left for Los Angeles, I decided to keep myself on charge. After being in L.A. for a few days, I suddenly felt a distinct change in energy and knew that my friend must have taken back her coffer and removed my hair. When I returned, I checked it out with her and found that she had indeed removed my hair sample from the box around the same time I felt the energy decrease.

ENEL'S PI WAVES FROM A CYLINDER GIVE BROADCAST HEALING

A testimonial letter from a physio-therapist A.V.N. (January 28, 1954). NOTE: the same principles used by Enel have been incorporated in the coffer. Here is an early account of their efficacy. The coffer enhances Enel's methods by at least ten times.

"As the principles of Enel's distant healing methods based on wave selection due to parallel lines on a cylinder were here employed, the following remarkable experience should be found of interest:

"Patient: a woman past middle life. The blood spot analyzed through Turenne's sample witness produced resonance with carcinoma. Word witnesses of intuitional radiesthesia indicated the same thing, and both methods gave the same L field on the Turenne Universal Rule. Map dowsing anatomical charts gave reactions over throat and generative organs.

"When the patient called she was told of what had been found radiesthesically, and she replied that this tallied with the medical diagnosis. Prior to this radiesthesic work I myself had no information from this patient, and I was aware only of a visible swelling in the throat area. Before the radiesthesia was done I had not been told that she had been and was still nursing a cancer patient who was being operated on from time to time at short intervals, nor that she herself had refused to accept any medical treatment for her own condition.

"We physio-therapists are forbidden by our laws to deal with cancer. I decided in the circumstances to apply one of Enel's methods of health broadcasting, when the patient receives neither personal examination nor any form of medication. For this purpose I stuck a ruled sheet of notepaper on a six-inch length of broomstick, with the parallel lines at the correct angle for producing Enel's "Pi waves". This ruling of parallels on the paper was done by a surveyor. First of all the appliance so made was attached to a wall surface facing east. I found the point of greatest activity for the rod-formed ray at 29 inches distance from the end of the wooden cylinder.

"Next I pinned a drawing, done in Indian ink, of the affected parts and at the same time the blood spot to the wall facing south taking care that these things should be at twenty-nine inches distance from the end of this Pi-ray cylinder known to be capable of providing a special kind of radiation. Thus by an indirect process what took place in my room reached the patient, as the following later events showed.

"When the patient was seen some time later she asked if I could tell her by chance why she had had 'a queer feeling' on the day she visited me. She explained that the chair in which she had sat seemed to be vibrating intensely. At the time when she felt this she was travelling in a train. The vibrations felt, she said, seemed to be inside her. As she was in a train and knew the time of this journey it was easy to have confirmation of the sensation occurring just when I had set up the Enel apparatus, at the close of an appointment with a patient. From then onwards I continued to give that broadcasting.

"This happened last April. Since then she had on one or two occasions experienced a feeling of complete exhaustion. Whenever I have been told this, I have disconnected the broadcaster for a few days, whereupon she has recovered her energy. All the time she was not informed of what I was doing. It was only much later, when she had made improvement, that I told her I had been giving her a broadcast treatment of this kind, without then informing her of any of the details.

"I saw her last night (27th January 1954) and she again said she was very busy and was feeling splendid, in fact better than she had been for years. She certainly looks well, having bright eyes and a rosy complexion."

An isolated instance of what appears to have been the result of Enel's method of distant healing based on the use of a force which has been identified within the Great Pyramid cannot, of course, be considered as a proof of the efficacy of the method. It must not be forgotten that, as doctors so often say, a patient sometimes gets well by himself. Yet there is one part of what took place which suggests that the Enel methods were at least contributory to the recovery: the fact that the patient definitely perceived the effect of the treatment when it started.

BECOMING A BETTER YOU

Among the people I work with here there is one particular person with whom I do not get along. I had many negative feelings covering a broad spectrum toward this individual and found it difficult to lick them. So in desperation I placed a picture of myself and the person in the coffer with good vibes emanating from me to him. I had done experiments of this nature before and knew that changing one's being is so difficult that I needed to leave the experiment going for many months. In previous experiments I had found that the problem I was working on slowly dissolved itself out of my being, so this time I anticipated the same. But in this case I suddenly found myself truly understanding where the other person was at. I saw that all the judgments I was making came from inside myself and not from him. Because I was able to make this move out of myself and into the other person's world a basic change has taken place in our relationship and it has steadily improved ever since.

OVERNIGHT HEALINGS

I went into a clinic for a small operation which included general anesthesia. When I was sent home the doctor told me to expect certain common after-effects: tiredness, muscular aching, stomach pains, and that these should go on for a couple of days.

The next morning I woke up and cautiously checked myself out. To my surprise, I felt absolutely normal—like no operation had ever occurred. The next few days went by with me continuing to feel in perfect condition.

I expressed to one of my roommates this surprising situation. He smiled and said, "Well, I put it in the coffer for you to have a quick recovery!" (No witness; he just put it in.)

When the clinic called a few days later to find out how I was doing and heard my story they were quite incredulous. They said I must have been really lucky because it's very unusual for that ever to happen.

In another example, a friend of mine broke her leg in five places in a skiing accident. She came to visit on crutches a few days later, her entire leg in a cast and her foot very swollen. We immediately went to work with a Hills' Positive Green pendulum, sending healing energy into the injured leg. We then took a Pi-ray Coffer and placed in it a hair sample of my friend with the message: "Please help Nancy's leg heal by February 8 to the point that she will no longer have to wear a cast."

Nancy's doctor had told her that it would take from six to nine weeks for her leg to heal. She had an appointment with him on February 8 (three and one-half weeks from the date of the accident) for a check-up, at which time he would decide whether she could change to a half cast—only from the knee down. She was in very positive spirits about healing herself and was supporting the coffer energy with healing meditations for her leg. She went home and stayed on a very limited activities schedule for the next three weeks. She called a few times during that period, saying she was feeling quite a bit of sensation in her leg, and some pain. The healing message remained in the coffer throughout this time.

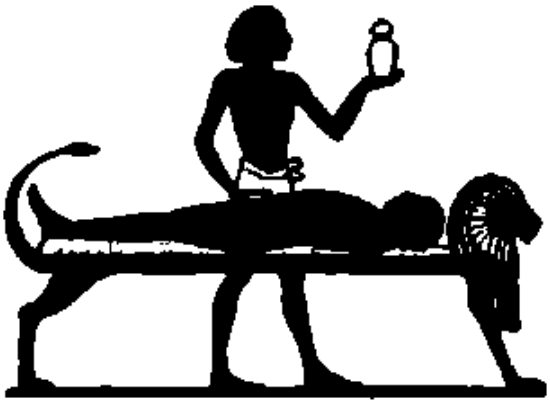
February 8 arrived and Nancy went for her doctor's appointment. She called me a few hours later, absolutely ecstatic. He had taken X-rays, and with astonishment told her that her leg was completely healed; he removed the cast completely and told her to turn in her crutches!

—Ary King



Researcher Massy reports on some added experience with the coffer:

"The most significant thing I have noted with the Pi-ray coffer over the past three years is that it has even more far-reaching effects on one's consciousness than it might seem. When I first used it the purpose was mostly to materialize anything that I imagined (clothes, money or other material items). The coffer worked well in giving me these things in three to five days. It also worked well in helping people to recover lost animals and stolen cars and to obtain houses, with quite specific requirements such as the number of rooms, garden space, maximum rent, etc.

"At the same time I was doing work on the spiritual side of my being and I began enlisting the coffer's help with such patterns as envy and anger, using a picture of a more developed person together with a picture of myself to bring forth from myself more heartfelt expression and humility.

"After about the first year of using the coffer for material desires I found to my dismay that in two instances the image did not materialize. Since I couldn't figure out why not, I stopped doing this experiment. A few months later I began to experience that I could bring about the same results by asking the Cosmos to program the coffer with higher consciousness for me. All I had to do then was to put out the thought of something I wanted and then totally forget it, as one does when using the coffer. Then the thing would just come to me in some other easy manner. From this experience I feel that one of the maximum benefits obtained is that every time you use the coffer it helps you on an unconscious level to tune your own consciousness to have that power itself. Using the coffer develops this ability in yourself to an incredible degree of accuracy with constant reproducibility.

"The fact that I was not consciously trying to do it myself is important because if I had tried too hard my ego would have gotten in the way and worked against me. Every time you put something into the coffer it brings about a state of prayer with a sense of humility and awe in the cosmic power. Then the thing is accomplished not by the force of your ego, but by the grace of the Cosmos."

APPENDIX NO. 1

THE MEASUREMENTS OF THE EGYPTIANS

The Great Pyramid at Giza was built by Imhotep on principles of vibration detected in the natural environment by the divining faculty of the pendulum reactions and the divining rods of the initiates. This secret of the Ankh was lost over 3000 years of succeeding generations of Egyptians who symbolized it in ceremonial form as the source of all knowledge of life's energy. Another great pyramid was never built because the secret of this direct perception of Nature's vibrational patterns was not passed on. We must look at the Pyramid as being already older than 2000 years when Christ walked the earth. Just the same difficulty in understanding its original meanings would emerge for his contemporaries as it does for us to look back 2000 years to biblical times.

The vertical height of the Apex of the capstone (H) from the baseline yields the same ratio as the basal circumference of a circle to its radius (R). Also the circumference of the square around the base of the Pyramid is equal to the circumference (C) of the circle around its Apex. This is the ancient method of squaring the circle which yields the transcendental number Pi. Pi is the relationship between the circumference of a circle and its diameter expressed in the form of a ratio 22/7.

The slopes of the pyramid sides of the Great Pyramid give an angle of 51°51' but pyramids can be constructed of any size so long as these ratios and angles are correct. The following table gives measurements of the proportions in any unit such as centimeters or inches or feet.

It is not the purpose of this book to prove anything by mathematical representations. The argument between so many who have tried to rationalize the use of Royal cubits of 525 millimeters and ordinary cubits of 526.3231 millimeters is pure speculation. If these are not fully understood no amount of brilliant logical operations can give us absolute knowledge.

The Egyptians were masters of representation and their symbols and language indicate a highly developed imagination. A god such as Thoth with an Ibis head, or represented as a hawk or falcon, is a symbol for the essence quality they perceived in each of these birds.

In the same way that we represent abstract concepts by formulas such as $E=MC^2$ so did the Egyptians use the Ibis to represent Thoth, who is the Egyptian equivalent of the Greek Hermes, the bringer of inspirational messages. This is identical to Mercury, the Roman name for the quality that rules the operations of the mind.

However, certain basic proportions are common to all natural phenomena which can be proved by direct experiments which bear out the validity of mathematical ratios and take the speculation out of the realm of pure logical consistency. These are the formulae for creating the Pyramid form and the proportions of the resonant chamber known as the King's Chamber. The Egyptians set their standards of length by studying the action of the "merkhet", a pendulum which revealed to them the rhythms of the earth and its rotation. The passage of the vault of heaven caused by the earth's rotation was used as a standard 1000 cubits per second, the second itself being a measurement of time purely invented by averaging out the rotation time of the earth and its passage around the sun and dividing it by 365.25 in order to measure against the backdrop of the stars.

The dimensions of the coffer in the King's Chamber have been related to the various astronomical constructs of the solar system. However, any resonant dimension will produce the same vibrational harmonics and so the attempt to relate exact dimensions in cubits and seconds is only to avoid the facts that all such measurements in seconds are creations of man's consciousness, dividing the whole into parts of his own making.

The ancient measures were based on the arbitrary length of a pendulum in relation to its swing of 100,000 times a day at the latitude of the Pyramid. Such a pendulum would have a string length of 740.57 millimeters. By taking the length of a square whose diagonal was the length of the pendulum, the Royal cubit would be 323.66 millimeters. The relationship of the gravitational mass of a pendulum to the strength of the surrounding gravitational field is another factor which Einstein's work with space and time revealed. The Egyptians were more interested in the tuning of energies through exact proportions than trying to make exact measurements of length.

They were interested in the harmonics of color so they began to divine the planets of our system in harmonic distances from the sun. Beginning with the color red for Mars they divined that our planetary system could be represented by the color spectrum in the order of the colors in the rainbow. There was a resonant connection between the solar spectrum and the various levels of consciousness through which we perceive the different worlds of this universe. The planets in some way were linked with the different psychic centers in man. They reasoned there was some geometric basis to the nature of vision and perception that was related to light and color.

The coffer measurements were believed to embody some mathematical conundrum. However, the Egyptians who tuned into the earth's magnetic field and the cosmic intelligence by divining with the key of life only needed to chip away the coffer until they had the proportions of a resonant chamber or a volume of space which was tuned to the Pi-ray. The measurements therefore are unimportant since any resonant chamber will amplify the radiation of the energy. So long as its dimensions are made proportionally to the frequency of the radiation, resonance will occur.

The following formulas enable anyone to calculate the size and volume of a cone or pyramid as a resonant mass in relation to a cube or cylinder. Given the proportions used in the construction anyone can calculate the volume of the pyramid and relate it to the half sphere which duplicates its vibration.

THE PYRAMID

A pyramid has sloping sides that come to a point at the top. The base may be a triangle, a rectangle, a square, or some other kind of polygon. (A polygon is a plane figure with three or more straight sides.)

A

A simple experiment shows that the volume of a pyramid is one third the volume of a prism having an equal base and an equal height. Figure A shows gravel being poured out of a square pyramid into a square prism. The pyramid and prism have the same base and height. When all the gravel has been poured in, the prism will be one-third full.

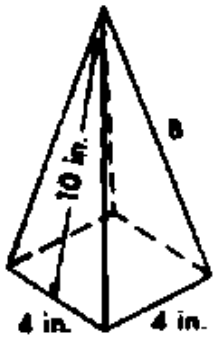
The formula for the volume of a rectangular prism is $V = lwh$. The formula for the volume of a pyramid is:

$$V = \tfrac{1}{3}lwh$$

in which V is the volume, l is the length of the base, w is the width of the base, and h is the height.

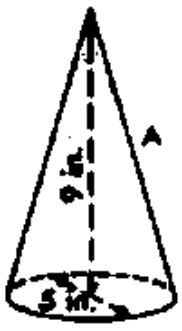
The volume of a pyramid having a 6-inch square base and a height of 8 inches is found as follows: $V = \frac{1}{3} \times 6 \times 6 \times 8 = 96$ cubic inches.

The sides of a pyramid are triangles. The total area of the sides is called the convex surface. If the pyramid is a square pyramid, there are four of these triangles. The slant height of the pyramid in Figure B is the altitude of a triangular side (10 inches). Since the area of a triangle is one half the product of the base and the altitude, the total area of all four of these triangles is one half the product of the sum of the bases and the altitude. The sum of the bases in Figure B is 16 inches (the perimeter of the base). Then the area of the sides of this pyramid is found as follows:



$A = \frac{1}{2} \times 10 \times 16 = 80$ square inches. The total surface area is 80 square inches + 16 square inches (the area of the base), or 96 square inches.

THE CONE



A cone differs from a pyramid in that it has a circular base. The cone represented by Figure A has a base with a diameter of 5 inches and a height of 9 inches. The volume of a cone, like the volume of a pyramid, is equal to one third the product of the base area (B) and the height (h); that is:

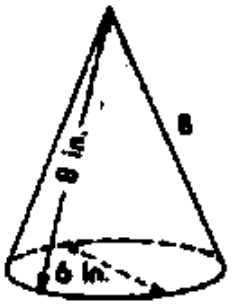
$$V = Bh$$

The area of the base is the area of a circle with a radius of 2.5 inches. Then, the volume of this cone is found as follows, using 3.14 for π : V = ⅓×3.14×2.5×2.5×9 = 58.875 cubic inches.

The method described for finding the area of the convex surface of a pyramid suggests the method for finding the area of the convex surface of a cone. The area of the convex surface of a cone is equal to one half the product of the circumference of the base and the slant height. The circumference of the base in Figure B is 3.14×6, or 18.84 inches. Then the area of the convex surface is ½×8×18.84, or 75.36 square inches. The area of the base, of course, is 3.14×3×3, or 28.26 square inches. Then the total area of the surface of this cone is 75.36 square inches + 28.26 inches, or 103.62 square inches.



THE SPHERE

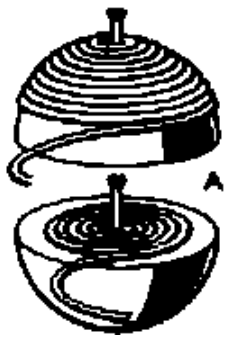


Figure A shows a cork ball cut in half. A pin was placed in the center of the flat surface of one of the halves and in the center of the curved surface of the other half. Measuring the twine coiled about the pins reveals an interesting fact. The amount required to cover the curved surface is just twice as much as that required to cover the flat surface. This shows that the area of the surface of a hemisphere (a half-sphere) is twice that of a circle having the same radius. We know that the area of a circle is given by the formula: $A = \pi r^2$. Then, the area of the surface of a hemisphere is $2\pi r^2$, and the area of the surface of the entire sphere is given by the formula:

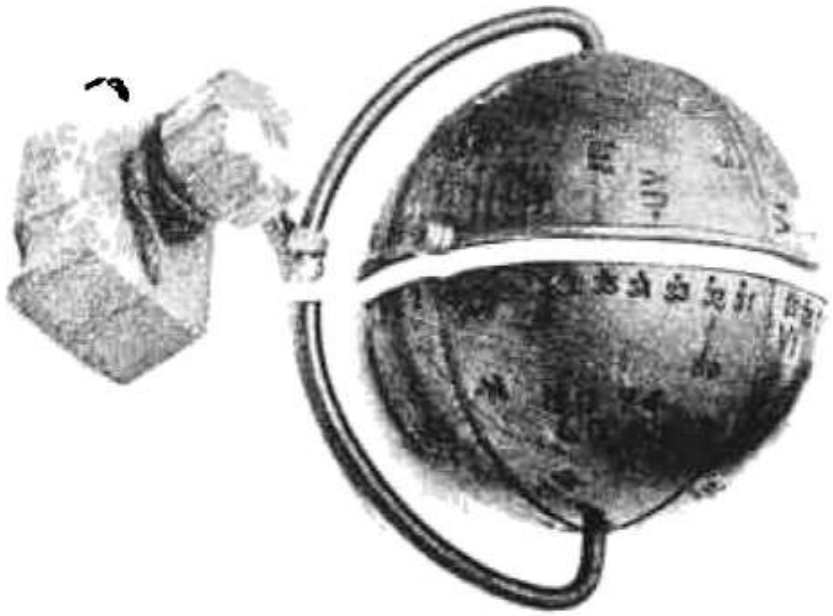
$$A = 4\pi r^2$$

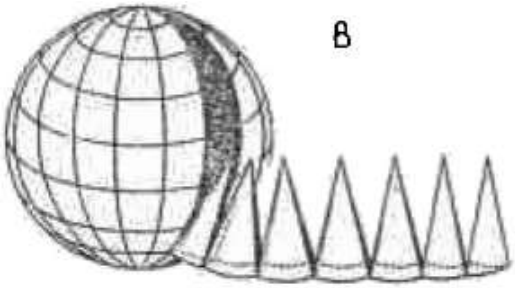


We may think of a sphere as made up of many pieces that resemble pyramids, as shown by Figure B. We know that the volume of a pyramid is $V = \frac{1}{3}Bh$. In this case, the height is the same as the radius of the sphere. The volume of each "pyramid" is therefore $\frac{1}{3}Br$. The sum of the bases of all the pieces is the surface of the sphere, or $4\pi r^2$. Substituting $4\pi r^2$ for B, we have a formula for the volume of the sphere:

$$V = 1/3 \times 4\pi r^2 \times r \text{ or } V = 4/3\pi r^3$$

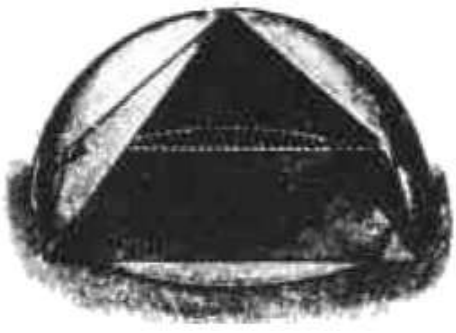
If we compare a sphere with a cylinder having a diameter and height equal to the diameter of the sphere, we find the volume of the cylinder is half again as much as the volume of the sphere.

If we compare the volume of a sphere with the volume of a cone that has a base diameter and a height equal to the diameter of the sphere, we find that the volume of the cone is just one half that of the sphere.



In the Great Pyramid the width of the coffer's inner dimension is 676.70 mm, its length 1977.47 mm, its height 872.19 mm. Any resonant chamber which gives one seventh of this volume or can be divided into octaves by dividing into fifths, thirds or halves and multiples thereof will create the same vibration as the original coffer.

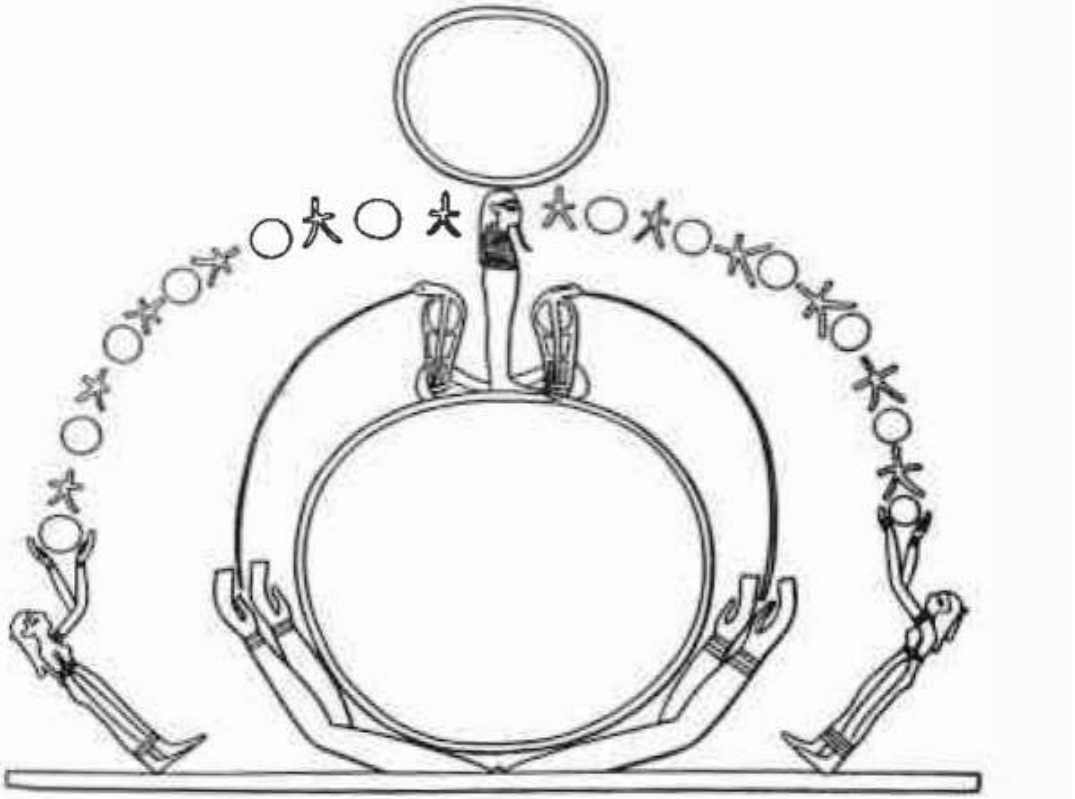
M. le Compte A. de Belizal and Leon Chaumery found the pyramid form was related to the vibration of a half sphere.



This view of the Great Pyramid, tomb of King Khufu at Giza, was taken from the Second Pyramid, in which was buried Khufu's brother Khafre. Originally Khufu's great heap of limestone blocks—of which there are some 2,300,000 altogether, each one averaging ten and a half tons in weight—was covered with a facing so exquisitely fitted together that the joints between blocks weighing several tons showed seams only one ten-thousandth of an inch wide. As Sir Flinders Petrie, the great Egyptian scholar says, this was "equal to optician's work of the present day, but on a scale of acres instead of feet or yards of material."

PATHS TO FURTHER KNOWLEDGE

The Food and Drug Administration requires all manufacturers of devices of any kind not to make health claims unless the device has been passed and registered with the FDA. No medical effects are claimed for our instruments concerning physical diseases as treated by doctors and licensed practitioners. All our instruments on pages 187-198 are handcrafted and made expressly on behalf of the researchers who use them, and no medical claims are warranted or implied in our descriptions or labeling, since all results described are purely caused by effects of consciousness acting upon the subtle energy field. University of the Trees Press does not accept any responsibility for lack of results due to buyer's lack of knowledge.



Dr. Christopher Hills' breakthrough research into the human brain and society as a hologram of consciousness shows that the next step in the evolution of society is dependent on the evolution of your higher brain functions. In RISE OF THE PHOENIX you explore the vast unknown world of man's evolutionary instrument—the brain—and learn in depth how to expand your own brain capacity.

Dr. Hills shows you how you can continue this awakening by understanding how your consciousness has control over mental and bodily functions. Enhance your own evolution by understanding how the pituitary and pineal glands affect intuition, imagination and the ability of the nervous system to sense relationships in Nature through the unconscious and to receive information like a radio signal. This reception and transmission through the vehicle of consciousness can be developed by you to enable you to tune into the cosmic program, the next evolutionary leap.

REVOLUTION OR EVOLUTION OR BOTH? What is the new vision of the Phoenix rising on the horizon? Dr. Hills brings the future into clear focus for a penetrating and convincing insight into humanity's next step—THE BRAIN REVOLUTION.

THE BRAIN REVOLUTION

In the author's own words:

"A new revolution is going on which results in the effective channeling of emotions and mood-changing hormones at the center of our brains without drugs. The enkephalins and endorphins secreted by our pituitary gland and the serotonin effects on our pineal gland lead to new models of our brain which will affect society and human life. New ways of governing our lives and even redesigning our anatomy and physiology can slow down the aging process. Happiness will become auto-suggestible and our imaginations will (like the present-day information in computers) become our new renewable resource."

RISE OF THE PHOENIX is the symbol of the rising of new consciousness with new vision, the archetype of resurrection in each individual. The final chapters deal with the questions, "How do I know the real Phoenix from the fake? How do I discriminate the real message of the transcendent from the false prophets of religious cults?" This exciting scientific and spiritual penetration of the intellect with the spirit of love challenges the reader to a new perception of change and self-mastery.

BOOKS OF DESTINY

FROM
UNIVERSITY OF THE TREES PRESS

Publishers of practical spiritual guides, scientific books and correspondence courses

NUCLEAR EVOLUTION: DISCOVERY OF THE RAINBOW BODY, by Christopher Hills
Deluxe paperback, 12 95 Hardback library edition 18.95
This book is perhaps the most authoritative look at the evolutionary potentials of the human race ever published. Light is the theme of the book: that the human personality is formed from waves and pulses of light Humans and other animals and objects eat light, and the human mind is a black hole that absorbs light, then emits it as the rainbow body. A masterpiece in consciousness research.

INTO MEDITATION NOW: INTRODUCTION & SECTION ZERO, by Christopher Hills 5.95
This book provides an introduction and overview to a comprehensive three-year course of study, Into Meditation Now, that enables you to make the philosophy of Nuclear Evolution a reality in your direct experience.

SUPERSENSONICS, by Christopher Hills 15 00
The Diviner's bible and encyclopedia that describes actual methods of measuring psychic electricity (prana) and the ways ancient masters and civilizations arrived at advanced knowledge of perception which shows you how to communicate with plants, crystals, atoms, Cosmic Intelligences or your true Self. A mind-bending book.

ALIVE TO THE UNIVERSE, by Robert Massy 9.95
A physicist explains Supersensonics in simple layman's language, and gives step-by-step instructions on how to divine for lost objects, people, water, minerals, health, etc. Your vast potential for multi-dimensional awareness awaits unfolding through this book An illustration a page

YOUR ELECTRO-VIBRATORY BODY, by Victor Beasley 9.95
This book contains a selection of research from the world's foremost pioneers who look at the human body as a collection of atoms and molecules whirling around in space. They see the effects of one's auric field extending far beyond the physical body. They show how your mood, personality and health are affected and governed by magnetic and electrical fields, positive and negative ions, light and colors, and even the thoughts of others. This information, once regarded as occult, is now the focus of research by M.D.'s and Ph.D.'s.

ENERGY, MATTER AND FORM, by P. Allen, R. Smith and A. Bearne 9.95
Three consciousness researchers provide a dynamic workbook for those ready to test the bounds of their consciousness. It shows how to perform experiments for unfolding extra-ordinary dimensions of experience This comprehensive text presents extensive information and insight into the human aura, psychic energy centers, kundalini, psychotronics, electrophotography, divining, acupuncture research, radionics, holography, black holes, pyramid energies and the Creative Imagination

SUPERSENSONIC INSTRUMENTS OF KNOWING, by Christopher Hills 1 95
This book provides instructions on the use of various Supersensonics tools, rods, pendulums, etc, in a complete catalog of biofeedback instruments and their uses.

SUBTLE-BODY HEALING, by Victor Beasley 5.95
This work combines into a single volume, basic principles of wisdom healing of ancient Egypt and India together with contemporary subtle-energy healing research in radiesthesia and psychotronics. Instructions are given for the use of the Subtle Body Spectrum Monitor, a newly developed instrument for analysis of the human energy-field. This type of analysis takes into consideration subclinical forms of toxicity, pranic energy distribution, psychosomatic stress management, and karmic patterns from past lives. Thus, dis-ease, i.e. energy-field imbalances, at all levels of our being, can be detected. Also included is new information on the chakras as they manifest in our different energy-bodies or planes of consciousness to affect our health one way or another. The use of psychotronically produced biochemical cell salts is introduced through the use of the Supersensonic Homeopathic Energizer.

HILLS' THEORY OF CONSCIOUSNESS, by Robert Massy 7.95
A student of a master of consciousness describes his own development in a group of 15 selected students of Nuclear Evolution. This book contains simplified accounts of inspired research of the actual structure of Consciousness and its many drives which physicist Massy believes will dominate the next 500-1000 years of man's history.

FOOD FROM SUNLIGHT, by Christopher Hills and Hiroshi Nakamura 14.95
The Japanese have known since 1917 that successful harvesting of algae would produce infinite amounts of food from air, light and water. Failure to do so prompted in 1959 the Japanese newspaper article, Chlorella Algae, the Manna from Heaven, is a Twentieth Century Myth. But in 1963 Spirulina algae was discovered and, over the next ten years, brought manna from heaven to a reality.

MAY YOU LIVE IN HEALTH, by Aaron Friedell, M.D. 3.95
After meeting 80 year-old Aaron Friedell, you would want to buy this book—a guide to effective health habits. His system is the result of forty years' practice as a physician and researcher on increasing the vigor of the human body and obtaining peace of mind. Although practical, Dr. Friedell's book has some amazing technical data explained simply.

WHOLISTIC HEALTH AND LIVING YOGA, by Malcolm Strutt 9.95
A new wholistic approach to the spiritual science of total health which includes the application of yogic principles to daily living situations, complete self-examination and encounters, yoga postures, meditations, breathing and energizing methods, and other practical techniques for spiritual stimulation.

YOU ARE A RAINBOW

This is a lovely book that gives you keys to the spectrum of personality and how we love, communicate and relate to time differently from each of the seven levels of consciousness. Containing original insights into Christopher Hills' theory of Nuclear Evolution, You Are a Rainbow describes through personal experience each of the seven levels of consciousness and how they are created by the way we absorb and re-radiate light. It explains how you can find out where you fit in the rainbow spectrum.

In this book Christopher Hills gives us a moving vision of what we can become by perfecting our own level of consciousness. And it shows how to use a tool that can help you explore your own consciousness and tune into the worlds of others—the Aura Pendulum.

Edited by Norah Hills $2.95

New Booklets

Research Institute for Supersensonic Healing Energies. This booklet describes the activities of RISHE, the newly formed branch of University of the Trees devoted to practical, applied research in subtle energy therapeutics. Highlights a variety of seminar and lecture topics available through University lecturers and features latest tools being offered, such as the Homeopathic Spa Bath, the Subtle-Body Spectrum Monitor and the Supersensonic Homeopathic Energizer.

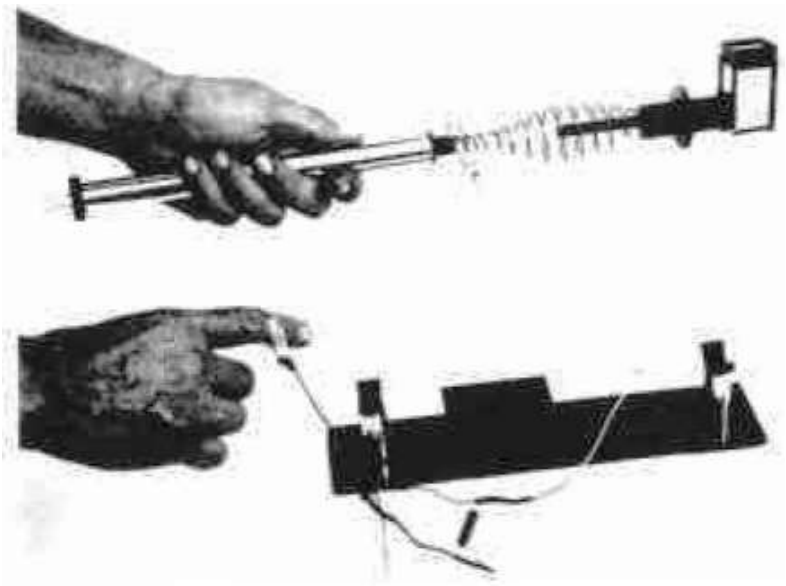
TOOLS FOR ATTUNEMENT

PSYCHOTRONIC EXTRACTOR SINK



The Psychotronic Extractor Sink is a fast acting, inexpensive, reliable technique for stimulating the body's natural elimination systems to excrete residual poisons. It utilizes the Pi-ray described in this book and has a special radiesthesic charge with an array of four minerals and a radium salt stimulator which triggers the operator's response to the Pi-ray and amplifies the effect of the charge. ☆ $250.00 plus postage.

PI-RAY SUPERSENSOR

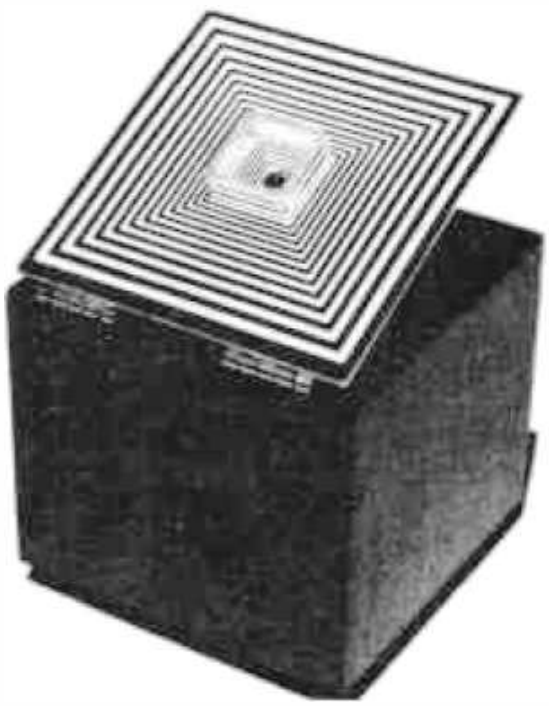
Our Pi-ray Supersensor is much more than a pendulum. A radium stimulated charge in an array of four elements helps you discharge toxic vibrations from your mind, emotions and etheric body. This has a tremendously revitalizing effect on your physical body, much more than a physical treatment might do, because there is no better way to an enriched heart and perfect health than tuning to the life force itself. With this pendulum you can substitute new patterns of health for old images stored not only in your mind but in the memory bank of your cells, muscles and organs. ☐ $65.00

All prices subject to change without notice.

THE AMAZING PI-RAY COFFER

Supersensonic research confirms that thought waves are just as real as electromagnetic waves. This instrument is a psychotronic generator, for putting us in tune with the life force. That is, it concentrates the powerful Pi-ray described in this book to amplify and broadcast thought waves. Often a person cannot keep his mind fixed on the clear thought or image of what he or she needs with enough intensity and perserverance to make it happen. Your own consciousness makes what you need come about, but the coffer helps you focus and release your thought energy with one-pointedness. A witness placed inside, like a photograph or bloodspot, can bring about a remarkable number of magical effects. However, the coffer will intensify not only what you consciously desire, but unconscious thoughts as well. So pure motive is needed to use it effectively. Dimensions: Approx. 3" square.

☆ $79.00



HEALING GEMSTONES

Certain precious and semi-precious gems have crystalline structures that readily absorb and reradiate powerful energies. The ruby laser, for instance, can burn a hole through solid steel. Many people are now rediscovering the health-enhancing properties of some crystals, especially some varieties of quartz. We offer a special assortment of sixteen polished gemstones for experiments with the Pi-ray Coffer and Aura Sensor. Each stone is about one quarter inch in diameter. The set includes: rose, golden tigereye, citrine, green, rutilated and amethyst quartz, bloodstone, moonstone, Brazilian and Turitella agates, carnelian, imperial jasper, jade, mother of pearl, rhodonite and lapis lazuli.

☐ Price for the set $25.00. Individual stones: $5.00 each.

HILLS AURA SENSOR

Used for aura balancing, a technique for detecting and correcting energy field imbalances in the chakras and for freeing energy blocks in the acupuncture meridians. This tool also can be used to inject specific vibrational remedies such as the energy of an herb, vitamin, cell salt, gemstone, etc. Comes equipped with a receptacle for placing a remedy in the hollow handle and a special radiomagnetic amplifier cap which steps up the vibration of the remedy and sends it down the sensor waveguide into the area where it is needed. $25.00

THE PROFESSIONAL ASSORTMENT

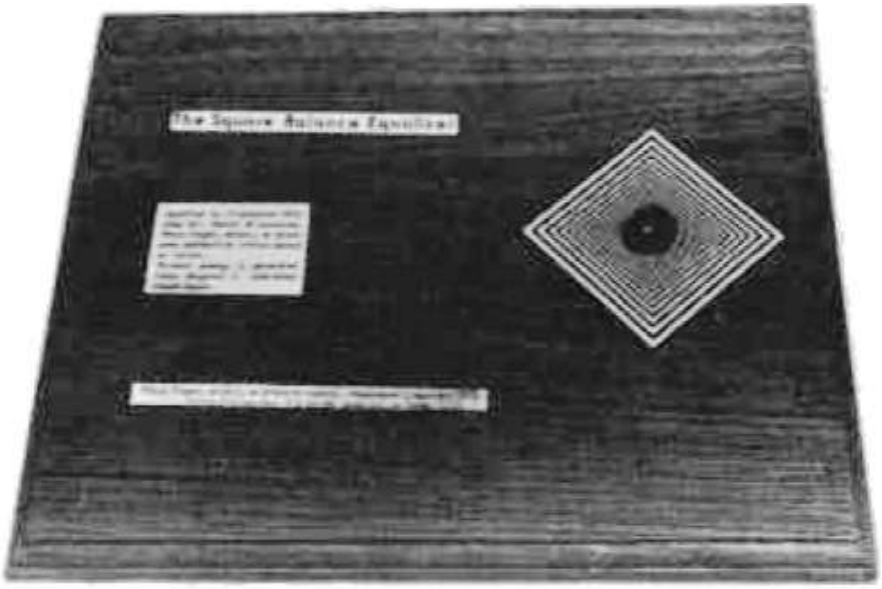
THE KUNDALINI ROOMPH COIL

This device is used to help you raise your Kundalini in controlled fashion, until you begin to feel a bubbling sensation awaken a new quiet joy within your heart. Channels the fire of consciousness through the nadis, as they are called in Sanskrit, without burning the etheric vehicle or blowing your mind. Use with the Merkhet pendulum. $83.00.



THE SQUARE BALANCE EQUALIZER

Some of us have difficulty balancing our daily lives and are constantly regretting the choices we make during the day. The Square Balance is designed to help you correct these imbalances. It can help charge you with life force, balance your nervous system, and reveal real or potential imbalances through pendulum response to your questions. Can also be used to send anyone the appropriate mental vibration of a balancing remedy continuously, by simply placing a witness at the center. Use with the Hills' Positive Green Pendulum. $28.00

THE AWARENESS METER

All living things have some primordial intelligence by which they function and this is beyond the access of normal scientific instruments. This instrument creates a mental yardstick of 360 degree or total awareness against which to measure the relative awareness of all living things—even higher intelligences beyond man. With the Awareness Meter and the Merkhet pendulum, you can tell how much or how little you have blocked the flow of awareness in yourself or others. $40.00

THE MAGNETRON

Supersensonics' answer to the radionics set. Uses a special array of magnets as a witness of the sun's magnetic field. This brings the magnetic field of the earth, which links everything and everyone on the planet, into the service of your divining needs. Can be used to locate or send healthful vibrations to anyone whose photograph you place at the center with an appropriate pharmaceutical, herbal, or homeopathic remedy. Portable, pretuned, simple and powerful: compare with bulky, complicated radionics sets at ten times the price. Use with the Hills Positive Green Pendulum. $35.00

HILLS POSITIVE GREEN

One of the most widely used pendulums for detecting health, answering questions of the Heart, and for general purposes. Answers your questions like:

- ★ What is the right food for me to eat?
- ★ Do I live in a healthy environment?
- ★ Does my plant need more water?
- ★ Is he/she telling me the truth?

The Positive Green's special design and special materials make it selective of the life force. You can use it to charge yourself with this vital force. $15.00.

SPECTRUM MIRROR

The Spectrum Mirror Pendulum is a step up from the simple Aura Pendulum. With its mirror surface, special charge in its cavity, and spectrum band, it is a highly sensitive and selective tool.

WORKS IN THE MIDST OF SKEPTICS! The mirror surface reflects negative thought and interfering colors.

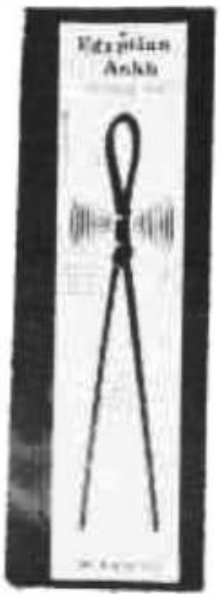
EGYPTIAN ANKH DIVINING ROD

The Egyptians had a rod called the Key of Life, or Ankh. Now, this ancient rod is made available for modern man. The Ankh amplifies your nervous reflexes, strengthens your intuition, and makes the reflexes visible by causing the rod to move, thus giving you a yes or no answer. Nothing need remain unknown to you, but a pure motive and openness are needed for correct answers. The Egyptian Ankh Divining Rod . . . $8.00.



THE MERKHET

The Merkhet is specially designed to tune into the thoughts of anyone or anything—living or dead. The mercury charge inside the Merkhet resonates with all mental waves. Use this pendulum for:

- ★ Divining mental states and thoughts
- ★ The I.Q. of yourself or another
- ★ Discovering your past lives!
- ★ Discovering the intelligence of animals
- ★ Answering any yes/no question

If you have a good mental intuition or want to develop it, then the Merkhet is for you. $16.00.

OTHER SUPERSENSONIC TOOLS AND INSTRUMENTS

The following divining tools mentioned in the text are aids for contacting intelligences or energies, and are not substitutes for spiritual work on ourselves.

Aura Pendulum: A low cost pendulum for determining a person's aura and the psychic atmosphere that surrounds them. $6.00. An excellent booklet accompaniment is You Are a Rainbow: Discovering Your Personality with the Rainbow Aura Pendulum for $2.95.

Turenne Magnet-fitted Pendulum: Called the Rolls Royce of pendulums because it has a wide range of selectivity and is specially suited for use with the Turenne Rule for detecting atomic and chemical substances. The researcher's pendulum. $20.00.

Hills' Aura Sensor: This special hand-held instrument has a hollow handle which allows you to place specific remedies inside. A special radiomagnetic stimulator which caps the handle amplifies the vibration of the remedy and sends it into the chakra or area of the body needing that specific energy. Excellent for use with aura balancing. $25.00.

Turenne Fundamental Ray Disc: For chemists this disc takes the place of expensive analytical instruments. For those concerned about health and self-healing, the disc can reveal whether the forty-four elements of nature present in the human body are in excess or are deficient. $29.00.

Subtle-Body Spectrum Monitor: A modern scientific adaptation of the wisdom teachings of ancient Egypt and India, a geometric/radiesthesia replication of all the human chakras and subtle bodies. Amplified by a permanent magnetic field and amethyst quartz crystal; used for detailed analyses of the human energy-field. $145.00.

Supersensonic Homeopathic Energizer: Produces the 12 Schuessler biochemical cell salts by means of energized geometric/radiesthesia standing-wave interference patterns. Each of the 12 geometric energy wave-forms are light-activated and amplified by individual permanent magnetic fields. Capable of producing any combination of the 12 cell salts in any combination of potencies up to 37M. $800.00.

Turenne Rule: Reveals the 44 elements of nature which are present in the human body, excess or deficit of any of which will cause ill health. It is a remarkable instrument for finding out your true spiritual condition, and your physical and emotional state of being. A real bargain at $35.00.

Radium Block, Tritium Block: Are amplifiers for all divining instruments. Both are $23.00. The Radium Block is specially made to fit on the Turenne Rule and amplifies the field of the sample itself. The Tritium Block amplifies the diviner's reaction. $23.00.

Hefiger: Amplifies the field so strongly that, using it, most people can become diviners. It is a virtually indispensable instrument to be used in conjunction with a pendulum or rod. $35.00. Name is abbreviation for "Hills End-Fire Intensifying Guide and Radiator."

Turenne Magnet-fitted Rod: A very selective divining rod, used for outdoor work in much the same way as Moses and Jacob used their rods. Excellent for locating water, minerals or lost objects. $22.00

TAPES

SUPERSENSONICS SEMINAR

A beginning series for diviners given by Dr. Robert Massy, author of Alive to the Universe, including instructions for performing an aura balancing. The chakras are vortices of spiraling light energy. You can actually feel the energy of each chakra and through aura balancing you adjust the polarity of these chakras for psychic health. This set of tapes is a recording of an actual seminar given at the University of the Trees. Having a partner to do the experiments with doubles the fun.

Tape 1. A general introduction to divining. What it means to draw on the Cosmic Computer and how to have the right attitudes to make divining work (THY WILL BE DONE). Also, what is the pendulum? Divining stories from the Bible. Applications to health.

Tape 2. The effects of color and their radiations, tuning the pendulum, training your system to know your "yes" or "no" over your hand or a compass. Detecting the Life Force of a person with the Positive Green Pendulum.

Tape 3. More on divining for the Life Force. Testing positive and negative poles. Testing positive and negative spirals over an apple and a battery.

Tape 4. Aura balancing demonstration: probing the problem, taking out negative energy, and charging up the chakras. PYRAMIDS AND HOW TO USE THE COFFER. Negative ion generators. Doing the aura balancing on yourself. Checking for breast cancer.

Due to the nature of this seminar it must be purchased as one whole.
Separate tapes not available. Order SS1, 4 hrs.
$32.00 for the complete series.

The Chakra Series is an in-depth look at the rainbow body of light. In each psychic center you experience a unique world of time and perception. Here, Christopher explores each center and how you perceive the universe through it. All of us have a complete "rainbow body" and we switch from one center to another, although people usually live in one or two main chakras. By acknowledging each chakra and becoming aware of these levels of consciousness, you can gain control and self-mastery of these powerful forces.

ADC-1. AN OUTLINE OF THE SERIES: Christopher teaches the group how to use the Luscher Color Test effectively. This book is available at any bookstore and you can take the test along with the group to find out how your consciousness absorbs and reradiates light. 1 hr. 45 min. $11.00.

ADC-2. THE MULADHARA (Red Center): Explore the world of the senses. Shiva and Shakti, positive and negative energies explained. 1 hr. 25 min. $10.00.

ADC-3. THE SWADHISTHANA (Orange Center): The social world and how to be free from its authorities. Develop sensitivity to others. 1 hr. 30 min. $10.00.

ADC-4. THE MANIPURA (Yellow Center): The intellect and its separative process. Intellectual planning and the cosmic plan. 1 hr. 30 min. $10.00.

ADC-5. THE ANAHATA (Green Center): The war between reason (the head) and the heart. Possessiveness and attachment. 1 hr. 20 min. $9.00.

ADC-6. THE VISHUDDHA (Blue Center): Mental operations and conceptualization compared to direct perception. 1 hr. 20 min. $9.00.

ADC-7. THE AJNA (Indigo Center): Knowing through intuitive awareness. Being able to know something yet not knowing how you know. 1 hr. 40 min. $11.00.

ADC-8. THE SAHASRARA (Violet Center): The imagination and its power to make things happen. Using the imagination to change your life. 1 hr. 55 min. $12.00.

NEGATIVE IONS:

A NEW DEVELOPMENT IN HOME ECOLOGY

ıcent research shows that tiny electrically ıarged air particles called negative ions can otect you against air pollution, help put more ygen in your blood, improve your breathing, omote mental alertness and enhance natural tality. These are found in abundance in natural ttings such as the woods or ocean, in the air ter a thunderstorm, or in fresh sunlight.

ıw people know that often the very environent they live and work in can be robbing them vital energy The "invisible robber" is the ıbalance of negative to positive ions in the air ıu breathe. And the greatest imbalance is often und in our cities, offices and homes, with ectric appliances, TV sets and many other odern conveniences.

ıading university researchers around the world :e Dr. Felix Sulman of Hebrew University in rael, have shown that too many positive ions ıuse irritability, tiredness and if too much in :cess, nausea, migraine, and eye disorders. An ıundance of negative ions, however, promotes tality. Our own group of researchers here has ınfirmed that in an atmosphere charged with egative ions less sleep is needed, greater ental alertness is achieved, and more vitality is lt. Negative ions will also help clear rooms of ıst and smoke as they quickly attach themelves to these positively charged particles and ake them sink to the earth.

Unfortunately our civilized lifestyles often mean we have to live in areas with abnormally high concentrations of positive ions. This is why we've designed our AIR ENERGIZERS.

These electronic AIR ENERGIZERS will feed trillions of negative ions into your depleted air and revitalize it into healthy air

In the past four years we have become recognized as pioneers in this field by knowledgeable individuals and independent research labs have reported the quality and superiority of our units We are proud to be able to offer you a piece of equipment that we are getting so much positive feedback on.

If you're interested, order one of our units now and we'll ship immediately. Once you receive it turn it on and feel the cool ion "wind" coming off the emitters. Try it out for a few days and see how alert and refreshed you feel. If you are dissatisfied in any way return it in 10 days for a full cash refund.

System Four: A touch of class. Handsomely designed desk model complements any room. Solid State $159.00 plus $4.00 shipping

. . . about the University of the Trees

The University of the Trees is a community dedicated to man's evolution. It was founded by Christopher Hills in 1973 as a non-profit organization based on the concept of working on the expansion of our ego self toward a group conscious spirit. The students who have come together from all parts of the U.S. to unfold this evolutionary thrust participate daily in such activities as chanting, Rumf Roomph Yoga, Creative Conflict, Supersensonics, a course on direct enlightenment called "Into Meditation Now" and a new concept of community government. University of the Trees is also a degree granting institution which awards B.A., M.A. and Ph.D. degrees in a wide variety of subjects related to consciousness research.

We are always searching for practical solutions to the problems of society. One of our recent publications, Food From Sunlight is a direct response to our concern for the needless world hunger crisis. Creative Conflict is a practical solution to the problem of human conflict. We facilitate classes open to the public one night a week where skills in direct communication, ego penetration, openness, and spontaneous perception are practiced. Several of our authors are available for lecture. If you are in a group that sponsors workshops and speakers, please write for further details. We offer workshops in meditation (adults or children), Supersensonics and Creative Conflict.

Members of the University of the Trees do not rely on taxpayer financing, grants or donations for income but rather our book publishing, phototypesetting, sale of cassette tapes and divining tools. Thank you, everyone, for your response and support. We are still searching for an appropriate property, preferably a school, campground or resort with existing facilities in a place that is relatively frost-free for our algae program.

Visitors are welcome on Tuesdays and Saturdays for tea at 4:00. We'll be glad to answer your questions at these times. Visitors may also participate in our meditation, chanting and worship service which Christopher leads on Friday evenings, promptly at 7:30 year-round. Please phone ahead for changes, (408) 338-3855, during office hours, weekdays, 10:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m.

Christopher Hills has been in the forefront of pyramid research for over 25 years. Explorers in subtle energy fields have dubbed his book SUPERSENSONICS "The Diviner's Bible."

The ancient Egyptians knew the secret for detecting and channeling the finer forces of Nature. Their special psychotronic instruments could harness and use the mysterious Pi-ray energy found in the King's Chamber of the Great Pyramid and in other natural or man-made forms.

This fascinating history of ancient uses of the subtle energies relates the times of the Pharaohs to the modern-day scientific seers who are using the same principles with mind-bending results.

Discover how you can produce this energy yourself for healing, charging yourself with life force, raising your consciousness, growing superior crops, or even preserving matter.

SECRETS OF THE LIFE FORCE tells you the secrets of the Pi-ray Coffer, the incredible box that replicates pyramid dynamics to amplify our thoughts into the Universal Field. Whatever you program into it can manifest now. You can use the Box to tune your consciousness to achieve your heart's greatest desire.
